Lancaster County establishes Agricultural Preserve Board

BY CURTHARLER
LANCASTER — The Lancaster County Commissioners Wednesday passed unanimously a measure establishing a County Agricultural Preserve Board.

The action means a voluntary deed restriction program can begin in several townships almost immediately. Such a program could preserve as many as 54,839 acres of farmland on 877 farms in eight Lancaster County townships.

The Board is an advisory body whose major role will be the establishment and administration of a voluntary deed restriction program. Under the current proposal, deed restrictions may be reviewed after 25 years or in case of extreme hardship.

The nine member Agricultural Preserve Board consists of representatives of the farm community, the financial world, developers, and an ex officio member from the county commissioners.

See story on page A 20 for names and backgrounds on the appointees.

Board members will serve four year terms. To allow staggered terms, two members each were appointed to one, two, three and four year terms.

County Commissioner James E. Huber will hold the ex officio spot.

County Commissioner Jean Mowery objected to the short notice given her as to which members would serve which terms.

But she added that the appointment of the board had been delayed long enough and proceeded to second the motion to nominate the Board members.

The motion passed unanimously.

The Board will hold its first meeting this Wednesday, April 9, on the fifth floor of the new County Courthouse Building at 50 N. Duke Street in Lancaster.

The meeting, open to the public, should begin at 10:30 a.m., or right after the (Turn to Page A21)

Producers despair at bottomless market

BY SHEILA MILLER

LANCASTER — Hogmen watched in despair for the past four week's as their hog prices took a nose-dive toward the bottom.

According to Lloyd Hoover, hog salesman for Dunlap's at the Lancaster Stockyards, the prices dropped about $3 to $3.50 from the beginning of last week to Saturday. This was only a small part of the $7 to $9 drop that has knocked the legs out from under the hog market in the past three to four weeks.

Hogmen who saw a glimmer of hope in this week's prices should not get too ecstatic. Monday's market, said Hoover, showed a slight and very temporary increase, with the market 50 cents to 75 cents higher.

This little spurt was the result of the severe weather conditions in the West which meant fewer hogs were going to market. There was more interest in the ones that did make it to the auction block from the buyers at the sales, Hoover said.

Why the slump in hog prices? Hoover said he feels it is the result of over supply and over production by hog producers.

"Consumers haven't been buying much pork. They're walking around worrying about the economy and giving themselves stomach ulcers—if they don't eat, they won't be buying pork," he said.

Even with the drop in prices, Hoover said hog producers are still sending their animals to market which is not helping the prices. "I guess they need the money to pay their taxes this time of year, and pay the Christmas bills that are coming due."

Flooding the market with hogs to help pay the bills is adding to the bottle-neck market that the hog producers find themselves in. Hoover pointed out the national slaughter is running at capacity with 375,000 hogs per day. "Last year we thought we were at top capacity with 360 thousand," he added.

Louis Moore, a Penn State economist, referred to the March 20th Pig Crop Report put out by USDA when he tried to explain the current market trends.

"The March report indicates the December through February percent sows farrowing were up (Turn to Page A32)

The sad saga of Lehigh stock

BY VIVIAN PAUL

ALLENTOWN — In 1970 Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farmers preferred stock was as good as gold, maybe even a bit better than gold.

The dairy was in a solid financial position and the preferred stock was a vigorous commodity. It was worth $10.6 million.

In 1955 it had been valued at $1.5 million; in 1960 at $3.5 million; and in 1965 at $5.6 million. It was returning six percent to investors at a time when banks were paying three to four percent. It was even accepted by local dealers as payment for farm machinery.

In short, it was a solid investment.

In 1974 the Co-op stopped paying dividends and the value of the stock plummeted.

This month the 4000 preferred shareholders will learn whether they will receive even a fraction of their investment as current Lehigh shippers vote on the sale and liquidation of Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farmers.

Some of the stockholders are disinterested business people, some are schools, some are churches. But many are part of the agricultural community and, more specifically part of the Lehigh family.

Prior to 1974, all Lehigh shippers participated in a retain program. Royce (Turn to Page A36)

Seller-buyer cooperation needed

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN
LITITZ — Farming and frustration seem to go hand in hand.

The weather, rising production costs coupled with falling markets and temperamental machinery are just some of the perplexing problems which have become all too commonplace as a new decade in agriculture begins.

But now a new factor of frustration has been injected into the complicated formula of running a farm business.

Just ask anyone who has experienced trying to buy a farm in recent months, particularly a young farming couple wanting to get started.

Farm real estate representatives pretty much tell the same general story:

There are plenty of farms available.

Likewise, there are plenty of potential customers looking to buy, both the younger seeking their first farm and the older looking to expand their operation.

The big obstacle being encountered by many of these eager buyers centers on the problems and frustrations of obtaining financing.

One member of the farm real estate community put it bluntly and rather harshly, but it illustrates the depth of frustration being experienced:

"It seems like they're trying to see just how difficult they can make it to buy a farm," he said.

In any event in the present era of tight money policies being exerted from the federal level down, mortgage funds have dried up faster and more deeply than a mid-summer drought.

Airport zoning leaves Lebanon farmers up in air

BY SHEILA MILLER

CAMPBELLTOWN — "If a farmer wants to expand his farm, he has to buy more land. If a man wants to expand an airport, he should have to buy more land too," commented Joe Eckenrode, a South Londonderry Township farmer.

His statement was made Wednesday evening at a special hearing called by the Township Board of Supervisors. The meeting was held in order to get public opinions on a petition by a local airport to amend the zoning regulations.

Charles and Ada Reigle, owners of a private airport located just south of Palmyra, Lebanon County, filed a petition last Fall with the township and county to revise the 1975 zoning of South Londonderry Township.

According to the Reigles, when the township was zoned, the airport was ignored. By a 1972 State law, the airport should have been zoned AP-1 rather than

How much are 10 eggs worth?

Here's an example of what a proper lighting program can mean to you when you own a flock of DEKALBS. The two hen day production lines don't look much different. But the 2 week earlier maturity meant 10 more eggs. It also meant about 3½ lbs. less feed to 50% production. Make sure you're realizing the maximum potential from your layer flock.

Winning dairy honors ... the Pennfield way.

Nearly 100 area dairymen — all Pennfield customers — were honored recently for achieving high herd production, high increases and high record cows last year. Of vital importance to their success is the way they continue to balance their home grown forage with nutrients that boost milk yields dramatically and enhance butterfat test results. This, of course, is exactly what the Pennfield Computerized Total Ration Service can achieve for you. And here's how it works: 1. We collect samples of your forage. 2. Then we evaluate the quality of your forages. We determine the total digestible nutrients. The fiber content. The protein content. The amount of carbohydrates. 3. The computer quickly spots any nutrients lacking in the forage. For your milking cows. And for your dry cows. It immediately points out the overfeeding of nutrients. Underfeeding, too. Both of course, may be different at different times of the year. And the print-out will tell you what you need. And when. 4. Your Penn Pro Professional advises you on the quantity and type of nutrients that should be added, to balance your total feeding program to your cows' nutritional requirements.

Ask the Old Farmer: Years ago in our rural area water pails made out of paper were used in every farm kitchen. The ones my grandfather used were colored red. I can't make folks believe there was such a thing. B.N., Los Angeles, Calif.

You are right. The paper pulp was moulded when soft then varnished. Maybe you didn't know this, but as long ago as fifty years electric car wheels were made of the same stuff, except the rims. Home Hints: Scorch spots on linen may often disappear when placed in hot sunlight all day.

Lancaster Farming says...

Spudmen need help with price famine

Dramatic news photos broke this week in the New York Times and Philadelphia Inquirer of Maine potato growers dumping loads of potatoes to prevent trucks from crossing the U.S.—Canada border with more spuds.

The publicity given the Maine growers underscores the attention usually given them while Pennsylvania spudmen languish in the backlash of potato politics.

Keystone State growers are being robbed of markets by subsidized farmers both in Maine and in Canada.

The facts in this case are simple enough. There are just too many potatoes. The industry realized this a year ago and took action. Pennsylvania growers reduced acreage by 10 percent. Meantime, Maine cut output by less than 5 percent.

But the latest crop was excellent, and potato prices have taken a dive. Current price on No. 1's ranges from $4.70 to $5.40 per cwt. That's a dollar, or a full 20 percent, below year ago prices.

Meantime, state growers face a $4.80 cost of production to storage. Factor in a 15 percent storage loss, labor, packaging, and marketing expenses, and a conservative demand price should be about $7.90 per cwt. This is the fourth year in a row Pennsylvania growers have faced a tight situation.

The only difference between Pennsylvania growers and Maine growers is that Pennsylvania's spudmen have no help.

Maine has Senator Edmond Muskie. When he sneezes, he gets action.

Maine growers have been working with disaster funding from FmHA in recent years, paying three percent interest. Pennsylvania farmers are borrowing at today's inflated rates.

Despite this U.S. government aid, insiders are predicting massive FmHA loan failures in the Maine potato region as farmers find themselves unable to make payments.

At the beginning of the year, an estimated 60 percent of Maine potato growers with FmHA financing were in arrears. Those loans are due in two months. And those growers are sitting with storages full of spuds.

Farmers in New Brunswick, Canada, just across the Maine border, are given a 40 cents per cwt subsidy by their government on the first 10,000 cwt they produce. This coming year, the subsidy will be raised to 60 cents.

Canadians also benefit from a hidden subsidy due to current exchange rates. The Canadian dollar is 18 cents cheaper than the U.S. dollar.

A mild winter has kept Canada's ports ice-free and allowed Canadians to export much of their product both abroad and to traditional U.S. markets.

Although Pennsylvania growers are closer to big Eastern markets, they are losing sales to subsidized producers both in Maine and Canada. This is forcing non-subsidized producers out of the potato business.

"Those subsidies take away free enterprise," agrees Tom Lyon with the Pennsylvania Cooperative Potato Growers, Inc. "Every acre of potatoes we lose in Pennsylvania we'll never get back."

There seem to be two solutions. First, and best, is to get back to basic free enterprise. Then, Pennsylvania growers will have a better than fighting chance to get a piece of the potato market.

Second is to get FmHA money for Pennsylvania potato growers. It's hard to deny their business today is bordering on true disaster.

MARY MAGDALENE

Lesson for April 6, 1980

Background Scripture:

John 20:1-8, 30-31.

Devotional Reading:

1 Corinthians 15:51-58.

If you drive today from the city of Tiberias along the shore of the Sea of Galilee to the ruins of Capernaum (Khafer Nahum), roughly one-third of the way you will pass on your right side a site that is easily and frequently missed by the pilgrim to the Holy Land. At best, it is usually pointed out as your bus rumbles by in haste as Magdala, the hometown of Mary the Magdalene.

Several years ago, as I was driving a rental car throughout the Holy Land, I stopped at that site. I had it all to myself: few people, if any, visit it. As I strolled under the shade of its lofty trees, I wondered why in this land of shrines and memorials there was none built here to the memory of Mary Magdalene. There may be such a shrine at other places in the Holy Land, but I cannot recall ever having seen or heard of one. This woman seems peculiarly overlooked by the Church.

Early To The Tomb

For, next to Mary, the Mother of Jesus, Mary Magdalene is the most important woman in the four Gospels. According to John, it was Mary who came first to the garden tomb on that Easter morning. It was she who saw the stone had been rolled away and it was thus Mary who ran to tell Simon Peter. Furthermore, it was Mary Magdalene who saw the angels in the tomb and spoke to them.

But, most of all, according to John, it was Mary who first encountered the risen Lord. Supposing, at first, that he is the Gardener, Mary recognizes him when he says to her in that familiar way, "Mary." Her response is immediate: "Rabboni" (Teacher)! And it is this same Mary who hurriedly carries the good news to the disciples: "I have seen the Lord!"

Seven Demons

Matthew, Mark and Luke differ from John's account in that they have Mary going to the tomb in the company of other women, but Mary agrees with John in saying, "Now when he rose early on the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, from whom he had cast out seven demons" (Mark 16:10).

Of what importance to us is this prominence of Mary Magdalene? Perhaps, in this day when we are re-thinking and debating the professional role of women in the Church, it is significant that it was a woman who first visited the tomb and encountered the Risen Lord. Despite her scriptural prominence, Mary would find considerable difficulty in being ordained in many Christian Churches today.

And, secondly, it is well for us to remember that the first person to experience the Risen Christ was one from whom Jesus had cast "seven demons" — a pointed reminder that the business of Christianity has been, is, and continues to be salvation and the redemption of sinners, and not the celebration of the righteous.

NOW IS THE TIME

TO DRAIN WET SPOTS

This is the time of the year when wet spots will be showing in crop land. Some farms have considerable trouble with these wet areas each spring, or in wet weather. Land is a valuable item these days and every acre should produce its maximum. These wet spots do not produce well and are a nuisance with modern machinery. Many wet areas do not produce a thing because they cannot be tilled and planted.

We urge farmers with wet areas to have them tile drained; this should be done before the crop is planted and will improve the area for many years to come. This can be done in pasture areas as well as in crop land. Technical assistance is available through our Extension Service and through the local Conservation Service. Don't put up with wet spots any longer.

TO CONSERVE FUEL

I've heard many farmers remark about the higher cost of their fuel last year; they are about to do something to improve the problem. This is not easy and I doubt if alcohol is going to be the answer this year. However, reducing the use of tractor power might be one way to reduce fuel costs.

I'm thinking of less tillage to the soil - or minimum tillage. In many cases, it might be no-till plantings. There is little doubt that many of our Lancaster County farmers till their soil too much; some of our Penn State agronomists have been saying this for years. One or two less trips over the field will surely reduce fuel needs. This might be very much in order on many farms. The point I'm trying to make is to do the job with as few hours of tractor time as possible. You might be just as well pleased with the results.

TO GIVE PASTURES A CHANCE

I notice that some herds of cattle, or flocks of sheep, are already running over the pasture area. When this is done so early the grass does not have much of a chance to get well started. In addition, the ground is very soft and the animals will cut the sods with their feet and damage many plant roots. It would be much better if the animals were confined to an exercise lot area until the ground dried, and until the grass had a chance to get started.

Also, most permanent pastures should have been fertilized, or manured, during the past month. By keeping the livestock off the area, the fertilizer will have a chance to work into the plant roots and increase growth. Don't allow your livestock to damage the pasture area before the season starts.

TO CONTROL MULTIFLORA ROSES

Have you noticed the spread of these wild roses in your part of the community? Every land owner should make an effort to keep them under control. These wild roses were promoted and distributed several years ago by several federal government programs; they were supposed to protect wild game and serve as a natural fence. However, they got out of control and are spreading into many pasture and woodlot areas.

I hope that all land owners will not plant any more of these roses. Also, make a special effort to kill the existing bushes. Materials, such as Tordon 10-K pellets, or Roundup herbicide, will do a good job; the best time to make the application is in May or June when the bushes are growing fast and in blossom. We need the effort of everyone to keep these wild roses from taking over pasture and wooded areas. Additional information is available from any Extension Agent's office.

Omaha Cattle

Thursday, April 3

Report supplied by USDA

Closing prices on slaughter steers were 4.50-5.50 lower, and heifers were 5.00-6.00 lower late. Cows were 2.00-3.00 lower and bulls 3.00-4.00 lower.

Four day receipts this week: 9300; last week: 10,000; year ago 9500.

The decline in fed cattle prices continued at an accelerated pace into the fourth successive week. The current downturn was the most severe for a one week period in the past several years and left closing levels at the lowest point since late August. The downturns were enforced on very modest supplies in reflection of a chronically bearish downward plunging carcass trade. Futures trading also shared in the bearishness, often closing at the maximum allowable decline. In view of the poor movement of the finished product, most buying interests confined purchases to minimum immediate requirements. The run included a fair percentage Choice steers and heifers although many carried a moderate to heavy coating of mud. Steers made up approximately 45 pct. and heifers 40 pct. Cows comprised 8 pct. and feeders 5 pct.

STEERS: On Monday, load Choice 3 1215 lbs. 65.00, three loads Choice with end Prime 3-4 1150-1275 lbs. 64.35-

Average of LS-214 detailed quotations for Choice 900-1100 lbs. steers this week 61.44; Choice 1100-1300 lbs. 61.41. Average weight steers this week 1166 lbs. as compared 1161 last week. Average weight heifers this week 1005 as compared 1017 last week.

HEIFERS: On Monday, load Choice with few Prime 975 lbs. 64.00. At the close, Choice 2-4 900-1050 lbs. 58.00-59.00. Some carrying heavy coating mud or predominantly 4 54.50-57.00. Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 56.00-58.00. Good 2-3 54.00-56.00.

Dear Editor:

Your story concerning the proposed Milk Security Fund (March 29, Lancaster Farming) had some glowing omissions.

The Pennsylvania Farmers' Association does support the establishment of a Milk Security Fund as proposed in S.B. 1287, but PFA will be seeking amendments to the bill to carry out the policy of PFA members.

S.B. 1287 proposes that a one-cent per hundredweight contribution be made by dealers and processors to establish the fund. PFA members have adopted policy calling for two cents per hundredweight.

PFA is noted for representing its members, and it will continue in that tradition.

But, what really bothered us is the fact that you did not mention that it was the cooperatives who put forth the proposal just a year ago, calling for a two-cent per hundredweight contribution by the dealers and processors to raise the necessary security fund.

It was the cooperatives that led everyone to believe that the Security Fund would be worthless unless there was a two-cent per hundredweight contribution by the dealers.

Also, the State Grange has policy calling for a two-cent contribution by the dealers.

How in just one year can a one-cent contribution do the same as a two-cent?

PFA members do not permit their policies the flip-flop back and forth.

The Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers opposed a one cent, and a two-cent contribution, which could be expected because they stick to policy.

We should expect the same from our agricultural organizations. They should stick to their policies, instead of changing them on some whim when faced with a little opposition.

As far as we are concerned, it is not possible for PFA to abandon any policy position adopted by our members. If we could do that, what would be the use of having members write policies in the first place?

Yes, PFA does support the creation of a Milk Security Fund, financed by a two-cent contribution by the dealers and processors. That's the policy adopted by our members and that's the amendment we will work to include in S.B. 1287.

Dear editor:

This week's announcement of the new support price is likely to draw many comments. If you were to ask me what my opinion is about this support price announcement, I would say the following.

The goal that most everyone wishes to achieve is 100 percent of parity, whether this is labor, industry or agriculture. The Government's support of dairy prices at 80 percent of parity is still 80 percent of parity. Moreover, support prices are no guarantee that the market will result in prices at 80 percent of parity.

The real question is can dairy agriculture maintain a stable and productive structure if those engaged in producing the raw product are receiving a level of approximately 80 percent of parity?

Parity is a measure of relative purchasing power. The goal of dairymen is to achieve a return for their labor, investment and risks that will assure them a reasonable return and some future. If this is not the case, they will tend to leave dairying.

In the Northeast, dairy farm members have been consistently going down at the rate of three to four percent a year. Nationally, dairy farm numbers were down 6 percent below the 1978 level from 1979. Cow numbers were down six-tenths of one percent and production per cow up 2.3 percent.

Consumers are likely to be worse off if farm income does not provide sufficient incentive to adequately insure farm productivity. Consequently, 80 percent of parity semi-annually adjusted is no big deal for dairymen.

KAUFFMAN STATION —
Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Stuff of

annual Franklin County Guernsey Breeders' Club Banquet held last Friday at the Kauffman Station

Ruritan Building.

Some 100 Guernsey breeders' and families attended the event held to recognize outstanding members and to re-organize for the coming year.

"Sunnydell H. Della", owned by the Stuff's, garnered the high lifetime production award. Della, in eight lactations, produced 111,774 pounds of milk and 5034 pounds of butterfat.

The second award presented to the Stuff's was high herd production. The Walnut Lane Guernsey herd averaged 12,474 pounds of milk and 595 pounds of butterfat.

The Stuff's also received the high cow production award with 17,296 pounds of milk and 819 pounds of butterfat.

The Franklin County Guernsey Breeders' Club annually presents awards to the top junior and senior 4-H member in the county with an outstanding project book.

Receiving these awards were Jeffrey Benedict and

Cuts... then chisels THE NEW BRILLION SOIL BUILDER

This is the new Brillion Soil Builder coulters-chisel to get you into minimum or conservation tillage. It mixes about 75% of crop residue into the topsoil, leaves remaining one-fourth on surface. It works like this: 20" coulters supported by a weighted frame, slice through trash and soil. Hefty 1 1/2 x 2" shanks with 4" helical shovels and miniature moldboard points, crumble, incorporate, cover and ridge to create a new soil in one pass. A soil that soaks up moisture, resists erosion and breathes with life. The Brillion Soil Builder is available in two models with "dual-nested" spring clamps (one spring inside the other) — or rigid shank mountings. Also, in three sizes with 7, 9, and 11 chisels. Let us show you this new tool that can help you manage and build your soil.

Douglas Layman, senior and junior awards respectively. Both 4-H'ers from Waynesboro are members of the Quincy-Washington Township 4-H Dairy Club.

Blain May, county FFA advisor, also presented the top FFA Guernsey project award to Jeffrey Ben-dict. Jeffrey is a member of the Blue Ridge FFA Chapter in Waynesboro. The award is sponsored by the Franklin County Guernsey Breeders' Club.

Carol Mummert and Dale Mummert, both of Chambersburg, received halters sponsored by the Franklin County 4-H Dairy Council for the 1979 first-year showman and fitter honors gained at the 1979 Franklin County 4-H Dairy Roundup last August.

Carol won the outstanding first-year fitter award while Dale won the outstanding first-year showman award.

During the business session the Guernsey Club elected three members to the board of directors.

Elected to a three-year term were Donald Bender, Waynesboro; Donald A. McCullough, R1 Newville; and Rodney Stuff, Mercersburg.

These new directors replace Kenneth Mummert, Kenneth Meyers, and Harold Hoffeditz whose terms expired this year.

Ginger Secrist, Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders' Association field representative gave a State Association report.

Secrist stated the Association had a good year last year and this year looks good too.

"Sales of cattle are up.

"The average selling price is $1077 which is a 51 percent increase over last year's average," stated Secrist.

The Association recently had its second annual Blue Halter Calf Sale and the 15 calves sold averaged $960, $330 better than calves sold last year.

Raymond Witmer of Willow Street, who is currently on the Middle Atlantic Guernsey Sire Committee, spoke on this new young sire selection program.

"The MAGS committee is working for you.

"Any bull approved by the committee has to be a 900 plus bull," said Witmer.

"It takes all of us to make MAGS a success stated Witmer. The breed has got to move and we have room to go up."

The Association knows of one breeding service that no longer carries colored breed semen because economically they cannot do it, and both Witmer and Secrist urged members to use MAGS and stressed that the breed has got to make it on their own.

Seth Schnebly, National Guernsey Association Director for District #6, also spoke on the MAGS program and reported that there are four young sire testing units across the country.

In special attendance was the State Guernsey Dairy Princess Millie Linde and the Franklin County Dairy Princess Carolyn Meyers.

Both Princesses talked on the importance of production, testing, and maintenance of the dairy cow in promoting the dairy product.

Speaker for the event was Glen Stouffer, R9 Chambersburg.

Stouffer, who was involved in a three week tour of China in 1976, presented a slide show on his 1976 tour.

Officers of the Franklin County Guernsey Breeders' Club are: Gerald Mummert, president, Kenneth Meyers, vice-president, and Lehigh Knepper, secretary/treasurer.

Your part: fresh feed ingredients. Our part: potent feed value.

When you build your own rations from feedstuffs you grow yourself, the rations are fresh.

Vigortone's dairy pre-mixes are especially designed to balance the nutrition in your feedstuffs for maximum performance. Each pre-mix contains the proper levels of vitamins, minerals, and other nutrients to make up for known nutrient shortages in specific homegrown feedstuffs.

In addition, special ingredients in Vigortone promote digestion and assimilation of the feed.

A balanced ration encourages top feed conversion. Your cows simply are able to benefit more from a given amount of feed.

That's feed efficiency.

Vigortone dairy feeding programs help lower feed costs.

Vigortone offers a wide range of programs designed to increase the nutritional value of the homegrown feedstuffs you have on hand.

For example, you can save substantially on protein costs when you feed alfalfa hay and haylage by balancing the low phosphorous, high calcium content of these roughages with the right Vigortone dairy

Here are members appointed to Ag Preservation Board

LANCASTER — The Lancaster County Commissioners Wednesday approved the appointments of nine members to the newly formed Agricultural Preservation Board.

Board members serve staggered terms to a maximum of four years. Two members each were named to one, two, three, and four year terms. The ninth member is a County Commissioner.

The APB's makeup was deliberately chosen to represent a cross section of interests in the land use planning field.

Included are farmers, financial community representatives, professional planners, and a representative of the County Developers' Association.

Members are as follows:

Amos H. Funk, R 1 Millersville, is a well known vegetable farmer in the county. He will serve four years.

He is a member of the Lancaster County Conservation District Board of Directors. He recently was appointed by the Governor to serve on the state Conservation Commission.

He was appointed in 1967 to the State Agricultural Preservation Committee. Funk has been a driving force behind the deed restriction program proposed for Lancaster County.

Aaron Z. Stauffer, R 1 Ephrata, also has been active in County farmland preservation programs. He will serve three years.

A township supervisor in Ephrata Township, Stauffer also serves as Chairman of the Lancaster County Conservation District Board of Directors.

He is a member of the Agricultural Advisory Committee of the State Department of Environmental Resources.

Larry H. Skromme, 2150 Landis Valley Road, Lancaster, is a retired vice president of engineering for New Holland Machinery Company. He will serve four years.

He is a consultant on agricultural mechanization for the World Bank. He also serves as a member of the Farm and Home Foundation board.

Skromme was appointed to the State Agricultural Preservation Committee at the same time as Amos Funk.

Levi J. Fisher, Church Road, Bird-in-Hand, is an Amish farmer who often has been consulted on conservation matters.

His term of office will be for two years.

William H. Forrey, 2161 Brockton Road, Lancaster, is the president of the Lancaster County Developers' Association. He, too, will serve two years.

He is vice president of both Sherman & Walton Builders and of Reily, Sherman & Walton Realtors.

Forrey is vice president of the County Home Builders Association and serves as a member of the Manheim Township Planning Commission.

He also is on the Lancaster County Land Use Advisory Committee.

Charles S. Conrad, Jr., 1939 Millersville Pike,

Lancaster, is a registered architect and a member of the Pennsylvania State Planning Board. He will serve for three years.

He was chairman of the first Lancaster County Planning Commission.

He serves as a member of the County Land Use Advisory Committee and the County Sewer and Water Advisory Committee.

Paul B. Whipple, 2129 Stonecrest Drive, Lancaster, is a farmer who also is active in ag business. He was appointed for one year.

He is with the finance department of Pennfield Corporation and is an ex-manager of the Farm Credit office of the Federal Land Bank and Production Credit Association.

Phyllis Whitesell, 1311 Clayton Road, Lancaster, also was appointed for a one year term. She is a former president of the League of Women Voters.

The sole woman on the board, she also is a Land Use Advisory Committee director.

James E. Huber, Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, rounds out the members of the Agriculture Preserve Board.

He is a member of the Lancaster County Conservation District Board of Directors, a former chairman of the Manor Township Board of Supervisors, a former member of the County Planning Commission, and a former member of the County Sewer and Water Advisory Committee.

The terms of the several farmers, finance men, non-farmers and other specialty areas deliberately were staggered so the commission would not have all of the members of a single interest group leaving the Board at one time.

The group's first meeting is slated for this Wednesday, April 9, on the fifth floor of the County Courthouse in Lancaster. It will begin at 10:30, following the County Commissioners regular meeting.

regular meeting of the County Commissioners.

The Board is charged with the following responsibilities:

Development of sample deed restrictions;

Delineation of agricultural preserves, initially and on a continuing basis, in cooperation with the Lancaster County Planning Commission and other similar groups;

Education of the general public, and particularly potential participants, about the deed restriction program;

Provision of assistance to those farmland owners who wish to apply deed restrictions to their properties;

necessary procedures for obtaining deed restrictions;

Preparation of recommendations for legislation for a more effective deed restriction program;

And expansion of the deed restriction program when and if new legislation is passed.

Such work could begin in the near future in the following townships: Clay, with 141 farms; East Donegal, 146 farms; Elizabeth, 23 farms; Mt. Joy, 215 farms; Salisbury, 200 farms; Warwick, 16 farms; West Donegal, 42 farms; and West Hempfield, 74 farms.

Ephrata Township is not included in the above list since it needs an ordinance change, one which would limit development to one lot per 25 acres, or similar restriction.

Much of the Duffield soil in Ephrata Township is considered "hazardous" for typical septic systems with drainfields, so it is likely such a restriction could be inserted.

The appointment of the Ag Preserve Board is a result of the November 1978 appointment of an ag task force which was to make recommendations to the County Commissioners on how to stop the County's loss of farmland.

Lancaster County, at one time 92 percent farmland, today is about 60 percent farms. The County is losing land at the rate of 5000 to 6000 acres per year.

Deed restrictions in the current program would limit land to agricultural use and would prevent development for more intensive use.

The Board has two general goals. First, to obtain donated deed restrictions on as much farmland as possible, anywhere in Lancaster County.

Second, to obtain, for a sum of money, deed restrictions on as much farmland as possible within designated agricultural preserves. The townships listed above all have taken steps to form ag areas.

The Board recommended ag preserves contain at least 1000 acres and said they should be smaller only when necessary for preserving unusual areas or because of a substantial need for open space.

Ag preserves, the Board said, should include primarily Class I, Class II, and Class III land.

The voluntary restriction plan will allow a landowner to request a review of the deed restriction any time after 25 years from the date the deed restriction was placed on the property.

If the deed restriction is terminated, there must be a repayment to the County, based on any original payment by the County to the deedholder and according to policies to be established by the Commissioners.

In addition, in case of a severe hardship, there is a provision in the enabling legislation for an earlier review for termination of the deed restriction and possible repayment to the County.

It is the stated intent of the County Commissioners and the Ag Preserve Board that farmland protected by deed restrictions only be held as long as profitable farming is feasible.

The Board and Commissioners have recommended that, if necessary, a lead or agent bank be appointed to obtain the required funding in the form of loan commitments from a local financial institution in conformance with the Local Government Debt Act.

Jersey Breeders hold annual meet

BY JANE BRESEE
Staff Correspondent

EAST ATHENS — Jersey Breeders in Bradford County recently hosted the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club.

The weekend activities included the crowning of the 1980 Jersey queen and the state Jersey calf sale.

Tom Noble, president of the Bradford County Jersey Cattle Club opened the two-day affair with the Director's meeting last Friday at the East Athens Community Hall.

Following the dinner, the crowd of over 100 Jersey enthusiasts gathered to witness the Jersey Queen contest.

After the contest, Sam Williams, head of the Heifer Project International, was introduced and said that the Jerseys would be sent this year to the Dominican Republic. Jerseys are desirable there because they are adaptable to the warm weather, he explained.

Stanley Chittendon, president of the American Jersey Cattle Club, the main speaker, reviewed the history of the Jersey Cattle Club, closing with the promise that "not tomorrow, but someday we will get nutrient or protein pricing for Jersey milk".

The evening program was adjourned following slide pictures of the All-American Cattle Show shown and narrated by Earl Waltemyer, the trucker who took the Pennsylvania Jerseys to the show.

On Saturday morning, nearly 200 Jersey breeders attended the State Jersey Calf Sale at the farm of Eugene and Brian Harris near East Smithfield. The high calf sold for $1000, the average price was $650.

The weekend was climaxed after the noon meal when Denise Andrien, West Burlington, the 1979 Jersey Queen, passed her crown to Stephanie Kocker, Tioga County, the newly chosen queen.

During the business meeting, the state officers were renominated and elected as follows: Joe Shields, president; Bob Robinson, first vice-president; Joe Rheim, second vice-president; and Florence Robinson secretary-treasurer.

Franklin County cattle, hogs restricted after pesticide exposure

MERCERSBURG — The State Agriculture Department's Bureau of Animal Industry has restricted movement of cattle and hogs from 14 farms in the Mercersburg area.

State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell said the action was taken strictly as a precautionary measure, after minute levels of chlordane were found in milk and feed samples.

The 14 farms may have been exposed to contaminated barley, purchased at Dietrich's Mill in Mercersburg after February 20.

Hallowell said these farms are the only farms which may have been exposed to the affected barley.

Chlordane, a pesticide used for termite control was initially discovered in milk and feed samples on March 7. An intensive investigation was launched by the Bureau of Plant Industry in cooperation with the Food and Drug Administration.

The investigation led inspectors to Dietrich's Mill, and from there to the Carl Stuff farm which has been identified as the source of the contaminated barley. Dietrich's Mill received 7230 pounds of barley from the Stuff farm on February 20.

Inspectors, working in cooperation with the mill manager, compiled a listing of farms which drew barley from the exposed bin. Milk and feed samples were taken from these farms, and where evidence of chlordane was found, the Department immediately stopped the sale of milk.

Hallowell said the Bureau of Foods and Chemistry is continuing to monitor milk samples.

All farms had been released from stop sale orders on Friday, March 21 — the milk showed less than 3/10 parts per million of chlordane, the FDA tolerance level. Hallowell said the milk had been released for sale after consultation with the FDA.

The precautionary quarantine on the farms restricts the farmers from moving their livestock. This action prevents the sale of livestock which may be carrying chlordane above tolerance levels (in fat tissue).

The farmers have several options to secure release from the restriction. Animals may be sent to slaughter under permit from the Bureau of Animal Industry. A sample of carcass fat will be taken for testing, and the animal retained. If testing shows negative for chlordane, the quarantine will be released.

The farmers may also request their veterinarian to obtain a fat biopsy from a representative sample of the herd. Again, if test results are negative, the restriction will be lifted.

If animals on the farm area not tested, the quarantine will remain in effect until evidence suggests that chlordane has cleared the body fat.

Hallowell thanked all the individuals involved for their cooperation and concern, noting that the joint effort has "worked smoothly and effectively."

4-H clubs fill Lebanon Valley Mall

LEBANON — 35 Lebanon County 4-H Clubs showed the public about "4-H Today for a Better Tomorrow" at their annual 4-H Days at the Lebanon Valley Mall recently.

Festivities began on Friday evening with a Fashion Show and a Milking Contest, coordinated by Paul Miller. Guests of the 4-H'ers included: Nicholas Moehlmann, state representative; Clarence Manbeck, state senator; Harry Fisher and Ed Arnold, county commissioners; Tom Edkin, Lebanon councilman; Darwin Boyd, Hamilton Bank; Edgar J. Miller, People's National Bank; and Don Griffith, Lebanon mayor.

On display throughout the weekend were over 40 exhibits created by 4-H members and leaders. Of particular interest was the "4-H in Action" booth, coordinated by Annetta Showers. Here, 4-H'ers showed some of the projects that they do in 4-H such as making a solar hot dog cooker, cleaning tack, grooming steers, crocheting, and planting house plants.

A 4-H Fashion Show was held on Friday evening, and a pet dressing contest on Saturday afternoon featured youth teams dressing their pets in comical costumes. Prizes were supplied by the Lebanon Bologna Council.

The weekend activities were completed with Equestrian Fashions coordinated by Karen Kleiner.

4-H displays such as this one decorated the mall during the weekend activities. The purpose of the event, according to Linda Rohrbach, was to inform the public about 4-H and to encourage youth to join.

James Huber. The banner was recently purchased as a token of the appreciation from the FFA for the help that many young farmers have given FFA members since the Young Farmers Solanco Chapter began nineteen years ago.

Production awards were presented for dairy and corn enterprises judged upon results from DHIA records and corn contests conducted last growing season.

Robert L. Kauffman, Jr., received awards for high Holstein herd, high Holstein cow for milk and high Holstein cow for fat. Herd average for Kauffman was 19,153 pounds of milk and 715 pounds of fat. High cow finished with 28,298 pounds of milk and high cow for fat had 991 pounds.

William Arrowsmith took all three categories in Jersey cattle. His Jersey herd completed records of 11,786 pounds of milk and 555 pounds of fat. High cow for milk recorded 15,654 pounds and high Jersey for fat produced for Arrowsmith 758 pounds.

Donald Trimble's Brown Swiss took honors for high herd - 12,412 pounds of milk and 520 pounds of fat, high cow for milk - 18,437 pounds and high cow for fat - 751 pounds.

High Red and White Holstein Herd produced for Carl Herr 17,910 pounds of milk and 690 pounds of fat, High Red and White cow for milk - 23,661 pounds, and high Red and White for fat - 932 pounds.

P. Robert Wenger had the herd that improved the most in milk production over the past year and C. Dale Bollinger's herd was most improved in butterfat.

In the corn awards, Martin Greenleaf, Jr., was first in shelled corn with 164.8 bushels; second was H. Grant Troop with 162.2 bushels; third was Carl Kreider with 158.4 bushels. First in silage yield was Karl Herr with 26.3 tons per acre, second was Carl Kreider with 25.5 tons per acre; third was Edwin Harnish with 23.5 tons per acre.

Matthew Young was selected as the Outstanding Young Farmer under thirty and Paul Welk was chosen the Outstanding Young Farmer over thirty.

Dale Herr was named the most active young farmer.

William Fredd, retired vo-

ag teacher and former young farmer advisor, was honored with a plaque of appreciation for his contributions to the Solanco Young Farmers' Association.

Representative Armstrong told the group that the one bright spot on the economy is farming production.

"We have the competitive edge when it comes to the abundance and the variety of farm products we have in the United States," he said.

"We have a thirty billion dollar export market in farm products. Without it we would be in worse shape than we are now with the imbalance of trade; we are helping to pay for imported oil with our farm exports."

He broke down figures for Pennsylvania and Lancaster County pointing out that agriculture is the second leading industry in Pennsylvania with 59,000 farms in the state — 5,100 of them in Lancaster County. The state produces one billion dollars in dairy products, 113 million dollars in Lancaster County alone.

Stressing the geographic location of the state in relation to major Northeast United States population centers, Armstrong pointed out the state's advantage for marketing locally in light of rising transportation costs.

Concerned for the preservation of productive farmland in the state, Armstrong stated that 4.5 million more acres are under cultivation in the state than in any other northeastern state.

He outlined basic steps the State House has taken to promote agriculture.

Eliminating nuisance ordinances in the Right to Farm bill, considering revisions in inheritance tax laws to discourage selling off farmland, deed restriction laws, milk security funding, land condemnation board approval and land preservation comprehensive planning all attempt to keep agriculture possible, according to Armstrong.

WE'RE GROWING BETTER

Troop and Martin Greenleaf, Jr.

Agriculture itself, agribusiness and tourism all thrive in the County, especially the southern end, Armstrong added. Haphazard development will affect all of them.

"Farming is big business, it is complicated. One has to be on top of finances to survive," he cautioned.

Estate planning and proper wills can help, but farmers ought to be on top of genetics, marketing, legislation and politics as well, he added.

"As a nation we cannot continue to operate with big deficits. Our nation can turn things around, but cutbacks will be necessary," he concluded.

Tina Bucher, president of the Solanco FFA, presented the Young Farmers Banner to officers Victor Brinton, treasurer-secretary; James Huber, president; and Dale Herr, vice president. Advisor is Ron Althoff.

I've got the new hybrids you need to stay ahead.

Genetically engineered to outyield others, by enough to make a difference when you're fighting for every last dollar of profit.

Berks Horse Expo draws crowd of 2500

BY LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Staff Correspondent

READING — Equine enthusiasts converged on the Berks Penn State Campus, Student Learning Center, here recently to attend the 1980 Berks County Horse Exposition.

This popular day-long event offered something for everybody. Featured throughout the day were seminars given by various experts on topics ranging from Equine insurance to pasture management. Movies and slide presentations were also shown continuously about different breeds or educational topics, such as safety, saddle selections or health hints.

Approximately 40 exhibitors, commercial and clubs were also on hand, offering tips and displaying their wares.

Jane Wylie, Chester County Horse Leader, spoke on competitive trail riding. Wylie told her audience that the average back yard horse "can do it," but the horse must be fit, sound, and well shod. Wylie was speaking of a trail ride in which competitors cover five miles in about 45 minutes.

Small horses usually do better, which is why Arabian make good long distance competitors, Wylie explained. These horses are snorter, having less ribs than most breeds. Heavily muscled horses normally won't do well.

Pasterns should be set at a 45-degree angle on these horses, the audience was told. Hocks are also important in selecting a good trail competitor. They should not be placed too narrow or too wide apart, Wylie continued.

The horse should be exercised six days a week. They should be ridden over all types of terrain. She also challenged her audience to learn to trot a horse downhill.

Other subjects discussed during the day included the revival of carriage driving for pleasure, horse health care - worming, vaccinations, and teeth; Blue Marsh Lake - present and future; and the law and your horse.

The expo offered a horse bowl for youth in which 14 teams competed and an art contest as well. Winning the "People's Choice Award" for the art contest was Kelly Finnegan, Lansdale, a student of Kutztown State College. Elaine Schelgel, Mohnton, was awarded the Berks County Equine Council Letterhead Award for her art work.

Climaxing the entire day of horse bowl competition was the winning team Antietam Hoofbeats. Members of this team included Steve Imes, Fleetwood; Kerry Schwoyer, Fleetwood; Lori James, Leesport; and Lois Tomoskeski, Reading.

Second place was Berks Blue. Team members were Betsy Heist, Sinking Spring; JoLyn Wagner, Reading; Jill Todd, Sinking Spring; and Jane Osborne, Leesport. Third place went to Berks White, which consisted of Bonnie Troutman, Sinking Spring; Pierre Chadwick, Reading; Babsi Neidhardt, Denver; and Jean Koller, Shillington.

Placing fourth were the Spurs and Burrs. Team members were Gretchen and Kendra Vanderford, Martha Willard, and Bonnie Hottle, all of Bucks County.

Clyde Myers, Berks County Extension Agent said that approximately 2500 people attended the expo this year, making it the largest turnout for this event in its four year history.

Fischer, Hoffman say April best for Egg Month

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, April 5, 1980—A27

HARRISBURG — On receiving the official proclamation that April has been given the title of Egg Month by the Governor, John Hoffman, Executive Director of the Pa. Poultry Federation and Paul Fischer, President of the Pa. Egg Marketing Association agreed that this is the best month possible for such a designation.

The reasoning behind their statement is logical. They explained that the egg industry builds up a surplus of eggs in order to be ready for the heavy demands for eggs that are traditional around Easter.

"After the holiday, there are usually surpluses and depressed prices, so we are hoping this will help keep the consumption of eggs high," said Hoffman. "This will help make the egg producer less vulnerable to the effects of surpluses."

"The egg is an all around product, not just an April value," said Fischer. "They're a bargain at $1.09 or even $1.29, which the consumers don't have to pay for a dozen of eggs."

Fischer went on to say that the months from May to July are generally the slow egg months. He pointed out that consumers see a lot of specials at that time of year. "We have young flocks then, and good production."

The proclamation of April as Egg Month will go hand in hand with the producers attempts to promote their own industry through advertising check-offs.

According to Fischer, the current federal check-off rate is going to be increased to 7½ cents per case if passed by the Senate. He added that the proposed increase has already gone through the House. Fischer said that 84 percent of the nation's producers are in favor of the increase because they realize they need to promote their product to increase per capita consumption.

Hoffman pointed out that in the past two years, egg consumption has increased, stopping the twenty year trend for consumption fall-off. He noted that the number of eggs eaten per person per year has risen to 281 eggs. These eggs, he explained, were mostly in processed foods or used in cakes, pasta and other cooking.

The fact that consumption of eggs has been falling off since the 1960's is a reflection of the nation's eating habits, said Fischer. "People don't eat breakfast anymore," he said.

"We're trying to recapture some of the market and not put all of our eggs in one basket," said Hoffman, "so we're trying to get more people to think of eggs for lunch and supper."

Hoffman, who joined the poultry federation after having been employed by a medical association, pointed out that eggs are the most natural source of protein available without additives, and for the lowest price.

He noted about six years ago cholesterol in eggs and other foods was considered to be a hazard to a person's health by most people in the medical fields. "Right now there is a controversy in the scientific community—more

April is Pa. Egg Month

BY SHEILA MILLER
HARRISBURG — April is officially Pennsylvania Egg Month.

In ceremonies at the Governor's Mansion on Wednesday morning, Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell read Governor Dick Thornburgh's proclamation to over 70 poultry people and friends of the industry.

Accepting the official proclamation from the PDA Secretary were Paul Fischer, President of the Pennsylvania Egg Marketing Association, and John Hoffman, Executive Director of the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation.

This is the first time a month has been officially set apart in honor of the egg industry, although there have been similar informal designations in the past, said Hoffman.

In his March 24, 1980 proclamation, the Governor referred to the egg as one of nature's most perfect foods. He proudly announced Pennsylvania producers are ranked third in the nation in the production of table eggs, with 3.4 billion eggs with a price tag of $140 million attached.

The Governor also pointed out the egg's relative inexpense and nutritive value, stating egg prices have remained fairly stable for the past twenty years.

He proclaimed April as the Commonwealth's Egg Month so that people could become more aware of the value of this Pennsylvania product—part of the Pennsylvania Agriculture—We're Growing Better campaign.

There were plenty of puns at the Governor's brunch, with Deputy Secretary of Agriculture starting off the ceremonies with "We're 'egg'cited to be here".

Vicky Wass, the state's egg promotion specialist, told the group she has renamed the month of April to 'Egg'pril.

Even Eggatha, the mascot of the egg industry, cracked up at that idea.

On hand for the ceremonies was the American Egg Marketing Board's regional promotion coordinator, Valerie Heine.

Vicky Wass commemorated the day by giving Ukrainian eggs to Ginny Thornburgh, the Commonwealth's First Lady. The beautiful hand-dyed eggs were also presented to Secretary Hallowell and Valerie Heine.

Bright yellow tee shirts, advertising the incredible, edible egg, were given to Ginny Thornburgh, Secretary Hallowell, and his two deputies, Chet Heim and Luther Snyder by Wass.

After the formal ceremonies got April Egg Month underway, the Governor's guests were invited to a brunch that featured quiche, a dish made with—what else—eggs.

John Hoffman, Executive Director of the Pa. Poultry Federation, center, and Paul Fischer, President of the Pa. Egg Marketing Assoc., right, accept the Governor's official proclamation for April Egg Month from Secretary Hallowell.

doctors are learning about nutrition by taking courses, and they're getting the proper information," Hoffman said. "Unfortunately, this hasn't filtered down to the general practitioners yet."

Fischer, who is an egg broker in Lancaster County, gave his idea of a complete breakfast for people on the go. "Take an egg and orange juice. Mix them in the blender and make an orange eggnog—it's complete, down to the Vitamin C." SM

Brief answers to short questions

Sheila's Shorts

By Sheila Miller

Just in time for Easter, the last of my column series on evaluating meat quality will deal with lambs.

It seems this time of year is traditionally the season for preparing leg of lamb, although the meat is becoming more popular for any occasion and season.

As in the pork industry, selecting high quality lamb carcasses is based on finding the most lean meat. A tremendously heavy carcass, if the weight is the result of a heavy fat finish, is not a salable product at the meat counter. Rather, the meat grader looks for carcasses with the highest cutability, or meatiness, in the preferred cuts of lamb.

Similar to the desired cuts in pork, the cuts that are most popular in lamb are the leg, loin, rack, and shoulders.

A carcass with a normal amount of finish, or fat covering, will appear bluish over the back, leg and shoulder. This muscle coloring showing through the fat indicates a small amount of fat will have to be trimmed away.

Some fat is needed on the carcasses to prevent a lot of shrinkage when the lamb is kept in coolers for any length of time.

According to the National Livestock and Meat Board, the ideal finish on a lamb carcass will be one-tenth of an inch of fat over the center of the muscle called the rib eye, or lamb chop area. The rest of the carcass should have a uniform amount of fat covering, with little over the areas where fat is usually laid down first—the flank, and back.

To insure adequate muscling, the NLMB tells consumers the legs should be "plump, wide, thick, and reasonably long in the meaty cushion area." They point out that research indicates the amount of muscle in the leg is a good indicator of the amount of muscle in the rest of the lamb carcass.

Another indicator of meatiness is the width across the lamb's back, or across the rack and loin. The broader the back, generally, the larger the lamb chops will be. But care has to be taken to be sure that what you see as width is not actually a build up of excess fat.

When you look at a lamb carcass hanging on the rail, how do you know if it will be tasty? Although the proof is in the post, a good indicator of quality can be seen by the trained eye.

If the carcass is cut at the rib to expose the ribeye muscle, you can examine the meat for color, marbling, and texture. In an unribbed carcass, it is impossible to actually see the lean meat, (Turn to Page A39) agriculture, or R-1— low residential.

At the time the zoning was set up in the township, Ada Reigle stated she missed seeing the notice in the papers and was unaware of the township's designation of the airport as agriculture or their later amendment of the area to R-1.

Reigle said they were advised by the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation's air traffic division that they should file a petition to have the zoning changed.

What the new zoning of the airport would involve is creating an airport hazard area. This has neighboring farmers and landowners nervous and worried—so worried that over 50 of them turned out for the Wednesday evening hearing.

The purpose of the new zoning, according to Reigle's attorney, is to insure the maximum compatibility of land use to air traffic on the airport land and the surrounding areas.

The plan calls for a designated area 2000 feet long, extending from the end of the runway and fanning out at an angle of 15 degrees on both sides.

Reigle explained this fan shaped area is to allow for wind drift carrying planes to either side of the runway approach area when there is a strong cross wind. No tall buildings or high antennae would be allowed to be built in these areas because they would create a hazard for the airplanes and jeopardize the safety of the pilots.

Specifically, no permanent structure could be located higher than 35 feet in the hazard area. And starting at the end of the runway, structures could not exceed one foot in height for every 20 foot of set-back distance.

The new zoning plan calls for any operation emitting dust or smoke in the hazard zone to be prohibited. And, it requires any radio or electrical device to be approved by the Federal Communications Commission within the hazard district.

Reigle pointed out there are zoning requirements spelled out in the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation's Blue Book, the 1972 edition of the Bureau of Aviation's Pennsylvania Laws Relating to Aviation, Act 120 passed in May, 1970.

The owner of the airport, which was built in 1943, said the zoning won't affect existing structures. He added he needs to protect his airport from the suburban sprawl that is occurring in the Palmyra area and noted the changes in land use since the 1940's.

Reigle, who's been flying for about 40 years, says he is allowed a 10:1 glide ratio by Federal Aviation laws. This means that at 1000 feet from the end of the runway, nothing should be at an elevation of 100 feet above the ground to interfere with take offs and landings.

Ada Reigle said she fails to see why farmers in the area are upset. "We've been flying since before 1945, and we're going to continue to be flying."

But farmers are upset. One farm family that's especially worried is Herold and Gladys Brandt. Fifty acres of their farm lie within the hazard zone, with the fan shaped wedge falling between their house and barn.

They are concerned about the effects this planning change may eventually have on their property. Since they learned about the hearing and the proposed changes on March 15 after they read the notice in the local paper, the Brandts have gotten over 70 signatures on a petition opposing the proposed zoning.

The Brandts said they are afraid that the new zoning would limit their ability to keep their farm in agriculture. Brandt explained his family has owned the farm since about 1832, and he was born and raised there.

Since the airport was built, he said there have been numerous incidents which have given him cause to be alarmed.

He stated that 75 percent of the time, the airplanes fly directly over his buildings, and sometimes the planes are lower than his barn—less than 35 feet high. He added the noise of the single engine planes keeps he and his wife from sitting outside a lot in the summer time, so they stay inside the house.

He recalled a time when the airport was having parachuting shows and the chute of one of the jumpers failed to open. Luckily the emergency chute opened and he floated between Brandt's house and barn, narrowly missing the electric wire running between the two buildings.

"The jumper hit our tree and landed in my wife's peony bush. She had just put metal stakes in to support the plant, and when I got to the man his eyes were rolling. One of the stakes had gone between his head and the helmet, but fortunately he wasn't even scratched," Brandt said.

Another time, he recalled a homemade airplane made by the Reigles was being given a test flight by the Reigles' son. "Normally the plane was just taken up and right down, but this time he came sputtering around my barn. The engine konked out and the plane came down in my wheat field, clipping the power line off the insulator with the landing gear," he said.

Brandt retired from farming in 1972 due to his health. He now leases the farm to Donald Hoffer.

When asked if the airplanes bothered him, Hoffer said the first few years he was farming the Brandt farm were somewhat frightening. "When I was out in the combine and saw a shadow coming over my head, it was a little scary," he said.

Hoffer keeps about 30 head of replacement heifers in the Brandt barn. He said he worries when he first brings them to the farm because he's afraid the planes might scare them and they'll stampede through the fence.

Hoffer said he's concerned that, because of the zoning, Brandts might sell out, and he can't afford to lose the farm and still pay his bills.

He said that if all goes well in the future he might like to buy the farm, but not if he couldn't put up a silo if it exceeded 35 feet tall.

Joe Eckenrode told the board of supervisors that they should be more concerned with getting proper lighting at the ends of the runway. He told the group of an incident where one of his grain trucks had to come to a complete stop on Route 117, located on the east side of the runway, because a plane was coming in too low for a landing.

A neighboring farmer on the east side of Route 117, also in the hazard zone, said she's afraid the zoning will hurt the resale value of her farm. Even though she would like to see it always stay in farming, she said, the zoning would make selling it for industrial development an impossibility.

It was pointed out that the airport zoning affects mostly the land owned by those people who didn't request the zoning change. The hazard areas involve 2000 feet off either end of the 2300 foot long runway.

The Brandt attorney asked the township supervisors to keep in mind that neither Reigle nor Brandt has any more right for the township's consideration, and both have competing interests.

The Reigle's attorney admitted there would need to be some changes to the wording of the proposed zoning amendment, as brought out by the public's feelings and statements.

The supervisors have tabled their burden of decision until May 21, 1980, when Case #9-79 will go before the local planning commission.

In minimum till corn... "Banvel[®] does a better job."

Wayne McGinnis, White Hall, MD

"Since we started using Banvel[®] herbicides six or seven years ago, we hardly ever see morningglory anymore. We get very good control of thistle. Compared to 2,4-D, Banvel does a better job. It gives a broader range of control of some of the more resistant broadleaves." Wayne McGinnis, White Hall, MD 600-700 acres of corn

"Go in with a half-pint of Banvel and a half-pint of 2,4-D. With Banvel, control has been excellent. Since we started this program, we just don't see weeds at harvest." Fred Duncan, Broad Run, VA 1000 acres of corn

"Old 2,4-D has been a standby for years. But Banvel herbicide with 2,4-D gives much better control. With Banvel herbicide and 2,4-D we're getting weeds we did not get with 2,4-D alone. Banvel herbicide looks like the most economical way to control problem weeds." John 'Buddy' Burner, Luray, VA 150-200 acres of corn

"Canada thistle is our biggest problem. We went to Banvel herbicide because we got twisted corn with 2,4-D. You have more tolerance with the weather. Banvel is a lot safer than the old 2,4-D." Breck Debnam, Chestertown, MD 2400 acres in corn Successful minimum-till corn producers depend on Banvel[®] herbicide to stop tough, resistant, late emerging broadleaf weeds such as seedling Canada thistle, morningglory, pigweed and lambsquarter. Tank-mixed with atrazine, Banvel knocks out hosenettle or combined with 2,4-D, it will stop velvetleaf, Canada thistle and many more.

Follow the lead of other successful Banvel users who have learned that Banvel herbicide is a much needed "success" ingredient for higher minimum-till corn yields.

three percent. But producers had indicated last January that they would be up ten percent," he said.

"With the drop in market prices last Fall, the producers then indicated no increase in farrowing intentions, but the numbers of sows slaughtered never showed that the producers were doing what they indicated—cutting back."

Moore stated the March report shows the producers didn't cut back, but increased instead. "We were hoping for a few more months of heavy slaughter. So for the rest of the year now we will have hogs coming out of our ears," he said.

The fact that sows raised an average of 7.2 pigs per litter this past winter because of the mild weather and low mortality will not help the year's second half. "These pigs will be showing up as extras in the June through August and September markets," said Moore.

But Moore's predictions were not totally gloomy. The Penn State economist sees prices in the range of 40 cents to 42 cents in the second half of 1980. He said the pork industry is banking on the price of beef dropping.

The current slump, Moore said, is part of the cyclic trend for hogs that runs in cycles of four to five years—two good and two bad. He said he looks for the second half of 1981 to be a complete shift in the hog market, with prices turning up.

Moore pointed out the slump producers find themselves in now is just a delay of the expected drop in price that never happened one and a half years ago. "It would have come earlier if the hog prices would have been worse last Fall," he said, "but they didn't go low enough to get producers to reduce their numbers."

The economist stated he feels the pork industry would have been better off if the slump would have happened sooner because of the pessimism surrounding the economy.

"Last Fall people were buying pork because it was $1 cheaper per pound than beef. But with inflation, the recession and the stock market going to pieces, the consumers are pulling in their horns," said Moore.

One Lancaster County pork producer and the president of the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council, Abe Fisher, Kinzers, views the hog market as "pretty poor."

"It always seems our sows are doing their best whenever the prices are the lowest," said the manager of Jet-Age Hogs.

Fisher said he is aware the packers are full of pork—24 percent more in cold storage than last year. "They can't sell it—and with the prices the producers are getting for the hogs they market, it's like having a fire sale."

He noted that every Spring and Fall producers expect a "run" on the market, but this year's prices are low despite the fact that 26 percent more hogs are being killed this year than last year.

Fisher added that a hog producer who wants to ride out the current low prices won't be able to because he expects the low prices to continue for the next 30 to 60 days. "You can't hold them that long for 29 cents," he said.

The best thing for hog producers to do is to go to the grocery store managers and try to get them to put on campaigns to sell more pork, Fisher added. But, he said with a sigh, "Even that won't help because people aren't spending money. And when they cut back, the first place they cut is the groceries—and the first food to stay out of the cart is meat."

Fisher attributes the current dilemma to President Carter's policy on inflation-fighting. "He's trying to cause a recession as quickly as possible by tightening credit, so that he can pull us out of it by election time this November—but I don't think he's going to make it."

Dennis Grumbine, president of the Pennsylvania Swine Cooperative, is another hog producer who is concerned with the price of pork these days.

As a purebred Hampshire breeder, Grumbine said he is afraid if hog producers try to ride out the slump by holding their hogs for a better price they will be defeating what breeders have been trying to achieve for years—lean, meaty hogs.

"Some breeds can carry the additional weight without putting on excess trim," he said, "but most hogs, after they reach the 225 to 235 pound mark, put on grease. This is not a saleable product."

He added the heavy hogs will have an adverse affect on the market when they are finally trucked.

Grumbine stated that what the hog industry needs is $4 corn. "If corn's high, you don't have cheap hogs." But he noted the grain embargo turned the price of grain down which hurt the commodities.

The Lebanon County hog producer stated that the commodities are controlled to a large degree by what is read in the Wall Street Journal.

A Berks County farmer and the agricultural lending officer for Lebanon Valley National Bank agrees with Grumbine. Just recently in the hog business, Michael Firestone said he believes it's a paper market.

He was referring to a news release that appeared in the Wall Street Journal on March 21st. This story was a summary of the March Pig Crop report by the USDA and said there were more hogs than previously estimated. It went on to say the days of cheap pork will be around longer than expected.

"This caused people to panic, and by 10 a.m. Monday the market dropped to 29 cents. Farmers were sending off hogs at about 190 pounds and cleaning house rather than feeding them to 225 pounds," Firestone said.

Ironically, he noted, the Wall Street Journal of March 20th ran a story of the hog supply thought to be available, based on the intentions of farmers last Fall, and stated the high cost of raising hogs made farmers cut their herds and young pigs. With the expected slaughter, prices were

Home milk deliveries to end

LANCASTER — The announced cessation of home deliveries beginning on Friday by Penn Dairies will have no effect on dairy farmers supplying milk to the Lancaster County dairy.

There has been a steady decline in the number of home-delivery customers, according to Nancy Frankhouser, of Penn Dairies, which represents only a very small percentage of overall dairy operations.

The level of home deliveries has declined to a point where only three drivers were handling the weekly route.

predicted to stay low for a few months, but rise by the end of the year.

The next day's news story, which crushed any hopes gleaned from reading the future predictions the day before, was the last straw for many hog producers.

Hogs were shipped by the hundreds, and the prices plummeted towards what appears to be a bottomless market.

In an informal area survey, it was found that just about every agricultural real estate representative has at least one tale of frustration to relate on behalf of a client.

Here are a couple of them:

They've built up a sizable dairy herd and have the machinery necessary for their operation.

Reviewing their situation, they decided it was time to buy a farm of their own.

Six months ago, they found the right farm. It suited their present needs and provided opportunity for future expansion. Financing was approved through the Farmers Home Administration.

But the owner had multiple sales agreements and decided to sell to another buyer, who purchased the complete package of farm, livestock and machinery.

Recently, Mark and Joan found another suitable farm. But in the intervening few months, FHA money has disappeared. It's not expected to be available for at least a year, and possibly even longer.

They're caught in the quandary of waiting out the FHA fiscal crunch or seeking other financing at higher interest rates. And there are no guarantees, it will be available.

For the time being, the Central Pennsylvania couple will continue to rent, waiting and wondering when they can begin farming on land they can call their own.

Another farm real estate representative has a customer in southeastern Pennsylvania with a slightly different predicament, but the same end result.

John has a home appraised at $95,000 and owes $25,000 on it. Additionally, he owns two cars, 1978 and 1979 models, free of debt and is able to make a sizable cash downpayment on a small farm he'd like to buy.

But bank financing has been refused, citing the lack of improvements made on the farming property.

According to many in the farm real estate business, lending institutions have adopted a very selective policy regarding financing mortgages.

They've become not only selective concerning who they will deal with, but also concerning what properties they are willing to finance.

One of the keys to successful purchases of agricultural property in recent months is the willingness of the owner to assist the buyer with financing.

Installment sales, not only help the buyer obtain financing, but can be of tax benefit to the seller.

Most real estate representatives agree that the current tight money situation is expected to be temporary, but no one has any clear crystal ball to look into to see when an easing may begin.

Later this year is the most frequently quoted forecast currently.

"Take another look in October," one spokesman said, "right before the election."

High demand for farms is expected to continue, particularly in dairying.

"Those black and whites have paid off more farms than anything else," one real estate representative, who has been in the business all of his life, said.

Also, at least one unqualified bright spot was found in the current agricultural real estate market.

It's in a specialty segment of the overall market, outside the strict realm of production agriculture. But it gives a definite indication of the continuing basic soundness in land investment.

"Business is better than ever and has just been booming since the first of the year," one member of the real estate community said.

He specializes in finding agricultural properties, primarily horse farms, for urban professional customers solely interested in buying for investment purposes

"When money is tight, these properties become even more attractive investments," he said.

He pointed to the time-honored, often-quoted investment adage.

When the savers are saving, that's the time to buy.

When the savers are buying, that's the time to wait.

Milk support price increased to $12.06

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The support price for milk was raised from $11.22 to an estimated $12.06 per hundredweight on April 1, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland said.

The action, announced following a meeting of the commodity Credit Corporation board of directors, is required by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977. That law specifies that in the milk support price by adjusted to reflect any change in the parity index (index of prices paid by farmers, interest, taxes and wage rates) in the first six months of the marketing year.

The support price was last set on Oct. 1, 1979, at $11.22 per hundredweight for milk of 3.5 percent milkfat.

In the first five months of the marketing year the index increased 6.5 percent and a further increase in the index is expected in March, enough to result in the increase of approximately 85 cents in the support price for milk.

The $12.06 price announced is an estimate and is expected to be about 79 percent of parity on April 1. The exact support price and CCC purchase prices for butter, cheese and nonfat dry milk will be announced later.

The support price increase is equivalent to about eight cents per gallon of fluid milk and although market prices of the dairy products have already started to rise toward the expected new prices, the full effect of the increase will be to raise wholesale and retail prices by about nine cents per pound for butter and cheese and 4.5 cents per pound for nonfat dry milk.

The price at which CCC will offer dairy products for sale for unrestricted use will continue to be 105 percent of the purchase price for these commodities. However, for September 1980 the sell-back prices will be increased to approximately the projected purchase prices to be in effect after the new support price is announced for 1980-81 marketing year beginning October 1.

There will be no change in the manufacturing margins used in calculating the purchase price for butter, cheese and nonfat dry milk.

Incredible eggs make way to Governor's Mansion

HARRISBURG — In honor of April Egg Month, Vicki Wass, Pennsylvania Egg Promotion Specialist, presented Ginny Thornburgh, the Commonwealth's First Lady, with a special egg. The egg was a beautifully decorated Ukrainian egg created by Ron Markvan.

According to Markvan, it took him about six hours to complete the intricate task. This is his eighth season for making the colorful eggs, an art he said he was taught by his roommate while a student at the Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

Markvan recently taught a course in Ukrainian egg-painting, or as he corrected, egg-dyeing. His class consisted of folks ranging in age from 11 years old to 81. "When they came into the course, they thought they could never do it, but by the fourth week they were creating beautiful eggs," he said.

The egg-artist said that he is not in the least bit artistically talented and claims to have an unartistic background. But he turns out egg shells with traditional Ukrainian designs that would rival the canvas of many famous painters.

Instead of a paint brush, Markvan uses a tool called a kistka to create his masterpieces. The wooden tool is used to apply beeswax to the shell of a fresh egg.

The art of egg-dyeing, or pysanky, begins with sketching a design on the egg shell with a pencil, said Markvan. Using the lead markings as a guide, all areas to remain white are covered with beeswax, using the kistka.

Ukrainian pysanky add another dimension to the versatile egg.

Then the egg is dipped in dyes, beginning with the lighter colors and ending with dark blue or black for the background. Markvan said he starts with yellow, and after that color dries, he adds orange and red, covering the areas not to be colored with wax every stage of the way.

After the last color is added to the egg, the beeswax is melted off. To do this, Markvan carefully holds the egg beside the flame of a candle. He stressed the egg should not be held too close, otherwise the eggshell would be scorched by the flame.

One the wax is melted off, the egg is completed. But, said Markvan, a layer of varnish painted over the egg gives it a gloss and will keep the colors bright for years.

Why go to all the trouble of dyeing the eggs? Markvan says it is customary for Ukrainians to present them as gifts to friends and relatives. He said he finds it a relaxing hobby after he returns from a day of work at the Beaver County Mental Health and Retardation Office.

What happens to the inside of the fresh egg? They dry up after a while, Markvan said. He pointed out he does not try to blow the insides of the egg out because he's afraid he'll crush the egg. "After doing all that work, I wouldn't want to take that chance," he said.

Markvan, who lives in Ron Markvan, Ambridge, visited the Governor's Mansion on Wednesday, in honor of April Pa. Egg Month, bringing with him his collection of decorated eggs.

Ambridge, near Pittsburgh, said he uses commercial dyes when creating this pysanky. Originally in Europe, he explained, the dyes were made from berries, grasses, roots, and onion skins. "Red onion skins would make red dye and yellow onions would be used for yellow colors. Of course they weren't strong colors."

The talented egg decorator has a personal collection of over thirty of his best creations. When asked which was his favorite, he said the goose egg because it took him the longest time — 13 hours — to complete.

To use a phrase adopted by the American Egg Board, Markvan's eggs are truly "incredible", but as he points out, not too edible.—SM

Lancaster Swine Producers to hold show/sale

NEW HOLLAND — The Lancaster County Swine Producers Association will be holding their annual feeder pig show and sale on April 8th, announced Gary Dean, president.

The event will be held at the New Holland Sales

Stables, with the judging beginning at 4 p.m. followed by the sale at 6:30 p.m.

According to Dean, pigs will be in pens of six according to their weight. There will be three weight classes, ranging from 30 pounds to 75 pounds.

The county president said there will be five placings in each class. He pointed out that exhibitors are limited to two winners per weight class.

"There will be many high quality pigs at the sale for 4-H and FFA summer projects," Dean concluded.

Beef drop temporary

UNIVERSITY PARK — Although the beef prices have dropped in the past two weeks, Penn State economist Louis Moore says that this is only a temporary trend.

He predicts the price per pound will go up for feeder cattle because the numbers of animals will remain low for the next four to five years.

The 1980 figures on cattle numbers are 16 percent lower than 1976, which has caused the depletion of beef in the meat industry, said Moore.

The amount of beef eaten per person in the U.S. has dropped as a result to 100 pounds in 1979. This is considerably lower than the 1976 per capita consumption which was 129 pounds.

"Beef supply has been rationed by its high prices," said Moore.

The drop in fat cattle prices temporarily reflects the total economy and its runaway gas prices, Moore concluded.

Seifert, comptroller of the Co-op, explained that the plan provided for a price per hundredweight contribution which accumulated in common stock.

The amount was somewhat flexible, but had a ceiling of about 25 cents.

While the bylaws have been altered over the years, in the late 1960s, the basic membership arrangement was an initial purchase of two shares of common stock (that is still required of new shippers).

Participation in the retain program allowed a maximum of 40 shares of common stock. Then the retain was converted to the purchase of preferred stock.

So, someone who began shipping milk to the dairy in 1973 would have only a few shares of common stock and likely no shares of preferred stock.

But someone who shipped to the dairy for many years might have a considerable number of shares just by participating in the program.

Since 1974, shippers also have been required to make a per hundredweight contribution but that is considered membership dues and no return on that contribution is expected.

Seifert suggested that the management of the dairy in the 1960s may have promoted the sale of the stock by encouraging a bandwagon atmosphere. Farmers invested, they told their families to invest, and employees invested.

"I don't think the employees are angry," a dairy spokesman said, "but they are disappointed."

If the Co-op declares bankruptcy, preferred and common shareholders will receive nothing. The current plan will give preferred shareholders 15 cents on the dollar and common shareholders nothing.

One dairy official said the 15 cents may be the best return shareholders will ever receive. Even if the dairy were to increase its value in upcoming years, inflation would probably offset that gain.

A profile of the 4000 shareholders, that is how many are ex-shippers, employees, or institutions, was not available.

Officials do know that only eight percent of the preferred stock is held by current shippers. The remaining 92 percent is described as "outside interests."

Seifert said it would be difficult to pinpoint any specific reason for the financial slide the Co-op took in the early 70s. It may have begun as early as 1964 with the purchase of Martin Century Farms, primarily a home delivery business.

Within 10 years, home delivery was nearly extinct and Lehigh was faced with a $2.7 million loss on that deal alone.

In 1974 the Co-op paid $5.2 million in overdistributions which resulted in a major assessment to shippers and the loss of many members.

There also was the $3 million cheese plant which started operation in 1974.

Stock in neither of the two new proposed companies will be traded on the open market. Only shippers to the proposed Lehigh Valley Farmers will hold one share of common stock valued at $10.

Shareholders in Atlantic Processing, Inc. will be limited to Lehigh Valley Farmers, initially. However, the structure does allow for other co-ops, not individuals, to invest in the future. See accompanying story.

Sheep meeting Thursday

LANCASTER — A Lancaster County sheep producers meeting will be held Thursday, April 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the basement meeting room at the Farm and Home Center.

Clair Engle, Sheep Extension Specialist from Penn State, will lead the discussion on good sheep feeding and management. He will also discuss the handling and marketing of the wool clip.

The sheep enterprise continues to be a very successful farm industry, when properly managed. There will be a question and answer period.

Why Lehigh refinancing plan may work

BY CURT HARLER

BALTIMORE, Md. — The refinancing of Lehigh Valley Milk Producers Cooperative seems to be hinged on two factors: the lack of better alternatives, and a hope of success for Atlantic Processing, Inc. which may eventually involve participation by other co-ops.

Although there are no deals in the wings, Lehigh may take a partner or partners, which would give them joint control of the proposed processing entity.

Both Lehigh President Robert Barry and Bank for Cooperatives Senior Vice President C.F. Dickson agreed the Atlantic Processing, Inc. proposal is structured so such joint ownership could happen. But both emphasized there is no other entity waiting in the wings to take a piece of the API action.

The Baltimore Bank for Cooperatives, which has agreed to the terms of the Lehigh refinancing proposal, is banking on the idea's success to the tune of several millions of dollars.

While admitting the Bank is not agreeing to the rosiest of all possible propositions, Dickson pointed out, "We don't have the rosiest deal as it stands today."

But to help Lehigh Valley with its restructuring, the Baltimore Bank is willing to retire $3 million in stock.

At book value, Lehigh has an equity of about $2.3 million. Some of that stock was to be retired 10 years, 9 years, 8 years, and so on in the future.

Since the Baltimore Bank would be buying the stock back today rather than in the future, it is losing some money.

The Bank figures it is buying back the stock at a discount figure of 80 percent of value since Lehigh needs cash to negotiate with its preferred stockholders.

Because of the added risk, the Baltimore Bank is charging Lehigh one half percent more interest than its normal rate.

The rate, at current charges, would be 14.25 percent.

The Lehigh proposal calls for creation of two new businesses. The first, to be known as Lehigh Valley

Farmers, would be strictly a bargaining co-op, owning no plants, property or equipment.

The second would be Atlantic Processing, Inc., which would assume all the debts of Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farmers. That comes to nearly $20 million.

Barry pointed out Thursday night that API will be a co-op with a single member: Lehigh.

"From the producer's standpoint, they will have a more viable conduit to process milk," Dickson said of API.

Lehigh has told members they eventually can buy back all of the stock in API. While this option does exist, there are other alternatives.

A voters trust will be established and will be held for the farmers. Present Lehigh directors will capitalize API at the nominal rate of $20,000.

Those directors will hold the stock in trust for Lehigh farmers. This assures the directors will not make a profit if Lehigh or any of several other entities buys the stock in the future.

Therein lies an out for Lehigh and perhaps another big hope for the eventual success of API.

The stock may be sold to other cooperatives looking for a piece of the processing action as well as being sold back to the newly formed Lehigh Valley Farmers.

"Others can acquire ownership in API," Dickson confirmed.

"It could be spun off."

Dickson said this feature should strengthen API and makes the entire package more attractive.

While he noted Lehigh has improved operationally, he said the Bank sees the entire deal as another step in the long journey back.

"If the membership in A.V. votes to accept another member, that is legitimate," Barry said. "The possibility of increasing the volume of milk certainly is one thing that would make the business more profitable."

This increase likely would come from added milk flow from another co-op which wanted to participate.

At the moment, Lehigh has no other co-op lined up. In fact, were such a deal being made behind the scenes, it could be illegal.

"There is no discussion of that at all right now," Dickson stated.

But Lehigh, as the sole stockholder could in the future vote in other co-ops. "At some time there could be three, four or five co-ops involved," Barry said.

At that time the members of Lehigh will not control it and will not hold API, he pointed out. They will have sold it.

Barry said the current negotiations have been developed over the past six months.

Only the future will tell if some other entity wants to join in the API proposal, Dickson said.

"We think Lehigh is a vital cog in maintaining orderly milk marketing in the Northeast," he added, indicating that the Bank believes dairying will be better off if Lehigh survives.

And to that end, the Baltimore Bank for Cooperatives obviously is willing to put quite a bit of money where its mouth is.

SUPERIOR FERTILIZER WILL BE MADE FROM CITY SEWAGE AND GARBAGE using a highly proven composting formula from Dr. Herbert Webber, Telford, PA, a famous biologist. ECONOMIC CONDITIONS DEMAND THRIFT

The extremely high producing Ream's program (and high quality too) proves that most farmers waste money buying potash every year but should use more phosphorus if it is natural like ours, which comes direct from the mines by rail. This soft rock phosphate is only $80 per ton bulk, $90 spread locally, $90 in bags at our warehouse. A real buy because there is no blending expense yet it is just what you need. High in minerals which produces very nutritious crops, very disease and insect resistant, strong stalks and root systems, better standability. Do you like to pick up "down" corn? This phosphate also lasts long. Doesn't dissipate! Ask about our good program. Our happy customer list is growing. They see a better future in the program because of the inflation of chemicals, diseases and bugs.

Over One Million Lancaster County Birds
Have Proven

Bio-Mittent™ Lighting Makes Cents

Field results of Bio-Mittent lighting programs have confirmed what Purina research results have shown. Here are what three managers have had to say about their results:

"The most significant feature of the intermittent lighting program is a feed savings over birds that previously were on a full-fed program. I feel there is a potential for 40¢/bird increased income from using the intermittent lighting program. Mostly, this income is a feed savings, but some is associated with increases in egg size plus the potential for an extra 3 or 4 eggs per bird year" (Note, hens in some cases in this operation had been mechanically restricted with smaller egg size resulting.)

"Intermittent lighting does not affect production. It does definitely save electricity. We experience less mortality with the experimental group (Bio-Mittent lighting). We have put four more houses on the program."

"I don't know why producers don't use Bio-Mittent™ Lighting just to save some electricity. We've also seen some improvement in feed conversion even though our house isn't light-tight."

Sheila's Shorts

so you look at the color of the inside of the lamb's flank. It should be bright pink.

As in cattle and hogs, as an animal becomes older, the meat tends to become darker. So, if the flank appears dark red, it is a good indication that the animal is tending toward mutton-age.

In lamb as in beef, the amount of marbling in the muscle is a quality factor to consider. In a ribbed carcass, all you have to do is look for specks of fat in the muscle. If, however, the carcass has not been cut, one of the best places to gauge whether the lamb will have adequate marbling is to look on the inside of the ribs.

Between the ribs, the muscle will appear to have white feathers painted diagonally across the pink meat. These feathers are actually lines of fat between the ribs. The more feathers - the more marbling as a general rule of thumb.

Unlike the emphasis placed on marbling in beef in order for the meat to be top quality, the NLMB states marbling may have only a limited role as a taste-improver in lamb. What would be considered as traces of marbling in beef, is felt to be enough in lamb, according to the meat experts.

Age in lambs plays an important role in the way they are graded by USDA. Their standard for a carcass to be graded as a lamb depend on the animal's bones. If it is young, the bones in the leg will show pearly, smooth white cartilage when the joint is exposed.

Once the lamb reaches its first birthday, and some up to 14 months, the bones in the leg have finished growing and have ossified and become hard, porous, and brittle.

According to NLMB and the USDA, the younger the lamb, the milder the meat's flavor and the more tender the chops and cuts.

The USDA's grading standards determine the classes of ovine meat by three age groups, lamb, yearling mutton and mutton. These classes are used without discrimination between sexes unless the carcass shows the heavy neck and shoulders associated with a ram. In that case, the carcass is graded down depending on the extent of development.

The quality grades of young ovine carcasses are prime, choice and good, depending on muscling and marbling. The mature classes also have these same three grades, but the standards are lower for marbling with a greater tolerance for more finish.

Yield grades in lamb and mutton classes are standards for judging the cutability or amount of meat on the carcass. There are five yield grades numbered 1 through 5, with one being the best.

As external finish on the lamb carcasses increase, the yield grade is lowered. The more wasty fat the carcass carries, the smaller the yield of lean meat after the fat is trimmed away.

Now that you've learned the reasons why lambs and mutton are graded for quality and yield, don't chuck the leg of lamb you've got waiting in the refrigerator if it's not perfect. But, keep the facts in mind on your next trip to the butcher shop so that your dollars will buy the best.

GOLIATH UNLOADER

Instead of taking chances on early Fall rain or frost, combine it early — at 26 to 30 percent moisture. You'll have less field losses, and your Harvestore system will keep it palatable until you're ready to feed it or dry it. With Harvestore Haylage, there's less worry about weather, too, because the hay is on the ground a shorter time, and there are no bales or stacks to stand outside. DER's Jones talks conservation trends with Chester-Delaware farmers

BY SUSAN KAUFFMAN
Staff Correspondent

LIONVILLE — Chester-Delaware County Farmers Association held the annual Spring banquet here at the Holiday Inn recently to hear progress reports from working committees and to hear guest speaker Clifford Jones, Secretary of the Department of Environmental Resources for the State of Pennsylvania.

Harold Kulp, president of the local Pennsylvania Farmers Association, acted as master of ceremonies. Arthur Hershey, PFA State Director, brought greetings from the state association and encouraged the local group to "Keep up the good work."

He cautioned that the next few years will challenge farmers across the nation as a whole, and those in rapidly growing population areas in particular.

"It is a challenge we can meet if we are ready," he added.

Edward Taczanowsky introduced himself to the group assembled for the evening meal as the Regional Organizational Director for Region 1 of PFA.

Having recently taken this position he explained that he is responsible for the programs in a nine-county area, is the adjuster for the Safemark program and is presently initiating advisory meetings throughout the counties to develop recommendations and policy proposals from the membership at large.

Tom Wilkinson, membership chairman, announced the group had surpassed their membership drive goal for the year with 866 members, 22 over the goal of 844. He was given the King Pin award for registering the most members during the membership drive.

Leon Wilkinson, legislative committee chairman, commended the legislature in general and the commissioners for the active interest they have shown toward PFA policies.

The greatest thrusts at present in the PFA legislative policies at present, according to Wilkinson, are mushroom imports, deregulation of trucking laws, limiting national spending and balancing the national budget and revising farm credit laws.

Recognized as the state's highest salesman in the insurance program was the Chester-Delaware County agent, Mitch Edwards.

It was announced that the legislative tour to Harrisburg will be conducted April 29, 1980.

Dairy Princess Nadine Prange and Apple Princess Nancy Kupitz were guests at the dinner and brought greetings and expressions of gratitude to the group for supporting them in their promotional programs.

Before he began the major portion of his presentation, Secretary of the Department of Environmental Resources, Clifford Jones, commented on two items particularly of interest to the Chester-Delaware area.

First, he said Chester County was instrumental in sensitizing the department to the landfill problems.

Second, he reported that a proposal is working through channels to remove the right of condemnation from the French Creek Scenic River Project thereby giving landowners security that their land will not be taken out for municipal or federal projects such as highways or landfills.

Jones gave, as he said, an overview of the past decade.

He stated that the early seventies were a prosperous time, everybody spent and bought—the individual as well as the government agencies. Budgets were raised and so were taxes. As the decade wore on an anti-government sentiment arose, possibly from many things happening all at once—Watergate, the Vietnam War, political corruption. A lack of trust and reliability in the government resulted in the populous.

"It was also the age of environment," he continued in his overview of the seventies. "More laws on land, water and air were enacted," he added.

There has been much improvement since then in the quality of the resources, he said, but he added that some say there was too much regulation.

Jones explained that the "heritage" of the seventies is carried over into the present decade. Citing changes in lifestyle, rising divorce rates, live-in arrangements, changing moral standards have all added to a trend which creates people with independent attitudes responsible to very few other people.

"It was also the decade of no babies," he stated. The real challenge in institutions of higher learning in the near future will be educating fewer students at higher costs, he continued.

"This is an aging population. The ones in their fifties and sixties and seventies and on up will have greater demands and get more attention of those in public office than ever before," he said.

"This will be a decade of no public spending," Jones predicted. Proposition 13 points to that theory, he said.

The cutting of budgets, having no tax increases in a time when inflation has risen 13 percent will undoubtedly mean not only trimming programs but more than likely many programs being eliminated entirely, he warned.

"This is a decade of changing energy sources," he continued as he described the eighties as he sees it.

"Three Mile Island brought to a halt nuclear power building," Jones stated. Oil prices continue to rise when an alternative energy source, nuclear power, has reached a national standstill. Both factors have pointed to the critical need for alternative sources of energy.

"We must move toward dependence upon other energy sources such as coal," he explained.

In addition to the characteristics of the eighties he had outlined previously, Jones felt that the decade would be a time when the nation would be experiencing a "Hot-Cold War." Russia and her actions in the Middle East will cause the nation much concern for several years to come, he pointed out to the group.

Turning from the nation as a whole and getting to the subject of the farmer in particular, Jones said American food production will continue to be a challenge to the world. It can be used as a weapon for peace, he also stated.

However, the American food but also to grow fuel soil will be used not only for (Turn to Page B3)

We still have plenty of waxy-seed available for the grain farmers and also Waxy Hybrids are great for cattle and hog feeders. In this area they should plant WAXY-MAIZ Hybrid seed-corn. College feeding trials show 10% better gains on 7% less corn with WAXY fed to cattle. We have several WAXY-MAIZ Hybrids for this area. They yield the same as yellow dent corn, but have higher energy starch. Hogs gain better and get to market faster on WAXY-MAIZ. We can show you how to boost cattle and hog feeding profits.

such as corn for fuel. He cited one corn syrup factory in the state which has already switched over to making "cornahol."

"We as a nation need to learn to re-cycle and use one-half as much as we are accustomed to doing," he proposed. The farmer can be an example, he added.

Already there is a different lifestyle emerging in the eighties, he explained.

Carpools, bus ridership increases and community activities involving sharing and socializing on less expensive terms such as card parties all point to the fact that people are learning to depend on others.

"The farm family has always been strong. Family solidarity, pride and a sense of togetherness have long been a part of the farm family," Jones stated.

Jones concluded his overview of the past decade and predictions of the present one with the statement that with changes in attitude and ingenuity, "You can get out of the Eighties."

Following the formal speech, Jones answered a number of questions from the audience.

Cures for ailing houseplants

MEDIA — Many of the problems that houseplants encounter are cultural in nature, not insect or disease, says James McKeehen, Delaware Extension Agent. Insecticides should not be used in a home or around food areas. Read labels carefully before using. These problems include watering, light intensity, drafts and temperature. Check the list below to see what you may be doing wrong.

Light exposure is critical to plant growth. Select a plant to fit the amount of available light you have. Excessive light can cause the leaves to curl, burn, or turn yellow. On the other hand, if the amount of available light is too low, your plants may experience leaf drop.

Temperature is also an important factor. Fluctuations in temperature can be detrimental to flowering. High temperatures reduce growth and vigor, and can result in leaf drop. Low temperatures can cause the tips or margins of leaves to burn.

Watering is without a doubt the most critical factor in plant growth. Overwatering or poor soil drainage reduces soil aeration; roots die, no water or nutrients are absorbed. Symptoms include wilting, leaf yellowing followed by leaf drop, and the tips or margins of leaves can turn brown. A lack of water is a most limiting factor. The plant can wilt, go through excessive leaf yellowing and leaf drop and finally die.

Just a few of the problems that houseplants may have to deal with are mentioned above.

Lebanon Co. 4-H leaders enter spring training

LEBANON — Lebanon County 4-H leaders are not all athletes, but they went into spring training recently. According to Linda Rohrbach, Extension 4-H Agent, 15 adult volunteers attended the annual program of workshops designed to help leaders be more effective. "The idea," says Rohrbach, "is to gear up for the coming months of 4-H. Spring Training is sort of our conditioning time."

Workshops included ideas of involving parents in local club programs, conducted by Karen Jordan, Extension Home Economist; how 4-H can best involve teens in club programs, conducted by Rohrbach and Ralph Sellers, volunteer leader; ideas for program planning, led by Nancy Hoke, Nor-solebco Community Club leader; and, Spicy Ideas for the 4-H foods program, led by Alvena Kneasel, 1979 participant in the National 4-H Foods Leader Forum.

According to Rohrbach, spring training is part of the process of keeping 4-H leaders informed. Upcoming training opportunities include Consumer Education training on April 10, Clothing Training on May 21, New Leaders Workshop to be announced, and "Kitchen Conferences" to be held regionally throughout the county this spring.

In Lebanon County, over 160 adult volunteers contribute their time, skills, and talents to 4-H.

J I Case Needs a Few New Dealers

We are looking for enterprising business men who understand agricultural equipment retailing. We're the J I Case Company. Founded in 1842, Case now has over 3,000 dealers world-wide and an unsurpassed reputation for product quality, reliability and current growth.

If you think that the farm equipment business requires involvement with many different product lines, you'll find Case an interesting exception. As a Case Tractor Specialist, you concentrate on one major product line: agricultural tractors and related tillage tools, because Case builds nothing but tractors for the farm market.

Case Dealers sell twelve basic tractors 43 to 300 horsepower. Five models are under 90 horsepower, four are the exciting new 90 series, 108 to 180 horsepower
 - and our three big four wheel drive tractors lead the booming 4WD market.

High potential marketing areas are available now. Profitable Case light construction and outdoor power equipment contracts may also be available. As a Case Tractor Specialist, you would benefit from liberal financing policies, attractive consumer terms and time-proven Case Rental Systems.

Case product and policy advantages, when combined with your own aggressive sales and management abilities, will afford you the opportunity to realize an excellent return on your investment.

new Protect O-Shield™ bearing features an exclusive protective shield to enhance the life and protect its triple seals from damage keeping you out of the shop and in the field.

ELIMINATE BLOWN SEALS
Too much pressure in your grease gun can easily blow out the seal in the even the finest bearing. Protect O Shield™ won't let this happen. It secures your seal in place.

NO MORE WRAP DAMAGE
Rice straw wheat stubble baling wire — all will tear up your bearings when wrapped around your harrow's axle. Keep it out with Protect O Shield™.

SHOCK ABSORBER GANG RISERS

AMCO's Challenge to Rocks and Stumps

Rocks and stumps in your fields are less of a problem with AMCO's Shock Absorber Gang Risers.

AMCO's Shock Absorber Gang Risers allow the gang to move up and back when striking an obstacle while you plow.

Couple the Shock Absorber Gang Riser with AMCO's regreasable triple sealed Protect O Shield™ bearings and you've got an unbeatable combination for work in rough terrain.

AMCO's Shock Absorber Gang Riser and Protect O Shield™ won't move rocks and uproot stumps, but they will help prevent harrow damage. And both are available on most AMCO Tough Tillage Tools.

FOLLOW THE LEADER

91 tons per hour* now that's capacity!

It's the largest capacity forage harvester available today — the Gehl 1200. Yet it's a light running efficient machine that works with tractors ranging from 80 to 225 hp.

If you've got a big job to do the 1200's for you. It cuts through the heaviest windrows and the tallest corn to deliver uniformly cut feed.

The 1200 is built for big performance. With nine hard working knives and our unique built in hydraulic knife sharpener. A giant 25½ inch cylinder. A full 129 square inch throat area. And our patented 24 inch spinner that moves material to the blower at nearly 40 mph with no cross augers to plug.

Add capacity matched attachments. 2 or 3 row corn heads, hay pickup, snapper head.

Then tackle your biggest harvests at up to 91 tons per hour! See the 1200 — the leader in forage harvesters — at your Gehl dealer.

HERE ARE TWO FIRSTS FOR PENNSYLVANIA:

One, the first Satellite Challenge Feeder sold and installed on a Pennsylvania farm, and the first Challenge Feeder we have sold in Chester County, Pennsylvania.

This unique feeder is a compact assembly of two challenge feeders and the concentrate Storage bin - all in one package, which can be located in most feed lots without any further concrete work.

This unique feeder was installed on Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hoopes Farm at West Grove, Pennsylvania in December, 1979.

Mr. Hoopes states that this feeder is operating exactly as it is designed to do and he is sure that the cows like it very much from the usage it is getting. He can't verify how much more milk he is producing because he just started a new milking parlor in October and his cows need to get adjusted to all the new facilities.

He also is using the new DV 300 parlor model milker control in his parlor and is really sold on their performance.

Why not stop in at Mr. and Mrs. Hoopes farm and look over his new system and talk to them about their challenge feeder. He will be happy to talk about them.

We will be getting two more Satellite Challenge Feeders in stock in April - so if you are interested in this outstanding feeding mechanism that controls the amount of concentrate you want to feed your cows, just give us a call at 301-658-6923, and talk to any of our service personnel about your needs.

FLEX AUGER

THE SUPER AUGER SYSTEM FOR HOGS, DAIRY & POULTRY

Genuine Flex Auger: Our Original "Coreless" Auger Concept Is Often Copied — Except For The Quality!

If it doesn't say "FLEX-AUGER" you're not going to get the benefits that only FLEX-AUGER Feed Delivery Systems can give. Since Chore-Time first invented the "coreless" auger principle about 20 years ago, others have copied the patented principle. But none have gone to the expense or trouble of imitating all the quality features and constant improvements that have gone into FLEX-AUGER year by year.

One of those quality differences is the spring steel auger itself. It takes just the right properties of steel, plus the special manufacturing know-how, to end up with the very flexible, yet long-wearing properties that you get with FLEX-AUGER.

three capacities — to meet any need you have

FLEX-AUGER® MODEL	Model 50	Model 75	Model 90
Capacity (lbs./minute @ 40 lbs. of feed per cubic foot)	20	50	100

SPECIAL FEATURES

- It's a study in simplicity. There are no corners, gears, connections, or pins to cause excess friction and wear out. This, plus low weight of the centerless auger which floats in the tube, means it consumes less power.
- Closed auger tube means feed stays fresher, free of insect or rodent contamination.
- Because the tube is essentially sealed, it can be used outdoors as well as indoors.
- Less space is required to mount FLEX-AUGER, compared with other systems. It simply hangs from the rafters or ceiling by chains provided.
- It's versatile. It adapts to various types of feeds, nearly any building layout.

FLEX-AUGER — it has earned its reputation as "the best way ever devised to deliver feed!"

Highly Versatile, long lasting, efficient user of electric energy

THE SUPERAUGER
DAIRY & POULTRY!

New CHORE-TIME High Moisture Corn Delivery System

...yes, now there's a flex-auger for high moisture corn.

Now, Chore-Time has successfully developed a FLEX-AUGER system to handle corn up to 27% moisture. You can now take advantage of the cost and energy saving of high moisture corn without having to re-invest this money and energy in feed handling setup. The system includes stainless steel bin boot and oversize auger tube with smaller auger.

Completely Galvanized Weather-proof Bins

The feed bin is the heart of any feeding system. If it fails, the system fails. That's why we put so much quality into our complete line of bulk feed bins - starting with the complete galvanizing of all bin parts, even the legs and braces.

Newcomers leave dairy herd to help others

By SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

MOUNT JOY — "We have so much here that we wanted to do a little more. It is easy to donate money, but you are not giving of yourself." These are the words of Sheryl Newcomer, Mount Joy R3, explaining why she and her husband Preston chose to go to the Dominican Republic for ten days earlier in the month to work with a medical relief mission.

For the Newcomers it meant making arrangements for the care of their 85-head milking cow herd, a leave from Sheryl's teaching position at the Manheim Township Schools and someone to care for their 22-month-old son Timothy. When they first considered going, these arrangements seemed impossible to make, but the pieces fell together and both Sheryl and Preston are enthusiastic about the opportunity it afforded them.

The small island of the Dominican Republic which is about the size of Vermont and New Hampshire is located in the Caribbean Sea. It sounds like a perfect place to spend ten days in mid-winter, but the Newcomers were not there for vacation. What they encountered was the "unbelievable" destruction caused by Hurricane David when it swept through the island last August. Preston said, "Destruction was widespread on the island. Banana and coconut trees were broken off and it will be a matter of years before they can bear again. The people depend on these crops."

Actually, 90 per cent of the agriculture on the island was destroyed in the wake of the hurricane. Winds of up to 130 miles per hour came with the storm, and blew over everything in its path. Houses constructed of palm wood were blown away, but even homes built of cement block were destroyed because the concrete was not reinforced. Many people took refuge in concrete block churches and schools and were killed when walls collapsed and crushed them. At least 600 people were killed by the storm and 150,000 were left homeless.

The building-up process continues, and it was to this that the Newcomers and the relief mission contributed. The Newcomers stress that they were merely part of a coordinated team effort, and said their interest was stimulated by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shenk who had worked on five previous missions. They joined the Shenks and the Rev. Roger Colvin. All are members of St. Mark's United Methodist Church, Mount Joy.

Once in the Dominican Republic, the Newcomers met other Lancastrians who were there on the same mission. Eventually the group numbered 56 from all parts of the United States and Canada. Sheryl explained that the purpose of the trip was "to meet as many health needs as possible. We met their physical needs and their spiritual needs as they wanted."

Sponsorship of their Medical Group Mission is by the Christian Medical Society, a non-denominational organization made up of doctors and dentists in the United States and Canada. Once there, the group was divided into two teams, a surgical team and a clinical group. The Newcomers were with the clinical group; and while they are not skilled in using medicine, they provided essential support services as the group traveled from village to village to offer their services.

Each day the team set up their clinic in a different village. Before their arrival, which was coordinated by the local church, one member of the church had sold tickets to those needing services. Sheryl noted that the tickets were used for two reasons. It encouraged only those who really needed the medical services to attend the clinic and it also helped the people keep their dignity. Adult tickets to the clinic cost 50 cents and children's tickets cost 25 cents.

Preston was traffic controller of the children's part of the clinic and it was his job to get the ticket holders ready to meet the doctor and nurses and to keep the flow of patients moving. Preston said tickets had been numbered, so he simply put the people in order as they arrived and made sure patients were ready to see the doctors.

About the team effort, Sheryl said, "We worked very well together and could set up the clinic very quickly in the villages. The relationship we formed was very special." The Mission used churches, schools or whatever buildings were available. In one village they set up in a bar; in another, they used a private home.

One of the most common medical problems encountered was parasites in children. Sheryl explained that mostly women and children attended the clinics. The women were frequently low in iron and vitamins. Sheryl said, "We gave out hundreds and hundreds of vitamins." She pointed out that women bear large families and the ones they saw were frequently pregnant or had recently given birth, explaining their vitamin and iron deficiencies.

Both Sheryl and Preston said there were many complaints of headaches and backaches. Sheryl said, Sheryl Newcomer and her son Tim brought a few small items back with them as mementos of the ten-day relief mission to the Dominican Republic.

"They carry large loads on their backs and heads." Aspirin and other painkillers were usually prescribed.

Sheryl's job was working in the pharmacy, helping to dispense the medication as prescribed. She worked with two nurses and said she always checked before handing over the medicine to the patients. All the medicines were kept in wooden boxes for ease of storage, and most had been donated for use by the Mission.

"We didn't see anything really serious," Sheryl noted, adding that one of the most heart-wrenching things they encountered was malnutrition in children. "It was hard to take." Children frequently had skin rashes, and some were brought in simply for check-ups.

Asked about the continuing medical care these people are likely to receive, Sheryl expressed her concern about that. Often patients were given a 30-60 day supply of vitamins, but she said, "While they have it they feel better, and then they wait until another clinic comes."

Medical care is available in larger towns and cities, but transportation for most rural people is not possible. Sheryl said most of the towns they visited could expect to have access to a clinic at least twice a year.

For the people, the arrival of the clinic was a special time. Sheryl said, "They dressed up in their best clothes. It was almost festive for them."

Preston added, "I think the children were glad to come to the clinic and they tried to act real brave. They were really shy."

Part of their clinical group was dentists who had their work cut out for them. Sheryl kept records on the number of patients they saw in their clinics and, interestingly, the number of teeth pulled. Pulling teeth was the only procedure the dentists were equipped to do. The records for the dental clinic are: first day - 23 patients, 44 teeth pulled; second day - 60 patients, 107 teeth pulled; third day - 32 patients, 60 teeth; fourth day - 33 patients, 62 teeth; fifth day, 78 patients, 160 teeth; sixth day, 28 patients, 58 teeth.

Sheryl said the children found the dentists exciting and the "dentist always had a big audience." The dentist worked outside, usually under a tree or a temporary roof constructed to keep away the shade.

The Newcomers had nothing but praise for the Dominicans. "Even in their destitution, they would give you the shirt off their back - if they had one." Preston said.

He related a story he experienced in the evening when they had returned to the rented quarters in which they stayed. As he went for a walk over roads that had been washed away by Hurricane David, he saw a farmer chopping cornstalks. He said he crawled through the barbed wire which is used to keep animals away from property, walked to the man and began working. Newcomer said he made a few utterances in Spanish and communicated to the man that he grew sweet corn in the United States. After working together, the man began to check every ear of corn, picked out the ten best and offered them to Preston.

Preston is proud of a carving made from a coconut which was made in the Dominican Republic. He and his wife Sheryl spent 10 days there as part of a Medical Relief Mission.

Rev. Roger Colvin, left, and Bob Sherk talk with a patient at one of clinics the medical relief team set up in the Dominican Republic.

About the people, Sheryl noted, "They seem to be reasonably happy. The children entertain themselves. They play jacks with stones. I would love to take them some toys."

Preston said, "I don't understand who owns the land, but we saw a cooperative which was raising peppers, tomatoes, beans and rice, and acres and acres of onions. There were always a lot of people in the fields working." Sheryl added, "The harvesting is done primarily by men and children, since the mothers are busy in the homes with the other children." Preston noted that there was very little farm equipment used, and that wooden oxen carts carried produce to the train.

Sheryl said that as part of their ongoing agricultural program there are 60,000 acres to be opened for farming in which irrigation canals have been constructed. There is another 60,000-100,000 acres in which the government is in the process of building canals. "They are looking to the large acreage to help feed the people. After the second 60,000 acres is opened, they hope to export rice," she explained. Agriculture currently dominates their foreign trade picture, with sugar and sugar byproducts accounting for 32 per cent of their foreign earnings. Coffee and cacao earned 34 per cent and minerals earned 22 per cent. Over 80 per cent of their exports go to the United States.

There is 60 per cent unemployment on the island but Sheryl said, "They are basically self-sufficient. The people live on what they can grow." Some people have plots of land which are located outside their village. Fresh fruit is widely available and fish is plentiful for those living near the shore. Sheryl said, "The potential for good nutrition is there."

They also pointed out that the people on the island are not politically oppressed, and the government cooperated fully with their visit.

The Newcomers described the great amount of reconstruction work which must be done as a result of Hurricane David's destruction. Preston told of visiting the town of Juan Paron where three of the 500 houses were left standing, with nine capable of being repaired. He said the Mennonite Central Committee is helping people rebuilt these homes, with the goal of 599 homes over the next two years. "The people are doing their own rebuilding, with just six people directing the work. The people are excited about doing it."

The MCC is not giving the homes to the people but are requiring that they pay $2.00 per month for 10 years. The money paid for the homes then goes into a special fund which will help pay the cost of drilling a well for the community. The people, in effect, are paying themselves and will have a community fund.

Preston noted that homes currently under construction are reinforced block houses with the foundation being built two feet below the surface.

Preston said, "You always see pictures and hear stories about places like this. But you don't understand it until you have the opportunity to witness it first hand and to walk into the houses and meet people. That brings it home."

Sheryl added, "It seems unreal. Even there we were not sure we were really experiencing it. We are not quite as materialistic. It helped us realize we have so much here."

Would they like to go again? Without hesitation both Sheryl and Preston agreed they would like to participate in another mission, although they realize it cannot be done soon again. They do hope their experience will serve as a stimulus to others who may have an interest. And Sheryl's incorporating her first hand experiences into a previously scheduled study unit in her classroom.

Ham it up with Easter dinner planovers

New tastes are enjoyed by everyone, even when they're made from day-old foods. The Easter holiday meal can yield lots of interesting meals for the days to follow, if the leftovers are thought of as planovers.

Today we're offering lots of planover ideas using anything from the Easter ham and the extra colored eggs to the leftover mashed potatoes. The most important ingredient in the success of a planover dish is mental attitude. Just as you would serve a first-time dish with pride, the leftovers when combined into a new dish are no longer leftovers, but part of a creative menu item which uses pre-cooked foods and should be served with pride.

Whatever your meal plans for this Easter holiday, be sure to include some time in your busy schedule of coloring eggs and cooking to enjoy the spring flowers and smells that abound. With the family home, why not involve everyone in making a meal? In other words, why not get the family hopping this Easter. Have a great day!

HAM CASSEROLE WITH BISCUITS

½ cup butter
¾ cup chopped onions dash of pepper
2 cups milk
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
1 package (10 ounces) frozen mixed vegetables, cooked and drained
1½ cups cubed cooked ham
1 package (10 ounces) refrigerated buttermilk biscuits
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1/8 teaspoon garlic powder

Preheat oven to 400° F. Melt butter in a medium-sized saucepan. Sauté onion until tender, about 3 minutes.

Stir in flour and pepper until smooth. Remove from heat and gradually stir in milk. Bring to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute.

Stir in mustard and Worcestershire. Stir in cheese until melted. If necessary, return to low heat until cheese is melted. Stir in vegetables and ham.

Pour hot mixture into a buttered 1½ quart baking dish. Place biscuits around outer edges of casserole. Combine butter and garlic powder. Brush over biscuits. Bake 20 to 25 minutes or until biscuits are golden and casserole is hot and bubbly. Serves 6.

HAM AND CHEESE LOG

1 8-ounce package cream cheese, softened
1 cup finely diced ham
¼ cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 cup ground nuts
¾ cup parsley

Cream cheese and ham together. Blend in onion and half of the parsley. Shape into a log and roll in remaining parsley. Press nuts into the log. Wrap in foil and refrigerate.

These bunnies are wishing you an Easter that's "eggsactly" the way you want it — full of warmth and springtime.

PICKLED EGGS

1 16-ounce can sliced beets
12 hard-cooked eggs, shelled
¾ cup cider vinegar
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1/8 teaspoon allspice
6 whole cloves

Into 1-quart saucepan, drain liquid from beets. Place beets and eggs in 1½ quart jar or large bowl. Into beet juice, stir vinegar and remaining ingredients.

Over high heat, heat to boiling. Pour hot spice mixture over eggs and beets. Cover and refrigerate at least 12 hours to allow flavor and color to penetrate eggs.

1 can (10½ ounces) condensed cream of potato soup, undiluted
1 cup light cream
¼ cup milk
1 cup shredded Mozzarella cheese
1 cup ham, diced

Combine all ingredients in a medium-sized saucepan. Heat over low heat, stirring constantly, until cheese is melted and soup is hot (about 10 minutes). Do not boil

ZIPPY DEVILED EGGS

8 hard-cooked eggs
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
2-3 teaspoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

Cut eggs in half lengthwise. Remove yolks. Mash with a fork. Combine remaining ingredients and blend well. Refill egg whites using approximately 2 teaspoons of mixture per egg half. Makes 16 halves.

EGGS-TRAORDINARY CHOWDER

½ cup butter
1 cup chopped onion
¼ cup flour
2 teaspoons instant chicken bouillon
3 cups milk
2 cups cooked cubed potatoes
1 can (16 ounces) whole kernel corn with liquid
2 tablespoons diced pimiento or green pepper
1 bay leaf
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
8 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
½ cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Melt butter in 3-quart saucepan. Cook onion until tender. Blend in flour and bouillon. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is smooth and bubbly.

Stir in milk and heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir until mixture is smooth and thickened. Add potatoes, corn (including liquid), pimiento, bay leaf, salt and pepper. Simmer, stirring occasionally, about 5 minutes. Remove bay leaf. Add eggs and cheese. Bring to serving temperature. Makes 6 servings.

SWISSED HAM AND NOODLE CASSEROLE

8 ounces uncooked noodles
1 can (10½ ounce) condensed cream of mushroom soup
1 cup milk
½ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 cups cubed cooked ham
2 cups shredded Swiss cheese

Cook noodles according to package directions and drain. In a bowl, gradually add milk to soup. Add green pepper and onion. In buttered two-quart casserole, alternate two layers each of noodles, ham, cheese and sauce. Bake 30-40 minutes in 350°F oven.

Tips to get ready to garden

MEDIA — It's almost time to get out in the garden and James J. McKeehen, Delaware County Extension Agricultural Agent offers some tips to help you get ready.

If you plan to use left-over seeds from previous years, check them for germination first. They may be too old. Plant a few inside and watch them for a week or two to see how many sprout. If germination is low, throw the seeds away and buy fresh ones.

Make sure your gardening equipment is in good condition. Check out your spades, rakes, hoes, edging tools, and garden hose. Sandpaper any rough or rusty spots on the tools. Then clean them thoroughly and coat with oil.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Holidays, and their special personal meanings, change over the years. Age, I can attest, has a way of altering the celebration with material things into one of appreciation for that most precious of gifts, the love and fellowship of friends and family.

Once, Easter for me came wrapped in the brilliant shades of foil-covered candies, yellow sugar-sprinkled marshmallow ducklings and spicy rainbow jellybeans. And always, there were bunnies.

Chocolate bunnies arriving nestled deep in nests bedded with pink and green shredded cellophane were a must. Then, there was the year when I was six, and a stuffed bunny hugged me close, sharing the scary, strange darkness of the new home we'd moved into on that Easter eve.

Later, the bunnies came in a new form, fuzzy, with wringing pink noses and soft silky coats. One arrived home with me, to Mom and Dad's surprise, when a prize egg turned up the bottom of my basket of goodies at a local egg-hunt.

Easter, a few years further down the road, brought a baby white cottontail, presented by a certain shy farm boy, who juggled the bunnies into a black and white dairy herd.

So although elegant chocolate goodies and multi-colored eggs are still a memorable part of our observance, personal memories now look more inward.

They linger on the overwhelming fragrance of pristine white lilies, crowding the altar rail where we gather in the renewal of the morning communion. And of family gathered around the bountiful spread kitchen table to share the holiday together.

And while we rejoice within, the countryside celebrates the miracle of the resurrection, bursting forth in a pageant of rebirth over the dead, drab, dark tones of winter into the yellows and purples of spring flowers. Out in the pasture, grasses send new shoots pushing through the dried remains and the contoured field strips shade into the muted greens of young alfalfa, barley and rye.

And if you look closely, among the waving early wild daffodils and emerald shoots of Springtime, there might even be a bunny

May Easter blessings fill the hearts of you and yours.

50 largest food firms gaining more market control

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The 50 largest U.S. food manufacturing firms' share of food industry assets rose from 42 percent in 1963 to nearly 64 percent in 1978, and could reach 100 percent by the year 2000, according to John Connor, an economist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture

Connor, who has just completed a study of U.S. food and tobacco manufacturing industries, found the number of firms in these fields is declining by about three percent per year

He also found that the 200 largest firms account for two-thirds of industry sales, over four-fifths of industry assets, four-fifths of all media advertising of food and over 96 percent of all research and development activities

Food manufacturers include companies that produce such products as processed meats, fluid milk, canned fruits and vegetables, cookies, candy, bread, breakfast cereals and alcoholic and soft drinks, among others

Connor also found that the rate of merger, industry concentration, and product differentiation are increasing. Produce differentiation is the practice by a manufacturer of trying to make a product slightly different or seem slightly different from those of competitors. Generally, the purpose of differentiation is to try to build brand loyalty and increase competition, Connor said

Other findings of Connor's study include

During the period of 1951-55, food manufacturers' after-tax profit rate was 8.4 percent, compared with 11.5 percent for other manufacturers. During 1971-75, food manufacturers' after-tax profit rose to 13.2 percent compared with a rate of 11.9 percent for other manufacturers

This was the first time that after-tax profits for food and tobacco industries, as a percentage of stockholders' equity, exceeded the average for the rest of manufacturing

TV accounts for over 50 percent of all media advertising of foods and are increasing Foreign investment in U.S. food and tobacco manufacturing firms totaled about $1.8 billion in 1975 and is rising rapidly, while investment by U.S. firms abroad is about $4.7 billion but rising less rapidly.

Remember, April 25 is Arbor Day

HARRISBURG — Clifford L. Jones, secretary of Environmental Resources, urged all Pennsylvanians to remember that Friday, April 25 is Arbor Day and to mark the occasion by planting trees or shrubs.

"By taking an active part in this nation-wide observance, you will not only help preserve one of our most important natural resources but also show a personal commitment to the increasing value of trees and forests," Jones said.

He said while the first Arbor Day was observed in Nebraska on April 10, 1872, it is annually observed in Pennsylvania during the Joseph T. Rothrock Memorial Conservation Week which begins April 20 and continues through April 26.

Rothrock was the Commonwealth's first commissioner of forestry and is often referred to as the "father of forestry" in Pennsylvania

Jones said the department's Bureau of Forestry is ready and eager to take an active role in promoting Arbor Day programs, especially in the schools.

To do this the district foresters of the 20 Forest Districts have been instructed to help carry out Arbor Day programs and to participate actively in such programs wherever, and whenever, possible," Jones said

"The management of our natural resources is the concern of every responsible citizens' group throughout the state. Arbor Day offers an excellent opportunity for everyone to work to enhance our natural beauty, improve the environment and perpetuate our valuable forest resources."

Junior Cooking Edition

For your Easter holiday cooking enjoyment, we have lemon pies, stained glass cookies, and a luscious angel cake dessert. Additionally, there is a recipe for butter made in the blender. This would be an interesting project, and one that makes very little mess.

One project that is both fun and practical at Easter is the making of egg salad from all the eggs in the Easter baskets. To make a delicious salad mixture, simply shell the eggs and mash with a fork. Add enough mayonnaise to make a spreadable mixture, and either chopped olives or onions or both for flavoring. Crumbled bacon bits or finely diced ham may be added with the other flavorings or instead of them. Spread a little of the homemade butter on a warm roll, add a spoonful of your egg mixture, and enjoy.

While you're doing your cooking this weekend, remember that this is a holiday for mom too, so don't forget that the job isn't done until the dishes are washed. Have a happy Easter!

FRUIT-FILLED COFFEE CAKE

- 3 eggs
- 1½ cups sugar
- ¾ cup oil
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- juice of 1 orange
- 3 cups flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 can cherry pie filling (other flavors may also be used)
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 tablespoons sugar

Cream together eggs, sugar, oil, orange juice and vanilla. Add flour and baking powder and mix.

Grease an oblong pan and pour in half the batter. Spread the pie filling over the batter. Sprinkle with the mixture of cinnamon and sugar, add the rest of the batter and sprinkle remaining cinnamon mixture on top of the cake.

Bake in 350° F. oven for 15 minutes. Lower oven temperature to 325° F. and bake one hour longer.

BEST EVER LEMON PIE

- 1 baked pie shell
- 1¼ cups sugar
- 6 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2 cups water
- ½ cup lemon juice
- 3 eggs, separated
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1½ teaspoons lemon extract
- 2 teaspoons vinegar

Mix sugar and cornstarch together in the top of a double-boiler. Add the two cups of water. Combine egg yolks with lemon juice and beat. Add to the other mixture. Cook until thick over boiling water for 25 minutes. This does away with the starchy taste.

Now, add lemon extract, butter and vinegar and stir thoroughly. Pour into a deep 9-inch pie shell and let cool. Cover with meringue and brown in an oven.

Never-Fail Meringue

- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 2 tablespoons cold water
- ½ cup boiling water
- pinch of salt
- 3 egg whites
- 6 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Blend cornstarch and cold water in a saucepan. Add boiling water and cook, stirring until clear and thickened. Let stand until completely cold. With electric beater at high speed, beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually add sugar and beat until stiff, but not dry. Turn mixer to low speed and add salt and vanilla. Gradually beat in cold cornstarch mixture. Turn mixer again to high speed and beat well. Spread meringue over cooled pie filling. Bake at 350° F. for 10 minutes. This meringue cuts beautifully and never gets sticky.

- 1½ teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 cup shortening
- 1 egg, beaten
- ½ cup milk
- 1¼ cups raisins

Sift first six ingredients together. Add the remaining ingredients and mix until the mixture holds together. Roll out on a floured board to ¼ inch thickness. Cut into 2-inch rounds.

Heat the griddle until a few drops of water dance on it. Oil lightly. Place cookies on the griddle and turn when the bottom gets lightly browned and the top gets puffy. Brown the other side and serve. Makes 4 dozen. For variety, add 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind in place of the raisins.

HOMEMADE BUTTER

Skim milk. Refrigerate cream for 3 to 5 days. Pour about 5 cups into a 6 cup blender container and blend for 4 minutes or until butter lumps rise to the top when you stop the blender. Drain buttermilk off by straining (preferably in a plastic strainer). Put into a bowl, add about ½ teaspoon salt, and press out remaining buttermilk with the back of a teaspoon. This is excellent for shortening in cookies or to use when making brown butter for a deliciously different flavor.

Stable by any standard

Olympic series telescopic conversion
hoists by Omaha Standard

We believe Omaha Standard's name on a telescopic conversion hoist means a tough piece of equipment that'll outlast the truck. We set out to prove that. Omaha Standard tested the Olympic hoist with an off-center load suspended out from and completely off the platform with one cylinder disconnected! This test produced an offset load equal to 500,000 in./lbs. of torque—the equivalent of suspending over three tons out 80" from the centerline of the truck and body.

Here you see it...great torsional stability!

Body twist was negligible. The stability shown by the Olympic was excellent. We believe that the off-center load test demonstrates what many truck owners have known all along. Omaha Standard's Olympic Series, twin telescopic conversion hoists are the finest available on the market today.

An Omaha Standard body matched with the right Olympic hoist—it's a tough combination for all your hauling.

Recipe Swap

Just in time for all you last minute bunnies, we have a recipe for coloring Easter eggs with natural dyes. So round up your eggs, cabbages, and oranges and get dipping.

When we think of Easter eggs, we think of hard-boiled eggs. Actually, eggs should not be boiled. Boiling causes the eggs to form a greenish color around the outside of the yolks. To hard-cook eggs, place eggs in a pan and cover with cold water. Bring the water to a boil over medium heat and remove the pan from the heat. Cover and let stand for 15 minutes. Rinse with cold water and drain.

HOW TO DYE EASTER EGGS — NATURALLY

Place uncooked eggs in a single layer in a saucepan. Cover eggs with water. Add a teaspoon of vinegar. Add one of the following for coloring.

light yellow	orange peels
yellow-green	carrot tops
light yellow-green	celery tops
red	red beets
yellow	onions

For other colors, mix the above to get varied shades of purple and other secondary colors.

The more eggs you use, the more tops and peelings you will need. Bring to a boil and reduce heat, simmering for 20 minutes. Remove tops and peelings from the pan and let the eggs stand in the liquid overnight to get a darker color. Be prepared for a nice surprise the following morning.

50th National 4-H Conference to be held

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Three hundred delegates will represent 5 million young people at the 50th National 4-H Conference in Washington's National 4-H Center April 12-18.

All 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Guam will send representatives.

This year's theme is "4-H Expanding Horizons," and several special events will mark the golden anniversary celebration.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland will take part in one of the special events. Bergland will speak on "Youth and the Structure of American Agriculture and Rural Life" at 9 a.m. April 15 in the Jefferson Auditorium of the USDA's South Building at 14th and Independence Avenue, S.W.

Kenneth Gunn, Jr., a 4-H member and National Presidential Tray winner from Alabama, will give the keystone address at the 4-H center at 7:30 p.m. April 12.

Daughterty said the delegates, who are 4-H members, volunteer leaders and staff, will divide into groups to discuss 12 contemporary topics of interest to 4-H'ers throughout the country.

Some 500 delegates to national 4-H conferences of past years will swell the total attendance to about 800 people. Many of the former delegates now are successful farmers, business leaders, educators and public officials.

"These 4-H alumni will join this year's 300 delegates for festivities on April 13 of the conference week," said Daughterty. "Events that day will include a special program at the USDA's Auditorium on the Mall, visits by delegates and alumni on Capitol Hill, with historical exhibits and receptions."

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Having recently acquired a coverlet which was made for my great, great grandmother Elizabeth Wolf of Earl Twp., I was enticed into rereading some background material on coverlets. They are quite different than the bedcovering known as a quilt.

Both are brightly patterned but the quilt is often pieced with scraps to form a design and then the interlining and backing are fastened together with small stitches in an orderly pattern.

The coverlet was first woven on a loom in the home but it soon was taken over by craftsmen who came from Europe and set up small workshops. The hand looms were modified in the early 19th century to take a jacquard mechanism perfected by Joseph-Marie Jacquard, a French craftsman who used cardboard pattern cards. When it was done in the home, it was a routine of everyday life and when they found time or they had a need they made these coverings which were attractive and protective in daytime and warm at night.

The warp threads are usually undyed cotton or linen and the weft threads are colored wool and form the pattern.

It is interesting to learn how they dyed the wool. Indigo from the East Indies or the Carolinas was an extraordinary important dye used for a blue color. The red was produced by using madder from the plant root or by using more costly cochineal. This latter product is made by crushing the bodies of a small South American insect.

Black oak bark, yellow dock and hickory bark were used for a yellow dye. Green was a two-dye process—blue over yellow or vice versa. By using wool from a black sheep they eliminated the need for such a dye.

The weight of my 1836 coverlet made by Benji A. Kiehl is simply amazing for a piece of fabric of its size. Kiehl was born in 1807 in Berks County and moved to Lancaster County in 1822 where he worked as a weaver four miles east of Lancaster along the New Holland Pike.

There are only about half a dozen "known" coverlets that he made in the 24 years he worked at this location. I'm very pleased to be the owner of one of them.

UNIPEL® 13-34-10

fertilizer can get your corn crop off to a super start:

It has a high concentration of water-soluble Phosphorus that gets to young seedlings quickly. Helps plants establish a good root system—the starting point for top yields. Its quick-acting and long-lasting Nitrogen team up to feed the young plants for full yield potential, continually from sprouting to harvest.

This is the Starter Special that corn growers know from good experience. It's highly effective as a banded starter. And it's SAFE—no chance of ammonia damage to tender, young seedlings when used as a "pop up" and applied directly with the seed at 50 lbs./acre.

How can we fit UNIPEL 13-34-10 into your corn fertility program?

Farm Credit loans up 31.6%

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Farm Credit System loaned a record $59.1 billion during the year ended December 31, 1979, an increase of 31.6 percent over 1978, according to a report by the Farm Credit Administration, Federal supervisory agency for the System's borrower-owned banks and associations.

The increase was twice that posted between 1977 and 1978. Loans outstanding at the end of 1979 stood at $58.5 billion, an increase of 23.5 percent from a year earlier.

FCA Governor Donald E. Wilkinson said there were several factors contributing to the bigger-than-average increase in loan volume.

"When farmers have a good year, they traditionally use net income to leverage more debt," he said. "This provides the opportunity for expansion and for the purchase of capital items. The strong loan demand overall, proves that 1979 was no exception, as net farm income was the second highest ever."

Wilkinson pointed out that many country banks had liquidity problems during 1979, and high loan-to-deposit ratios in these banks caused some of their customers to seek Farm Credit System financing.

Another reason, he said, was that in times of rapidly rising interest rates, Farm Credit System rates lag because of the way loan funds are obtained — through the sale of securities in the nation's capital markets.

"The Farm Credit Banks recently paid more than 15 percent for money," Wilkinson said. "But they still have bonds outstanding that cost considerably less and their interest rates are based on the weighed average of all outstanding bonds."

"The law requires the Farm Credit System to serve all agricultural producers who have a basis for credit," Wilkinson said. "When other lenders can't fill loan demands for whatever reasons, the System takes up the slack and does so at no cost to the taxpayers."

During 1979, the Federal Land Banks made 92,000 loans totaling $9.1 billion. The year before, they made 73,000 loans for a total of $6.4 billion. The increases were 26 percent in number and 42 percent in amount. At the end of 1979, the banks had 549,000 loans outstanding for $31.3 billion, compared to 508,000 loans totaling $25.6 billion a year earlier. The number of loans outstanding was up 8 percent, while the amount increased 22 percent.

Production Credit Associations served 434,000 borrowers during 1979, extending $29.4 billion in credit. In 1978, 421,000 borrowers received a total of $23.4 billion. The number of borrowers served increased only 3 percent, but the credit extended rose by 26 percent. At the end of 1979, PCAs had $18.4 billion in loans outstanding to a total of 365,000 borrowers. A year earlier, 351,000 borrowers had a total of $15.1 billion in outstanding loans. The amount outstanding increased 22 percent, and the number of borrowers with outstanding loans rose 4 percent.

The Federal Intermediate Credit Banks discounted $1.6 billion in notes for other financing institutions in 1979, an increase of 33 percent over the $1.2 billion discounted in 1978. At the end of the year, they had $666 million in discounts outstanding, 30 percent more than the $511 million of a year earlier.

Loan volume of the Banks of Cooperatives totaled $19.0 billion in 1979, 36 percent more than the $14 billion of the previous year. Loans outstanding rose 33 percent, from $6.1 billion in 1978 to $8.1 billion in 1979. The number of cooperatives served remained about the same, with 3,200 obtaining advances and 3,400 with loans outstanding.

The net worth of the Farm Credit System increased $1.2 billion during the year and stood at $7.3 billion on December 31. Of this amount, $4.3 billion represented investments by borrowers.

Oregon Dairy Farm expands facilities, herd

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

OREGON — A modestly-sized building, in which the retail sale of milk began five years ago from a juggling operation, still stands along the roadway leading into Oregon Dairy Farm.

Less than a year ago, the retail operation moved to a massive new full-line farm market on a knoll just to the north.

Retail space was increased nearly 10-fold in the move.

Now, on another knoll to the south, looking down on Rt. 272, an even larger rambling farm structure has risen as the latest phase of expansion at Oregon Dairy.

This latest new structure, a free stall dairy barn with a 350-cow capacity, is large enough to hold 20 of the buildings in which the milk sales were launched only a half-decade ago.

"We started the juggling operation in a building that measured just 40 feet by 44 feet," George Hurst recalled.

"Last May, the larger farm market was opened with 17,000 square feet of retail space.

"Then, we found we had to expand our farm facilities to handle our growing herd of registered Holsteins, which is being steadily increased to try and keep up with the greater demand for dairy products at the market."

The new free stall barn is long enough to hold a football field, complete with end zones, and still have plenty of space left over.

The main barn structure is 412 feet long and 86 feet wide.

"We now have about 200 head and are milking about 175," Hurst said.

"It has become just too inefficient to milk that many cows in a stanchion barn."

The new free stall barn is replacing two stanchion barns that are being used, one with 42 stalls and the other with 53 stalls.

"We were switching three groups of cows through the 42-stall barn," Hurst explained.

"It was taking about three hours to milk the 120 cows in the three groups.

"Now, we hope to milk that many cows in one hour."

Hurst explained that the Holstein herd will continue to be expanded to meet present demands for dairy products at the market.

"Our initial goal is to be up to 300 head by the end of the year," he said.

The herd will be expanded through a continuing on-farm breeding program and the purchase of bred heifers, according to Hurst.

"With 300 cows, we expect to meet the current demand at the market, which is running between 7,000 and 8,000 gallons a week," Hurst said.

"Presently, we're only able to supply about 6,000 to 6,500 gallons a week and find ourselves running out at the market."

When the juggling operation began five years ago, retail sales averaged about 1,500 gallons a week.

New free stall barn with a 350-cow capacity and pair of 80-foot silos highlight expansion program at Oregon Dairy Farm located along Rt. 272 about half-way between Lancaster and Ephrata.

"By the time we moved into the new, larger market last May," Hurst said, "we were producing and selling about 3,000 gallons a week."

In less than a year, even though production has more than doubled at Oregon Dairy, the milk supply still trailed demand, requiring the barn expansion launched already last August.

In addition to the main barn structure designed to hold 350 cows, a smaller wing, measuring 55 by 123 feet, contains a holding area, a 24-stall Polygon milking parlor, cooling equipment and tank.

A tube cooling system will be used in processing the milk.

"We expect to cool the milk down to 37 degrees in a minute's time before it goes into the tank," Hurst said.

Heated water recovered from the cooling system will be utilized in the parlor area. "Hot water from the compressors which run the ice builder will be used to wash the cows and for washing out the milk line," Hurst said.

Besides the newer and more modern milking facilities, the new barn also provides efficiencies in both feeding and manure handling.

"Now, we will be using drive-through feeding with a mixer wagon," Hurst explained.

The present method included some hand feeding of roughage, combined with bunk feeding.

The manure handling system features alley scrapers and a shuttle-stroke cross gutter cleaner for moving the wastes to a ram pump.

The pump rams the wastes about 100 feet into a lagoon storage area with a picket dam. Liquids are permitted to filter through the picket dam into a lower evaporation pond.

"The lagoon will provide six months worth of storage," Hurst said.

"We'll be spreading the semi-solids in the spring and fall. This will replace our daily spreading and provide for better and more efficient use of the nutrients in the manure."

George Hurst, right, and Tom Miller, herdsman, discuss plans for increasing size of registered Holstein herd to meet increasing demand for dairy products at Oregon dairy.

Hurst farms a total of 350 acres of cropland, including 100 acres of hay and the remainder in corn. Rye and barley, cut for haylage, are double-cropped.

The ration fed the herd includes silage, haylage and high moisture corn, along with a 30 percent supplement.

The herd production average is 14,700 pounds with 3.5 percent butterfat.

The current expansion program also included two new silos, one measuring 24 by 80 feet and the other 30 by 80 feet.

The main older barn on the farm will now be used as a calving facility and for growing heifers, according to Hurst.

"We've been stressing the dairy end of the business in the market," Hurst said.

"These new facilities should help us reach our two main goals of meeting the growing demand at the market and supply as good a product as possible."

Wide central aisle will permit more efficient drive-through feeding with a mixer wagon in the 412-foot-long barn at Oregon Dairy Farm.

Polygon milking parlor will handle 24 cows at one time in new free stall barn.

Several records set for state fur take

HARRISBURG — All previous records for returns on Pennsylvania furs were broken during the 1978-79 marketing year, according to final figures compiled by the Game Commission.

During the 1978-79 year, licensed raw fur dealers purchased 806,299 pelts taken in the state by trappers. The figure is higher than the 751,949 taken the preceding year.

Declines in the harvests of muskrats, opossums and weasels were recorded, while increases were noted in the harvests of skunks, minks, beavers, raccoons and red and gray foxes.

Dealers bought 287,431 raccoons from Pennsylvania trappers last year for $4,614,059.48, an average of $16.05 per pelt. Next on the value list were 392,137 muskrats, which brought $1,874,155.23, an average of $4.78 each.

The 26,003 red boxes bought in the Keystone State last year returned $1,461,933.44 to trappers, an average of $56.22 per pelt. This was the highest-priced pelt sold last year.

Following were 21,194 gray foxes, which dealers bought for $857,973.21, an average of $40.48 per pelt.

Other major items in the sale of furs were 62,631 opossums bought for $193,947.30, an average of $3.10 per skin; 5,266 minks which brought $82,035.90, an average of $15.58 each; 3,184 beavers which sold for $68,289.78, an average of $21.45 per pelt; and 989 weasels, which returned $538, or 54 cents each.

The $9,168,971.43 paid last year for the furs marketed in the state is a new record. Prior to the 1978-79 marketing year, the record prices paid for Pennsylvania furs were established in 1977-78, when Keystone pelts brought trappers $7,122,901.23.

The figures represent only furs harvested in Pennsylvania by hunters and trappers and bought by Pennsylvania licensed raw fur dealers. Furs shipped or transported out of state by the trapper or held for his or her own use are not included in the tabulations.

It is to be emphasized that the tabulations are for furs that were taken from November, 1978, through March, 1979, and purchased during the 1978-79 marketing year. The tabulations do not include furs marketed during the most recent 1979-80 furtaking seasons.

The value of Pennsylvania furs has changed drastically in the past few years. Prior to 1975, the total fur value never exceeded $3 million. The total value of all Pennsylvania furs ten years ago was $646,646. The $714,928.50 paid out for Keystone State furs in 1968 had been "the best fur season since 1955," according to a Game Commission news release at that time.

Proposed national climate plan seen as help to farmers

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Nation's first national climate plan, being drafted by the Government, is aimed at helping farmers and other Americans better anticipate the extent and impacts of climate variations, and use the knowledge for their benefit.

Edward S. Epstein, director of the National Climate Program, office of the Commerce Department's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Monday briefed members of a blue-ribbon advisory committee on the plan, which is still in its review stages. Representatives of other federal agencies involved in the program also discussed how their agencies will handle specific aspects of the plan.

"Advanced knowledge of rain patterns could have reduced economic hardship to farmers and disruptions in the world food supply," the draft plan points out.

"Climate information would allow shifting to new crops and storage and avoidance of some of the losses. Similarly, knowledge about temperature changes could save millions of dollars and hours of personal inconvenience."

A major goal of the plan is to provide public and institutional users with increased and more varied climate information. This will include both improved predictions of what the climate will be, and greater distribution of these predictions and other climate data to such groups as state climate offices, federal agencies, and independent climate experts. NOAA will be the lead agency in such efforts.

The Department of Energy will direct a major program to find out how the increase in atmospheric carbon dioxide — caused by burning fossil fuels — is affecting climate, and how to lessen adverse impacts. Policy options available for future planning will be evaluated during the five-year period of the draft plan.

The USDA and NOAA's National Marine Fisheries Service will continue their major study of the effect of weather extremes and climate fluctuations on the world's food supply. Additional research is being proposed into the biological response of livestock and fish to climate fluctuations.

USDA, as the lead agency, will determine requirements for climate information and prepare all management and technical plans.

Two major research efforts also will be undertaken to increase understanding of the effects of climate on our physical environment.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration will lead an effort to clarify the processes by which radiant energy from the sun is gained and lost by the earth's atmosphere system. Earth Radiation Budget Experiment Satellite is scheduled to be launched in Fiscal Year 1983.

In the second research area, the National Science Foundation will coordinate a major effort to increase understanding of the ocean's role in climate. Researchers will seek to find out how much heat is stored and transported by the oceans.

Advances in large-scale measurements of ocean currents and temperatures are planned, possibly leading to a series of major international experiments in the late 1980's and early 1990's.

The major strategy of the plan, Epstein noted in his presentation, is to emphasize early production of useful information, while simultaneously expanding our understanding of climate.

The fiscal 1981 budget request for all climate programs totals $135.6 million, and is forecast to level off in 1984 at $115.6 million.

The draft plan, the five-year program that it presents, and the advisory committee, were created under the National Climate Program Act of 1978 (Public Law 95-367). The committee will review the plan and recommend changes to the Secretary of Commerce and Congress.

Named to circle of honor

QUAKERTOWN — Charles J. Wonsidler of C.J. Wonsidler Bros. in R1 Quakertown, has been named the prestigious Allis-Chalmers Corporation "Circle of Honor" for outstanding agricultural equipment sales achievement in the Syracuse, N.Y. region. Wonsidler received his award, a specially designed plaque, at an honor and recognition banquet held at Park Place in Atlantic City, N.J.

The Allis-Chalmers 1980 sales and marketing planning meeting was held in conjunction with the awards banquet.

C.J. Wonsidler Bros. have been in business selling Allis-Chalmers farm machinery for 11 years.

Easter eggs tradition dates to 5000 B.C.

HARRISBURG — What do brightly colored eggs have to do with tradition? Coloring of eggs at Easter was first introduced to America in the 1600's by Dutch settlers in Pennsylvania and New York.

"The Dutch settlers brought with them many games centered around the brightly colored eggs. The customs of Easter eggs hunts and egg rolling soon spread throughout the country and are still being practiced today.

The tradition of the Easter egg goes as far back as 5,000 B.C. The tradition, surprisingly enough, began as a pagan custom, long before Christianity was a reality.

The egg symbolized the world to the pagans, and the color red represented the "force of life." Pagans exchanged eggs as tokens of goodwill at great spring festivals held each year. The festivals celebrated the beginning of a new year and renewal of life, new crops and a new food supply.

The Christian era, brought forth the teaching of the new faith But Christians chose to adopt spring celebrations and colored eggs at Easter. The egg became a Christian symbol for renewal of life, representing the resurrection of Christ.

As time passed, coloring eggs began to include all colors of the rainbow.

Many unusual Easter egg customs originated in Europe. In Italy, the custom was to have large quantities of colored eggs blessed in church on Easter eve. These blessed eggs were the first nourishment taken after Lent. Each family kept as many as two to three hundred colored eggs. Every guest was invited to eat an Easter Egg during the week following Easter.

Check planter units now, save yourself trouble later

LANCASTER — Just because your planter worked well a year ago, you've no assurance that it'll go to bat for you again this year — unless you've given it a thorough check-up this past winter or early this spring.

Wear and tear may have taken its toll, Tim Human warns. Human, agronomist for Pfizer Genetics Inc. for the Atlantic states, reports that countless farmers jeopardize their crop stands each spring simply because they don't take the time to give their planters a good once-over.

Worn parts, easily replaceable, or mechanisms that need a simple shot of grease, are the common but inexcusable reasons for reductions in yields, he says.

"With all types of planters, there are some common elements that should be routinely checked, once before the planting crunch begins and periodically during planting," advises Human. These checkpoints include:

Are all drive chains tight? Are all chains in good condition? Should they be tightened or replaced? Are chain sprockets showing signs of wear?

Are all bearings in good condition? Do they need grease? Replacement?

Are all hydraulic systems functioning properly?

Are the seed delivery lines or tubes clear of dirt? Do the seed drop monitors function correctly?

Are tires inflated properly? Improper inflation may cause slippage, distorting the planter's reading of distance traveled. That in turn can alter planting rate and the evenness of planting depth.

Are the markers functioning properly?

Human continues, "95 percent of all planters fit into one of three categories of design: Plate planters, finger mechanism plateless planters, and plateless air planters. Each design has its own set of unique mechanisms that require maintenance and periodic repair."

The agronomist lists the following recommendations for each.

Plate planters

The best habit to get into is to routinely replace all planter plates before each planting season. Wear may occur that impedes the efficient operation of the plate but which may not show up on the plate's wear gauge.

Investing each year in a new set of $2 plates is an inexpensive way to avoid jeopardizing stands with worn plates.

Check the knockout pall — the spring lever-roller that knocks each seed out of each plate — for rust, wear, breakage or dirt. When it doesn't do its job, you'll have skips in the row.

Give all parts a good cleaning. This is especially crucial if the planter has been left outdoors over the summer, fall and winter. Pay special attention to seed delivery tubes and seed drop sensors.

Finger plateless planters
The finger mechanisms are susceptible to wear and somewhat susceptible to breakage. Check these once a year.

The nylon paddle belt that delivers the seed from the finger mechanism to the seed drop should be checked for wear, breakage and proper functioning.

Manufacturers suggest that these planters be cleaned inside and out after every 50 hours of use.

It's also good to sprinkle a little powder graphite into the seed box during planting. The dry lubricant reduces wear of the finger mechanisms, while having no adverse effect on the crop.

Check that the seed boxes and drive mechanisms are properly aligned.

Plateless air planters

Check all air lines for leakage and blockage. Also test the air pump for steady airflow. Check all seals to insure against leakage.

Inspect seed-carrying holes in the drum, looking for holes that may have become enlarged. Also check the brushes and roller wheels in the drum for wear.

If the planter is of the type that has only one seed hopper, it's imperative that the seed monitoring system work exactly, since it's the only check against a single row operating incorrectly.

Human summarizes, "Anything that shows signs of wear should be replaced. Period. The expense for replacing a questionable part now is minimal to the cost of down time during planting."

"Most of this is very basic. But it's surprising how many farmers have trouble with their planters each spring. Giving the planter a good once-over ahead of time will help eliminate that problem."

Lincoln 4-H Club meets

LINCOLN — The Lincoln Community 4-H Club held its first meeting of the year at the home of leader Elmer Boyd, on March 24 at 7:30 p.m.

Projects were discussed and officers elected. Officers elected are Mike Pfautz, president, Dwight Graybill, vice-president, Andy Gehman, secretary, Kelly Ackley, treasurer, Ed Redcay, news reporter, Andy Graybill and Marcy Gehman, game leaders. Nancy L. Meyers, 4-H Agent, handed out project books and discussed future 4-H activities.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Elmer Boyd.

The next meeting will be held on April 28, 1980 at 7:30 p.m., at the home of Kelly Eckert.

Alternative energy fair slated at Twin Valley

ELVERSON — An alternative energy fair has been scheduled for April 17, 18, and 19 by the Twin Valley School District.

The fair will be open to residents in the surrounding areas as well as students from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., Friday and Saturday.

According to Ray Weaver, displays on windmills, solar panels, wood burning and stills will be set-up in the gym. Weaver noted that at least twenty spaces are already committed and about that many more could be filled.

Dennis Baylor, assistant engineer at Energy Development Corporation will lead off the public addresses at 10 a.m. Friday. His topic will be Wind Power.

At 1 p.m., Richard James, director at Schuylkill Valley Nature Center will speak on Economic-Environmental Balance in the auditorium.

Newton Bair, Lebanon County agent, will speak on Methane Production at 3:30 p.m. in the lecture hall.

And at 6 p.m., Morton Fry will talk on Hybrid Poplars as a Source of Alcohol Fuels.

A woodburning safety lecture will be given at 8 p.m. by Jim Lowry, Coventry Steve Sales.

Heading Saturday's agenda will be Bill Gross from Met Ed speaking on nuclear energy at 10 a.m. in the auditorium.

Newton Bair will address the group again at 1 p.m. on "Methane Production" in the lecture hall.

Also at 1 p.m., insulation will be discussed by John Garner in the auditorium.

Floyd Horst will speak at 2 p.m. on Alcohol Production in the auditorium.

At 4 p.m., John Kephart, an engineer at Du Pont Corporation will lecture on Industrial Energy Conservation.

Bob Patterson, from Gulf Oil will talk at 6 p.m. in the auditorium on Petroleum Refining and Consumer Interests.

Admission charges will be $1 for adults, $2 for families, and senior citizens will be admitted free.

USDA proposes reduced meat reporting

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A proposed rule by the U.S. Department of Agriculture would require meat production figures from the industry on an annual, rather than a weekly, basis.

Donald L. Houston, administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service, said the rule would reduce the paperwork burden on the meat industry.

"FSQS has reevaluated its needs and determined that production data received annually from official meat establishments would be adequate for performing its regulatory responsibilities under the Federal Meat Inspection Act," Houston said.

The proposed rule was published in the March 25 Federal Register, available at local libraries. Written comments should be sent, by May 26, to: Executive Secretariat, Attn: Annie Johnson, FSQS, USDA, room 3807-S, Washington, D.C., 20250.

NO.1 REASON FOR NO-TILL.

No matter how you slice it, No-Till-age farming is more economical than conventional farming and every bit as productive. The secret is a super-efficient herbicide called ORTHO Paraquat CL. It kills on contact with extraordinary speed and destroys an exceptionally broad spectrum of unwanted weeds and grasses.

After spraying with Paraquat and your recommended residual herbicide, you simply plant corn or soybeans right into the stubble of a preceding crop. There is no tillage involved. You save time, labor, and since No-Till is a once across the field operation, significant fuel costs. For best results, apply Paraquat with ORTHO X-77 Spreader.

DANGER: Paraquat is highly toxic if swallowed and should be kept out of the reach of children. To prevent accidental ingestion, never transfer to food, drink or other containers. Read the label carefully and follow all directions, danger statements and worker safety rules. Restricted Use Pesticide. Use all chemicals only as directed.

Penn State computer game teaches crop management

UNIVERSITY PARK — Using computers, College of Agriculture students at Penn State are learning the strategies of decision making in managing crops.

The computers are programmed to show the consequences of various decisions student "farmers" can make in growing potatoes. Students "grow" a crop over and over again, sharpening skills in management.

The students have all the latest tools available for crop management, including pest forecasting systems, an entire "menu" of agrichemicals, different varieties, and the best equipment such as sprayers and weedeers.

The growing season, using computers, is made up of 16 weeks of typical Pennsylvania weather. This means the weather goes from good to bad and back again in a complex and changing pattern.

In charge of the course is David R. MacKenzie, associate professor of plant pathology. He describes the learning process as a game, but very realistic in that the student's bottom line is evaluated in dollars and cents.

MacKenzie terms this game unusual for education. At the end of the game, even if the student has lost large amounts of money, the machine says, "want to try again?"

Each week the student must decide which pest must be controlled and at what cost. A total accounting of expenses is available at a moment's notice, which helps in deciding when to sell the crop.

Students have access to a futures market with a fluctuating price that can be used to "beat the machine." If the student chooses not to sell in this way, the crop is automatically sold at harvest for whatever the market will pay.

"Successful growers have often learned these managements skills through failure," MacKenzie remarked. "The consequences are often very costly and leave the grower reluctant toward change."

The student is scored against the machine's ability, not only in terms of dollars but also in total farming skills. Someone doing moderately well would be judged a "hired hand." A superior performance is given a "master farmer" rating.

The student can, at any point in time, ask for graphs of key environmental factors or the progress of pests as they increase.

At the end of each game, the student may elect to test a different strategy under the exact same weather pattern. Or the student can test the same cropping strategy under different weather conditions.

the powdery mildew disease. This complex game gives advanced graduate students an opportunity to test genetic theory as applied to crop management.

The other new game focuses on methods of sampling crops to estimate yield loss. Students are allowed to uproot any one of a number of bean plants to inspect them for root rot. Once a plant is pulled, it is considered dead.

The occurrence of root rot is related, through a very complex mathematical model, to the final yield of beans. Students must unravel the complex relationship. In so doing, MacKenzie pointed out, they gain experience in analyzing the occurrence, distribution, and control of plant disease.

"When you consider that a student can grow 20 crops of potatoes, or breed 10 wheat varieties, or rip up 100 acres of beans in one session at the computer, the cost is very cheap — a lot less costly than doing it with actual crops," he concluded.

Working on the project were two undergraduate students in computer science, Deborah A. Krawczak of Pittsburgh and Alan L. Claver of Haver-town.

Another 7 to 11 percent hike in food prices in forecast this year by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Nearly three-fourths of the increase will go to the non-farm sector to pay marketing costs.

Penn State student Nancy A. Noyes practices crop management skills on a home computer system as part of a new method of instruction.

"This use of interactive computing in agricultural education has just begun," MacKenzie commented. "With the recent development of relatively inexpensive home-computing systems, we anticipate that students of tomorrow will gain experience in farming through computer games."

This approach to teaching agricultural production was so well received by advanced graduate students that MacKenzie and associates developed two other games. The first game allows students to design wheat varieties with different types of resistance to

Pork producers call for swine fever research

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Pork Producers Council has called for increased funding for research on African Swine Fever and other swine industry concerns. Ritchie Jordan, NPPC Legislative Committee chairman, testified during hearings on the 1981 federal budget before the U.S. House and Senate Appropriations Committees Monday and Tuesday.

Jordan asked that an additional one million dollars be directed to the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service for increased garbage feeding surveillance and disease diagnosis. He asked that this effort to control ASF be concentrated in high risk areas such as ship ports and international airports.

"ASF is certainly a disease that we are very concerned about. I feel it is no exaggeration that this million spent now could save billions in the future," Jordan said. The NPPC also asked for $600,000 in additional funding for other research on ASF.

In his testimony Jordan explained the National Pork Producers Council does not suggest increasing the budget to cover research in these austere times, but rather that funds be redirected to the most productive programs.

David Meisinger, NPPC's Director of Research, said the estimated return on investment in swine research is about 52 percent.

"This is higher than any other species of livestock and is much higher than most manufacturing firms. I think this just emphasizes the productive nature of these programs," he explained.

Jordan also urged funding for a comprehensive review of the need for nitrite in food processing, the hazards of eliminating it from food and the economic impact of banning it.

Support for funding unbiased research on the possible relationship between diet and coronary heart disease was expressed by Jordan. Similar research was also proposed on nutritional labeling, with a moratorium on further changes in the regulations until conclusive results are known.

During his testimony, Jordan also advocated full funding of the Roman L. Hruska U.S. Meat Animal Research Center at Clay Center, Nebraska, increased funding of cooperative research on animal health and pilot project funds for the development of a comprehensive swine record system by the extension service.

The League of Womens Voters and ARCO issued an invitation to members of Farm Women to participate in a free car-care clinic. In-hand instructions on maintenance and trouble shooting enabling women to help themselves will be presented. Dates and locations will be announced in local papers.

Hospice of Lancaster County, a program for the terminally ill and their families, was voted to be the County Project for 1980. Contributions should be sent to Audrey Myer, county treasurer.

Mary Alice Fyock presented the suggestions of her committee for a memorial for Mary Alice Gregory. After discussion, it was decided to purchase a clock for the Lititz Public Library.

The next meeting of the Executive Board will be held June 3.

NEMA plans to look at marketing, labor

LANCASTER — Prompted by the intense concern of egg producers over the immediate egg marketing outlook, NEMA has moved to bring the facts of the situation before Pennsylvania producers and those of surrounding areas.

This statement comes from Bill Rent, General Manager of Northeast Egg Marketing Association commenting on the growing registration for NEMA's producer conference slated for April 17 at the Continental Inn in Lancaster.

Frank Koebrick

Three informed individuals with a finger on the marketing pulse of white and brown eggs will serve as a panel under the leadership of Jay Irwin, Lancaster County extension agent, as moderator. The participants will be Al Wenger, Rheems, president of NEMA; John Ricca of Billerica, Massachusetts, Vice President of NEMA, and Cary Bradley of Decatur, Georgia, chief statistician for United Egg Producers.

A presentation that is expected to trigger much interest will be a talk on Farm Labor Relations by Attorney George Isaacson of Lewiston, Maine.

He is the author of United Egg Producer's "Labor Alert Newsletter."

Isaacson conducts an advisory telephone hot-line."

George Isaacson

service for NEMA - UEP members who may from time to time find themselves confronted with problems ranging from routine minimum wage and overtime questions to full wage and hour audits.

Isaacson is expected to have some interesting comments on how small corporations may best handle the issue of compensating yourself, if you happen to be that farming corporation's highest paid employee.

He will be talking about the pros and cons of hiring older workers and will have recommendations on managing cost in the area of workmen's compensation claims.

Isaacson is a graduate of Bowdoin College and an honors graduate of University of Pennsylvania School of Law.

Frank Koebrick, President and Manager of Egg Clearinghouse, Durham, New Hampshire, will also be on the NEMA program. Since taking over the helm at ECI he has been making contacts with a number of producer groups around the country.

This will be his first visit to the heart of the Pennsylvania egg basket.

The day's program is slated to get under way at 10 a.m. sharp, with adjournment at 4 p.m. If you are a flock owner, but not yet a member of NEMA, and would like to attend the conference and luncheon write to Charles A. O'Reilly, Secretary of NEMA, 136 Harrison Ave., Hightstown, N.J. 08520.

USDA to award grants to study nutrition program

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture will award $15 million in fiscal year 1980 for studies and demonstration projects to evaluate and improve the special supplemental food program for women, infants and children.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Foreman Tucker said Friday.

The program for women, infants and children provides nutrition education and supplemental foods to pregnant, breastfeeding or post-partum women, and to infants and children ages up to five, based on low income and nutritional need.

State and local health agencies, non-profit organizations and universities may apply for the grants.

"USDA will attempt to fund a variety of studies and pilot projects in both urban and rural areas," Foreman said. "We will give special consideration to projects that could be adapted for national use. We're also interested in pilot projects to improve the delivery of program benefits to Indians.

"Projects which experiment with new ways to use USDA commodities in the program are of special interest," she said. "USDA is also interested in projects designed to assist state and local agencies in activities such as monitoring the distribution of the food package, providing nutrition education in grocery stores, and providing transportation for participants."

Those interested in applying for the grants should contact Contracting Officer, Administrative Services Division, Food and Nutrition Service, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250. Applications must be received by May 23. No project can last longer than 18 months.

Maryland Milk Producers to study merger

COCKEYSVILLE — Merger or consolidation with another cooperative or group of cooperatives will be studied during the coming year by the board of directors of Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers.

A resolution calling for the study, which was introduced by the board, was approved Saturday at the MCMP annual membership meeting.

The resolution, more general in nature, was approved over another introduced from District 8, which called for specific development of a plan of merger or consolidation with Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative.

The District 8 resolution would have called for a report to the membership within six months.

The approved resolution reads:

"Be it resolved that the members of Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc. support the general consensus of the District 8 resolution with reference to merger or consolidation and support board activities to develop long-range goals for submission to the membership at or before the 1981 annual meeting, such activities to include but not be limited to consideration of merger or consolidation with a cooperative or group of cooperatives."

The annual meeting, attended by more than 600, also featured warnings from MCMP officials that continuing rising milk production and declining consumption will be at the center of problems looming in the future for dairymen.

Although production increases in the Middle Atlantic Marketing Area in the last half of 1979 have been less than half the national rate, according to R. L. Strock, business manager, there is evidence that things are changing.

"MCMP member deliveries, which for 1979 were one percent below a year earlier, posted a four percent daily gain in February and March deliveries are showing a gain of 5 to 5½ percent," he said.

Milk production in the U.S. is up three percent over a year ago and production hikes in major states show Wisconsin up one percent, California up 8 percent and Pennsylvania up 9 percent.

Strock outlined continuing declines in the consumption of fresh whole milk as compared to rising per capita sales of skim and low fat milk.

This is of special interest, Strock said, in view of efforts to exempt milk made from the reconstitution of skim milk powder from the pricing provisions of Federal Milk Orders.

Such factors as changes in age and racial composition, as well as declining population in some segments of the sales areas, will have an on-going effect on milk consumption, he said.

H.W. Wessel, Jr., president of the cooperative, directed attention to government support costs.

"At the April 1 level," he said, "it is estimated that the government may have to spend over one billion dollars in 1980."

Wessel gave the opinion that proposed budget cuts at the federal level would surely apply against the dairy support program.

"If any counter-price action is taken by the Administration or Congress, I don't believe it will result in lowering of prices but there may be extreme pressure against any increases in the near future or until use comes more in line with demand," he said.

The cooperative's biggest plus for the year was the addition of Holly Milk Cooperative, according to Wessel.

"I am convinced that Holly now has the worst behind it and it is about ready to go and will be a real asset to all MCMP and Inter-State members in the 80's," he said.

It was reported that due to the rising milk production rates higher quantities would be available for Holly.

In May, it is expected that MCMP will have 25 million pounds available for Holly. An equal amount may also be available from Inter-State.

A number of awards were presented at the meeting honoring veteran membership in the cooperative and the production of quality milk in 1979.

Three families were honored for 50 years of continuous family membership. Honored for the half-century achievement were Robert and Phyllis Bassler, New Windsor, Md.; Charles H. Streett, III, and C. Howard Streett, Jr., of Edge Hill Farms, Inc., R1, Quicksburg, Va.; and Charles and Zita Huffard, Sparks, Md.

Recipients of the Excellence Awards for quality milk production included Howard and Geneva Barkdoll, Boonsboro, Md.; Claude and Kevin Cooper, New Freedom, Pa.; Glenn and Dolores Daugherty, Greencastle, Pa.; Robert and Norma Grove, Greencastle; George and Emma Herdon, Jr., Keymar, Md.; Hans and V. L. Wortman, Purcellville, Va.; George and Helen and Carl Owings, Westminster, Md.

Also, Martin Poole, Thurmont, Md.; Raymond and Mabel Schrock, Grantsville, Md.; Robert and Donald and John Smith,

THE VERSATILE POTATO

Potato varieties offer a diverse assortment of shapes and sizes. The smart shopper should take advantage of the plentiful supply.

Potato varieties are classified by shape, long or round, and skin color, white, russet, or red. While potato varieties can be used interchangeably, individual preference often governs the choice. In general, however, russets, have a dry, mealy texture, and are often used for baking, while round reds, which have a firmer, moister texture, are often chosen for boiling. Round or long, whites are popular for either use. New potatoes are those harvested before the skins are set. When called for, any variety — red or white, long or round — may be used.

To select the best potato, look for those that are firm, smooth, well shaped, free from blemishes, sprouts and with few eyes. Avoid those with large cuts, growth cracks, bruises, large skinned or discolored areas, and decay. Also avoid those that are all or partially green. Green areas, which may affect the potato flesh underneath the skin, give the potato a bitter taste and must be peeled before eating. Don't buy potatoes with second-growth irregular, knob-shaped areas. Cutting these away will cause considerable waste. Internal defects can only be discovered when the potato is cut. Two such defects are hollow heart, resulting from too rapid growth, and internal discoloration, which can be caused by improper field or storage condition, freezing or disease.

The packaging usually carried the type and origin of the potatoes, in addition to the weight. The USDA grade, or the packer's grade, is not required by federal law and thus is not always indicated. U.S. No. 1 is the grade most often available and it indicates that there is some variance in the size and quality of the potatoes. U.S. Extra No. 1 is the premium grade and is based on more uniform potato size and quality.

MOST ELDERLY LEAD INDEPENDENT LIVES

Special services for the elderly such as senior citizens' centers, meals on wheels, and low-income housing are positive and necessary.

It's important to remember, though, that most people over 65 are healthy and independent. More are working for income than ever before, because of recent legislation pushing mandatory retirement age from 65 to 70 for many.

Despite the image of a nursing home bound population, 3/4's of the men and 1/2 women in their late 60's are married and living with a spouse. Only about 4% of those in their late 60's or over live in institutions—mostly in rest homes or mental hospitals.

While many do live alone—and well over half of elderly women may be living alone by the year 2000—living alone has rapidly become a life style among young as well as old.

There are a few reasons for this trend. Young and old have greater economic independence, and elderly persons have better health making it easier to continue housekeeping functions.

Berks Co.

Farm Women Board meeting held

The bi-monthly meeting of the Berks County Farm Women Board was held at the Berks County Ag Center

The Berks-Heim picnic is scheduled for June 8, and the tea for May 17. They need knitting yarn, lap robes, and men's western cowboy books

Bingo will be held April 17 at 7 p.m. Group 10 will bring the coffee. One uniced angel food cake is needed from each group.

Spring Rally will be held May 1. Everyone must make their own name tags.

Hoe-down tickets for April 19 will be $1.75 for adults and $1.00 for children 6-12. Youngsters under 5 will be admitted free.

Each group is asked to bring 3 door prizes and 2 cakes, and to hang posters in their area.

It was decided to participate in the October 4 Berks Campus dedication service.

KEEP IT CLEAN

Dishwasher detergents readily take up and retain moisture and carbon dioxide gas from the atmosphere. When this occurs, the product may become lumpy. As long as it properly dissolves, it can be used, but may be less effective. Because of this, the product should be stored in a cool, dry area. Under the kitchen sink is generally too warm and moist to keep the detergent in optimum condition. An upper cabinet is better. Besides, it is safer if young children are in the home.

Wastebaskets need frequent washing. Check receptacles throughout the house—kitchen, bathroom, study areas. Wash with a sudsy sponge. You may also want to add a disinfectant to the wash water. Rinse and dry. For easier cleaning, line the bottom with a paper or plastic bag to prevent dirt and grit from collecting.

START WITH THE BEST! POURED CONCRETE WALLS

You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement.

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs. more per cubic foot! Far denser. What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic—there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration.

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured, solid concrete basements are competitively priced.

Solid Concrete For:

- Manure Pit Walls
- Hog House Walls
- Barnyard Walls
- Chicken House Walls
- Retaining Walls
- House Foundation Walls

More feed production and better cow health can be attained with better pasture management. On many farms in Lancaster County, pastures are being relied upon less and less each year. In an effort to increase feed production, pastureland that can be tilled is being converted to cropland. And, as pastures decrease in significance, they become easier to neglect.

However, pastures are valuable as a source of good quality feed, sunlight and fresh air. Cows that are confined year-round benefit from a few weeks of fresh forage. The pastures also offer these cattle an opportunity for more exercise, and the sod is a welcome reprieve from those hard concrete surfaces they are constantly exposed to.

I am not recommending that good cropland be converted back to pasture, but I am saying that much of the untillable land that is currently in pasture could be improved with a little management. The benefits may be greater than just the value of the extra forage produced. Pastures may improve herd health and milk production, and this could be far more valuable than the extra forage that is produced.

To start improving pastures, my first recommendation usually is liming - not reseeding. Most pastures have sufficient grass and grass seeds present, and all they need is a little encouragement. Liming is basic to everything else. It helps create the proper soil environment.

After liming, fertilize. It's not important that they be done in this precise order. The important point is, if lime is needed, be sure to apply it soon. It helps you make better use of the fertilizer you apply, and that is important at today's costs. The best guide to know how much lime and fertilizer is needed is a soil test. Most pastures will respond very well to this treatment. It's much cheaper and easier than renovation and reseeding. There is less chance for failure and less erosion.

Once this is accomplished, the next step is to protect the sod by regulating the grazing pattern of the herd. Where feasible, this can be accomplished by dividing the pasture into several paddocks - perhaps four, then graze them on a rotational basis. This gives you the flexibility of keeping cattle out of specific areas when they are wet. In addition to preventing cattle from cutting up wet areas, this will also reduce the problem of foot rot and coliform mastitis. Some of these wet areas could be tilled to increase productivity and reduce herd health problems.

Most pastures have a flush of growth in early spring. If the cattle are unable to keep up with the rapid growth, a flatter section of the pasture can be fenced off, permitting the early growth to be harvested for hay. The hay can be fed later in the summer to help supplement pastures as they dry up.

For greater productivity and for higher quality forage, never let your pasture grasses get old; keep them young and vegetative. Rotate cattle rapidly, in early spring, from one paddock to another, to keep up with the rapidly growing grass.

This rotational grazing pattern also gives you an opportunity to manage the pasture properly, and it gives the grass a chance to recover after each grazing. After each grazing, the paddock should be clipped. This keeps the grasses young, it helps greatly to control weeds, and it reduces fly and parasite problems by scattering manure piles. Herbicides, lime and fertilizer can also be applied without affecting the cattle.

I like garlic and onions, but not with my milk. If garlic is a problem in your pasture it can be controlled by spraying very early in the spring, when you first notice the garlic, with 2,4-D LV 4. For best results, spray early in the spring, and repeat the following year, if necessary. This same material, applied later in the year, will control many other broadleaf weeds, too. It will also kill out pasture legumes. For harder-to-kill broadleaf weeds, Banvel can be used alone or in a tank mix with 2,4-D. One weed that has been increasing in heavily stocked pastures and lots and along cow lanes is the bushy, thorny, form of red root. It too can be controlled with the above materials.

Sometimes it is not possible to divide the pasture into several paddocks. To regulate grazing patterns in these situations, consider the following suggestions: Fence off a small section close to the barn as an exercise lot and allow cattle to graze the sodded areas only at precise times - a few hours each day, only at night, only when dry enough, etc. You'll have no grass in the exercise lot, but you will at least preserve some grass in the remainder of the pasture.

In the heat of summer, cattle do most of their grazing at night. During these months, it may be more profitable to keep cows in a well-ventilated barn during the heat of the day and let them graze at night;

they'll trample the pasture less, and a well-ventilated barn may be cooler than a sunny pasture.

YOUR NEW YAZOO DEALER

It's cheaper to buy a Yazoo on credit than a cheap mower for cash.

"Weekends are for living, not for cutting grass.
I got myself a Yazoo and cut my lawn in half."

Mowing the lawn used to kill my weekend. Then I bought a Yazoo Commercial Mower. Now I can mow my whole place after work while my wife's cooking supper. On weekends, I fish.

If you've got a big lawn with lots of trees and shrubs, we believe our Yazoo mower will cut your mowing time in half - or better. Including the trimming. That's compared to your regular belly slung riding mower.

Surprisingly, the Yazoo Commercial Rider costs no more than a similar sized homeowner's. In residential use, it should last you a lifetime.

Call us. We'll be glad to bring one out and let you try it on your place. 76, 60, 48, 42 and 36 inch cuts.

Figure it out. Many homeowners are still using Yazoos they bought 15 and 20 years ago.

Western Pa. milk order may change promo funding rate

PITTSBURGH — A recommended decision that would change the funding rate for advertising and promotion under the Eastern Ohio-Western Pennsylvania milk marketing order has been issued, it was announced by officials of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Herbert L. Forest, dairy official with the Agricultural Marketing Service, said that the recommended decision was reached following a public hearing August 14 to 16, 1979, in Corapolis.

The hearing had been requested by the Greater Pittsburgh Dairy Industry Association, Meadow Brook Dairy Co., and Milk Marketing, Inc. Additional proposals by Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Inc., National Farmers Organization and Producers Dairy Co. were also considered at the hearing.

The key proposal in the recommended decision would change the advertising and promotion assessment from a fixed rate to a rate based on the average price that handlers pay farmers for their milk.

Forest pointed out that initially this would increase the assessment to nine cents per hundredweight from the current rate of five cents. The change would not affect the amount consumers pay for milk in the market order area. The rate increase was recommended to keep pace with the constantly increasing costs of operating the program.

Also adopted in the recommended decision is a proposal that cooperative association can offset their pool payment obligations by the amount of pool credits due them.

Another recommended amendment would eliminate the channeling of handler payments to individual producers through the market administrator. Such procedure, in use since October 1978, imposed an added cash flow burden on handlers buying milk directly from producers.

Not recommended, however, was a proposal that would have eliminated the channeling of handler payments to cooperatives through the market administrator. Forest said that the current procedure, also in effect since October 1978, had corrected a serious delinquency problem with handler payments to cooperatives and should be continued.

The recommended decision was published in the March 20 Federal Register. The public will be provided 15 days from that date to submit exceptions to the recommended decision in writing to the Hearing Clerk, rm. 1077-S, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

World's leading line of pulverizers

BRILLION PULVERIZER BREAKS CLODS; MAKES FOOD AVAILABLE TO PLANTS.

The Brillion Pulverizer is used after plowing, before or after planting — to break up hard dirt clods so hungry, sprouting seeds can get the rich nutrients inside. It leaves soil packed and free of air pockets, so moisture can be drawn up from below by capillary action.

Brillion "Quality Crafted" pulverizers will help cover seed and firm the seedbed, help hold moisture, push stones down, give seedlings a faster start. Husky and durable, they're built to take the punishment of today's high speed farming.

Offered with single or double rollers, single and triple gangs, widths to 22 feet in a variety of styles, also transport units.

One farmer feeds 65

Each American farmer now feeds 65 people, and this is symbolically illustrated during a picnic lunch at IH's exhibit in Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry. Doug Erickson, 34, left, who farms 700 acres near Mokena, Ill., about 30 miles southwest of Chicago, represented the U.S. farmer. Receiving the meal of hot dogs, french fries and milk were students and adults from area elementary and junior high schools.

USDA says meat graders must wear white frocks

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has amended meat grading regulations to require that meat graders and their supervisors wear clean, white frocks, effective July 1.

Meat graders, as well as butchers and other plant personnel, customarily wear frocks. The amendment assures the maintenance of sanitary standards by making clean, white frocks mandatory for graders and their supervisors while they are working with meat, said Carol Tucker Forman, assistant secretary of agriculture.

Following adoption of this regulation, provision will be made under the Federal Employees Uniform Allowance Act to reimburse employees for the cost of their uniforms.

Twenty-six of the 29 comments received after the amendment was proposed last October were favorable.

Copies of the amendment are available from Meat

Quality Division, Food Safety and Quality Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., 20250.

USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service establishes grade standards and provides official grading for many food products, under authority of the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946. Use of the standards and grading service is voluntary and paid for by the user.

The regulation was published in the March 25 Federal Register.

How Baltimore County plans to save its farms

BALTIMORE, Md. — Today Baltimore county, Maryland could be characterized as a land of suburbs and steel plants, shopping centers, and industrial parks.

Once upon a time, this county adjoining the city of Baltimore was mostly farmland.

In the last three decades the population has increased two-and-a-half times, from 270,000 in 1950 to 686,000 in 1977. Continued steady growth is predicted for the remainder of the century.

There are still 850 farm operators in Baltimore County, but just about all the farm supply dealers and food processors are gone.

The citizens of Baltimore

County, like citizens in many other parts of the nation, have decided to try to hold on to their remaining farmland — an irreplaceable natural resource. Their new and still evolving plan for farmland preservation shows real promise, says Gerald F. Vaughn, Delaware extension community and resource development coordinator, and may be worth looking into for our own future needs in Delaware.

It relies on restrictive zoning plus compensation to farm-owners for losses in land value caused by the zoning.

According to a report by the Farmland Preservation Institute, Inc. of Bethesda, Md., Baltimore County Council has adopted the master plan formulated over the past three years.

The Council has also established new regulations for an agricultural zone and three other resource conservation zones; has passed enabling legislation to permit the county to participate in the state farmland preservation program; and has committed itself to use a growth management system to carry out the master plan.

Growth will be encouraged in the areas with adequate roads, sewers, and other public services, but discouraged in the agricultural zone and some of the resource conservation zones. To enforce the controlled growth philosophy, no building permits will be issued anywhere in the county lacking adequate facilities such as water, sewerage, and transportation.

While all of the techniques in the Baltimore county approach to farmland preservation have been used elsewhere, the combination of agricultural zoning, voluntary agricultural districts, and purchase of development rights is unique.

According to Vaughn, one of the most promising aspects of the approach is that agricultural preservation is treated as part of a larger framework involving a master plan and a growth management system.

Most of the county's farmland and forest acreage has been placed within the agricultural zone, in which no lot smaller than two acres may be subdivided; a lot of two to 100 acres may be subdivided into no more than two lots; and lots of more than 100 acres may be subdivided into no more than one lot for every 50 acres.

Permitted use within the agricultural zone include homes for farmers and their tenants, roadside stands, and, by special exception, such agricultural support uses as farm machinery sales and service, farm supply companies and food processing plants.

This provision was included at the behest of farmers in the hopes that it may provide the opportunity for agribusiness to re-establish itself in the county.

Under the terms of Maryland's farmland preservation plan, the county is setting up voluntary agricultural districts and instituting a program for purchase of development rights.

The particulars of this aspect of the county plan are still under discussion, but farmer acceptance of restrictive zoning was conditioned on having a development easement program in place quickly.

The state provides 60-40 matching funds to counties that wish to purchase development rights.

Baltimore County's Agricultural Advisory Board has recommended the purchase of development rights on roughly 85,000 acres, or about half the total farmland acreage in the county, over the next 20 years. The county plans to buy development rights to 4200 acres each year, at an average cost of $1800 per acre.

This averages out to an annual cost of over $7.5 million and a total cost of $150 million — certainly a major item in the county budget.

But Baltimore County is relatively affluent and anxious to preserve its remaining farmland.

E-town Pig and Rabbit

Club elects officers

MARIETTA — The Elizabethtown Pig and Rabbit Club held its reorganizational meeting at the home of Warren Heisey, the club leader.

Officers elected were: Stanley Heisey, president; Kirby Umholtz, vice-president; Bruce Sipling, secretary-treasurer; Wayne Gish and Steven Heisey, song leaders; Jeff Wagner and Randy Watts, game leaders; and Scott Sipling, news reporter.

Kirby Umholtz and Bruce Sipling were also appointed County Council representatives.

Nancy Meyers gave a brief rundown on future 4-H activities.

The club's next meeting is set for May 2 at Jean Wagner's home.

Livestock marketers ask cutback in Packers Act funding

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Livestock Marketing Association is asking Congress to "sharply reduce or delete" funding for administration of the Packers and Stockyards Act, saying the Act is no longer needed as it relates to the livestock marketing sector.

In a statement Monday before the House Appropriations subcommittee on agriculture, rural development and related agencies, LMA said the estimated $8.9 million sought by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to enforce the Act in fiscal 1981 is "unrealistically and unnecessarily high."

This is particularly true, the statement said, "in light of the contemporary mood of the nation insisting upon fiscal restraint and in view of the historical developments in livestock marketing, which raise serious questions regarding the very need for these provisions of the Act."

The statement noted that when the P&S Act was adopted in 1921, there were only a few large terminal stockyards, which were regulated as public utilities.

However, "Congress has explicitly denounced the public utility concept," in a House report which accompanied the 1978 marketing rates and tariffs deregulation bill, the statement said.

The House report noted, "It is apparent, due to the tremendous growth in the number of posted stockyards, that the monopoly theory under which livestock markets were first brought under regulation by Congress in 1921 is no longer appropriate."

LMA said it is "also inappropriate to continue funding a program which has lost its vitality in terms of business practice and fiscal integrity."

The Kansas City-based trade group, which furnishes business services to over 1500 subscribing livestock markets, dealers, brokers, feedlots and livestock transporters in the U.S. and Canada, said "The costs to our subscribers of complying with the P&S Act are astonishing."

The statement noted the federal Office of Management and Budget, Congressional investigations and the General Accounting Office are currently looking in the paperwork burden imposed by the Act, and the costs of complying with the regulations.

LMA also pointed out committees of both the House and Senate have endorsed the Trade Group's Crime Prevention in Livestock Marketing Act as an amendment to the revised Federal Criminal Code. This act would provide for stiff penalties and imprisonment for a variety of interstate livestock marketing frauds.

Because enforcement of this act would fall to the Justice Department, "any expenditure by the Agricultural Marketing Service, or USDA's Office of General Counsel in this regard are duplicative and unnecessary... this leaves funding of the administration of the P&S Act by the AMS highly debatable."

Other highlights from the statement, which was also delivered Wednesday before the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on agriculture, rural development and related agencies were a request that no more lawyers should be hired for USDA's Office of General Counsel.

"In a day when citizens are literally outraged by the expanding role of government in their everyday private lives, it would seem at best imprudent to furnish nine additional attorneys to further plague the private sector and almost by definition dream up still more regulation that has never been and will never be necessary."

LMA questions whether the process of administrative appeal of decisions under the P&S Act to USDA's Judicial Officer should continue. The Trade Group's subscribers will continue to seek ultimate jurisdiction in the United States Court of Appeals.

USDA should not be allowed to pay "so-called public participants" in rule making procedures, a program for which the Department has neither "implicit or explicit" authority, LMA said.

Farm Bureau calls for end to Russian grain embargo

PARK RIDGE, IL. — The general farm organization end of the U.S. embargo of head of the nation's largest has called for the immediate grain to the Soviet Union on the grounds that it is ineffective and damaging both to American agriculture and to the nation's economy.

Robert Delano, a Virginia grain producer and president of the three million member-family American Farm Bureau Federation, accused Carter and administration officials, including Secretary of Agriculture Bergland, of failing to keep faith with farmers in protecting them as promised, against price drops caused by the market intervention.

Delano noted that Bergland refused to exercise his authority to declare a paid land diversion to remove cropland equivalent to the 17 million metric tons of embargoed grain sales. He said that present depressed prices are expected to decline further this fall when new crop grain is added to the unsold carryover stocks.

The farm leader reminded Carter that Bergland promised farmers: "If you wait, we will make sure you don't take a loss."

"We have waited for three months. It is past the best time for the administration to act in keeping this promise," Delano said.

The Farm Bureau president added that "farmers are hardest hit among citizens making economic sacrifices at a time when soaring inflation and near impossible credit conditions have caused a cash-flow crisis in rural America.

"Prices for corn, wheat, and soybeans have fallen in the country and will remain depressed as long as a large tonnage of these commodities is held by the government.

"We gave reluctant support to the boycott on the basis of national security," Delano said, adding that very little supportive security action has occurred.

"These security measures should have included the severing of all business and cultural contacts and ties with the Soviet Union, other than those diplomatic contacts necessary to resolve the current situation.

"This should include cancellation of the contract to televise the 1980 Summer Olympic games; full enlistment of allies in backing expanded sanctions and public rejection of the Salt Two treaty," Delano concluded.

Emergency farm loan bill signed by President

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Jimmy Carter has signed into law legislation authorizing up to $2 billion in additional emergency farm loans to financially strapped farmers who might otherwise be forced out of business due to sagging farm prices, tight credit, and high interest rates.

The President had earlier threatened to veto the legislation, which was authored by U.S. Congressman Tom Harkin of Iowa. The bill extends the Economic Emergency Assistance loan program, which was due to expire in May, and authorized up to an additional $2 billion in emergency farm loans under the program.

Carter had earlier objected to Harkin's bill because it did not raise interest rates for loans under the program to "prevailing market rates." Instead, it continued the current "cost of money to the government, plus up to one per cent rate."

Harkin argued Congress should continue the "cost of money" rate, which is substantially below current market rates, because farmers are facing low prices, tight money supplies, and high interest rates, a combination Harkin described as "potentially disastrous" for the farm economy.

Congress voted to continue the current "cost of money" rate, and sent the bill to the President last week. The President signed it into law Sunday.

Bradford-Sullivan ladies learn about piecing lives and quilts

BY JANE BRESEE
Staff Correspondent
MIDDLETON — "If you can sew, you can make a quilt", said Joyce Nichols of Milan, Bradford County.

Joyce was speaking to the farm women attending Ladies Day Out at the Monroeton Fire Hall. She was the morning speaker at the annual luncheon affair sponsored by the Women's Committee of the Bradford-Sullivan County Farmers' Association.

Joyce, now a veteran quilter and volunteer teacher for county extension classes in quilting, started 13 or 14 years ago, she said, and for the most part is self taught. "If you really want to do something, you can do it," she encouraged the audience of 30 farm women.

Making one quilt a year is her goal. Her latest is a butterfly quilt, with plain brown quilted squares interspersed with squares of appliqued butterflies. One of her favorite designs is the sunbonnet girl. One such quilt top took 500 or 600 hours of work, she said, which doesn't include putting on the backing and doing the quilting.

Some quilts on display were made by Bea Simons, another quilter, who also helps teach extension classes. Others included a log cabin quilt, a heavily embroidered crazy quilt, flower garden, postage stamp, and a baby quilt done in a yo-yo design by Joyce for her first grandchild.

The day long meeting was chaired by Jean Tiffany, county women's committee chairman, and also a member of the state women's committee of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association. She introduced her husband, Fred Tiffany, state director, who spoke briefly about the local structure of PFA. Jeff Patton, Regional Organization Director, also talked, explaining the organization at the state level.

Following the luncheon, June Langan, director of treatment of Quo Vadis, a drug and alcohol detoxification unit and half-way house located in North Towanda, was introduced. She said that the most abused drug is alcohol and is most frequently misused together with other drugs.

Quo Vadis is a house where people may come for 3 to 7 days to get the drugs out of their system. Then they usually go to a rehabilitation center for treatment such as the one in Blossburg, after which they come back to Quo Vadis where they make their home while they are trying to get back into the stream of normal living.

Group therapy is used both at the Center and Quo Vadis to try to get the person with a drug problem in touch with reality and with his feelings. We try to tell them, she explained, that there is nothing to be afraid of when they take charge of their own lives.

Presently, June said, she and the staff are trying to make an assessment of the 7 high schools in the county to find out what drug problems the students have. It is a frustrating job, she worried. Some high schools won't admit they have problems while others welcome them to come and start educational classes about drug abuse.

During her presentation, a film about an alcoholic wife and mother, called "The Secret Love of Sandra Blain" was shown.

The afternoon was climaxed with the appearance of Shanna Learn, a 7 year old from Ulster, who sang several hymns and western songs. According to her mother, the child knows over 60 songs by heart and has been singing for churches and other groups throughout the state since she was 3 years old.

The program was adjourned after the awarding of door prizes. Jean announced that the Regional Ladies Day Out will be held July 14, the place to be announced later.

Senate committee approves embargo impact bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry Wednesday approved a seven-point legislative package conferring additional authority on the Carter Administration to soften the impact of the Russian grain embargo on farmers.

The bill would increase loan rates for wheat and feed grains placed in the farmer-held grain reserve and permit the secretary of agriculture to implement "set aside" programs for those crops this year to reduce grain plantings.

The Committee combined into one omnibus bill a variety of proposals drawn largely from several separate bills that have been introduced in the Senate in response to President Carter's January 4 suspension of agricultural exports to Russia.

The legislation includes provisions for a food security reserve program similar to legislation strongly supported by the Carter Administration. The bill would authorize the Department of Agriculture to dispose of wheat purchased as a result of the embargo through emergency food assistance programs of the P.L. 480 program.

Embargoed corn purchased by the Department could be sold as a feed stock for fuel alcohol production at a "fuel conversion price" but not less than the grain reserve release level, currently $2.63 per bushel.

The Agriculture Committee previously has approved four other bills, relating to the embargo. One of these, to extend the life and increase lending authority of the farm economic emergency loan program, has been approved by a House-Senate Conference Committee. The Senate agreed to the conference bill Wednesday.

A second bill, which opens on a limited basis the farmer-held grain reserve to producers of 1979 corn and wheat who did not participate in last year's set-aside program, was also approved by the Senate Wednesday.

A floor amendment was added to the bill to raise the loan ceiling for farm storage loans from $50,000 to $100,000. The other two bills are awaiting Senate floor consideration.

In addition to the food reserve the omnibus bill includes provisions to Require the secretary of agriculture to increase loan levels on wheat to not less than $3.30 per bushel from $2.50 and on corn to not less than $2.25 per bushel from $2.10 for grain going into the farmer-held reserve. The increases would be effective for the 1979-81 crop years but would not apply to the regular price support loans made to producers outside the reserve program. The provision would also require that interest charges to farmers be waived on the reserve loans.

Require the Commodity Credit Corporation to purchase not less than four million tons of wheat and up to 10 million tons of corn to help shore up grain prices that have been adversely affected by the suspension of sales to Russia. The purchases must be at prices not less than the averages prevailing for the five-day period preceding the embargo and must be carried out by June 1, 1980, in the case of wheat and by October 1, 1980 in the case of corn.

Authorize the secretary of agriculture to implement a set-aside program for price-supported commodities for 1980 and 1981 if warranted to offset the impact of suspension of commercial export sales. The secretary had announced last fall, several months before the embargo, that there would be no grain set aside in 1980. He does not have the authority under existing law to reverse his decision.

Authorize the use of funds, facilities, and powers of the Commodity Credit Corporation to purchase and handle agricultural commodities other than grain — such as poultry — that were under contract for shipment to Russia at the time the embargo was announced.

Except in the special case of embargoed grain, prohibit CCC from disposing of government-owned wheat and feed grain stocks when a farmer-held grain reserve program is in effect at less than 5 percent above the "call" level, the price at which the farmer must repay the loan or forfeit his grain.

Require the secretary of agriculture to carry out a study of the potential for expanding U.S. agricultural export markets and using farm exports in obtaining resources such as oil from other countries.

Except for the increase in loan rates for grain placed in farmer-held grain reserve, the Administration did not oppose the other provisions of the omnibus bill.

USDA stops meat imports from El Salvador

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has removed El Salvador's two meat slaughtering plants from the list of approved exporters that can ship meat products to the United States.

"The levels of pesticide residues we detected in El Salvador's exported meat indicate that country has indicated control over its chemical residue program," Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman said.

that country demonstrates it has a reliable residue control program," she said.

Foreman said the two El Salvador plants shipped 10.5 million pounds of meat to the U.S. in 1979, or about 0.5 percent of the total imported.

"In July last year, El Salvador voluntarily began to certify that its meat was pretreated for pesticides and complied with our residue tolerances," she said. "No violations were found for the remainder of 1979."

In February 1980, however, USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service reported that excessive residue levels of chlorinated hydrocarbons were again showing up in laboratory analyses of El Salvador's exported meat. This prompted the recent action.

Foreman said product currently waiting entry into the U.S. will undergo an intensive laboratory analysis to ensure no adulterated meat reaches American consumers.

"We will not permit El Salvador to ship meat products to the U.S. until

How to complain about pothole problems

HARRISBURG — Having problems with potholes? The State Transportation Department would like to hear from you.

Beginning Tuesday, April 1, and continuing for one month, motorists in nine South Central Pennsylvania Counties can call Harrisburg toll-free to report troublesome potholes on state roads.

A special "Pothole Hotline" at 1-800-932-0634 will operate seven days a week from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. Calls can be made from anywhere in Adams, Franklin, York, Lancaster, Lebanon, Dauphin, Cumberland, Perry and Juniata Counties, officials say.

Department of Transportation maintenance personnel in Harrisburg will man the special number.

Alfred F. Lyng, District Engineer, explained that operation of the hotline will coincide with the Department's Spring pothole offensive. "Now that the annual spring thaw has arrived, all our road maintenance personnel stand ready to devote full attention to the pothole problem. 35 specialized "pothole crews" and 400 pieces of equipment will be mobilized districtwide for a concerted one month road repair effort, Lyng said.

Other crews and equipment will be added if needed.

Lyng noted that with 6425 miles of state road in nine south central Pennsylvania counties, the hotline will be helpful in alerting his field personnel of localized trouble spots requiring attention.

All calls will be logged and reported directly to road crews responsible for state road maintenance in each county.

Lyng said that top priority in scheduling repairs will be given to the primary routes, those 20% of the roads that carry 80% of the traffic.

Potholes reported along these routes should receive attention in two days or less, Lyng said.

On secondary and low volume roads, response time will range from three days to one week.

Hotline callers can help speed repairs by furnishing the state an accurate location and description of the pothole.

Traffic route numbers, local road names (including the Legislative Route Number if known), should be given along with an approximate distance from a nearby intersection, bridge or other recognizable landmark.

Such information will assist crews in locating repair sites and scheduling work.

As a second option, the Department reminds motorists that pothole and maintenance complaints will continue to be taken at local county maintenance offices during normal working hours.

Farmers advised to apply for ASCS loans now

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Farmers who intend to apply for ASCS on-the-farm storage facility loans should do so as soon as possible.

U.S. Congressman Tom Harkin, a member of the U.S. House Agriculture Committee, said the Carter Administration intends to boost interest rates for the storage facility loans from the current 10.5 per cent to nearly 14 per cent in the near future.

Harkin said the rate that will apply to an individual loan will be the rate in effect when the application is filed.

"By submitting an application now, before the interest rate hike, a farmer can secure the lower interest rate now in effect," Harkin said.

Applications should be filed at the local county ASCS office.

Harkin is the author of legislation which sought to lower ASCS storage facility loan rates to no more than eight per cent. That legislation was approved by both the full U.S. House and U.S. Senate, earlier this month but was scuttled by a veto threat from President Carter.

Named firm's top U.S. salesman

EAST GREENVILLE — Glenn F. Yoder, of East Greenville, has been honored as most outstanding salesman in the nation by the Agricultural Group of Allied Chemical Corporation.

Yoder was presented with the company's top honor, the President's Award, and was cited for achievement in two other award categories during Allied's annual dealer meeting held recently in San Diego.

According to Dick Ashley, president, Chemicals Company, the award was given "in recognition of Yoder's singular record of superior performance in the sale of Allied fertilizer products."

Yoder also received the Atlantic Area Sales Award based on the amount of products sold, new business development and maintaining customer relations.

He was also cited in the Individual Product Awards category for sales of Folan foliar fertilizer in the Eastern Zone.

Yoder has been with the major supplier of fertilizer products since 1965. He resides at 502 Washington Street with his wife, Ruth, and children, Pam, 21, Kathy, 17, and Paul, 18.

THE PATZ SOLUTION: Reliable Year-Round Feeding

You know the problems caused by hard packed and frozen silage. Patz gives you two solutions to the problem — the Model RD-790 ring-drive silo unloader and the Model 98B surface-drive silo unloader.

Both unloaders feature a double-hook gathering chain with hardened steel cutters and claws that rip through frozen and packed silage. When you push the button, you know you can count on a smooth feeding operation.

Evaluate our powered silo wall cutters. Spring tension holds 4 self-sharpening steel cutter blades in place to follow the curve of the silo wall. This keeps silage from building up along the walls, so you can be sure that you're getting all the feed where it belongs... in the feeder and not stuck to the walls.

The claws and cutters of the gathering chain deliver a steady flow of silage day after day.

Want to know more about the Patz system? See your Patz dealer. He'll show you Patz quality and reliability — two important words to a farmer like you.

Seed industry and government regulations

BY DON WERTMAN
Pa. Seedsmen's Assn.

This is the age of regulation. Although we know the situation has worsened during the last decade due to an increase in the number and scope of regulatory agencies, the seed industry has been under federal regulation since 1939. The Federal Seed Act of 1939 is a truth in labeling law which is managed by the Seed Division of the American Marketing Service, a branch of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The Act is concerned with seed moving in inter-state commerce. The only way a violation is cited is when the individual state regulatory official submits a complaint to the Federal Agency.

This procedure leaves the individual states with the authority to handle its own problems and when possible, work out solutions with neighboring states without federal intervention. If only this were the case with other federal agencies.

Many of the rules and definitions cited in the Federal Standards have been adopted by the individual states, thereby creating uniformity among agencies. The Regulations are lengthy, technical, and rigid. We will highlight several which are of particular interest to producers of agronomic crops in Pennsylvania.

The current Seed Act in Pennsylvania dates back to 1965. Several of the key points are: the list of restricted or prohibited weed seeds, labeling requirements, certification requirements, and the prohibitions placed on the marketing of illegal seed.

Restricted or prohibited weeds are those which are determined to be highly destructive or difficult to control within this state by normal cultural practices.

In the case of restricted weeds only so many per pound are permissible in legal seed and when present must be listed on the label.

Examples are Buckhorn in red clover or Bedstraw in timothy. Prohibited weeds include species such as quackgrass or Canadian thistle. No seed can be sold which contains these weeds.

Each state has its own list of restricted or prohibited weeds. Differing climatic conditions or cultural practices determine whether a weed will cause a problem in that state.

It is in all cases the seedsmen's responsibility under the law.

Again, requirements vary by state but most agree that the following information be provided: A purity analysis which lists the pure seed content, weed seeds, other crop seeds and inert matter.

These are stated on the analysis tag by percentage of weight. For example, an analysis tag stating .05 percent weed seeds means that there is one half pound of weed seeds in 1000 lbs. of seed.

Or 0.45 per cent inert matter means there is 4.5 pounds of dirt or inert matter in 1000 pounds of seed.

Again, seed laws determine how much other material is permitted in a given lot of seed before it is no longer legal for sale. Stated another way, most seed must have a minimum purity to be legal for sale. The minimums differ drastically for different seeds.

Certified seed grain must be 99 percent pure whereas grasses such as brome or bluegrass are perfectly acceptable with a purity of 85 percent.

Other required information on the label includes the accepted name of the seed, lot number, the state or country of origin, the net weight of the container, the treatment if any, and the germination.

The two most important items here are the treatment and germination. Some seed is treated while other isn't and the user should be aware of what the seed treatment is intended to protect.

In most cases, treatment performs two functions: it protects the seed while stored in the bag; and/or it protects the seed from deterioration when first planted. Both aspects are good but limited.

Growers should know if the treatment is an insecticide or fungicide, or perhaps only inoculation in the case of legumes. The label won't give all this information, but it will state the properly accepted name for the treatment and will be flagged by the accepted terminology of "Warning" or "Caution" depending on the type of chemical.

In any case, treated seed must be handled with caution and protected from children and livestock.

Germination is another important item on the label. The law specifies how low the germination may be of certified seed, while in the case of non-certified it is required that the germination be stated along with the date of test. The consumer must then decide if the germination meets his criterion.

For most seeds the germination test date must be current within nine months, while five months is maximum for interstate shipments. Again seed variety determines minimum acceptable germination. Most seed grains should germinate 90 percent while varieties such as crownvetch are acceptable at germination levels such as 65 percent.

One confusing aspect of germination information has been the term "Hard Seed." Hard seed is part of the total germination for legumes. It is a desirable characteristic in most cases.

Hard seed is viable seed which needs more time to germinate than other viable seeds in the lot. The hard seed coat of legumes reduces the intake of water necessary for germination. The aging process breaks down that coat as do environmental conditions such as freezing and thawing.

Generally speaking, the higher the hard seed count the newer the seed. Hard seed is desirable in that it is strong and healthy and will germinate when conditions are right.

Newly-harvested alfalfa will have a hard seed percentage as high as 30 percent. This is a good indication of a healthy seed lot. It's nature's way of holding back germination until another day when conditions are right.

It is, in fact, a built-in mechanism to insure preservation of the species. Many farmers look for low "hard seed" count. Don't be among them. Consider yourself lucky if hard seed count is high.

Although there is much more to be said about labeling, we will leave it to the seedsmen. It is well to know that there are guidelines, minimum requirements, and restrictions in the marketing of seed which are in force for the farmers' protection.

Take a look at the tags on your seed purchases this spring and know that much goes on behind the scenes in the preparation and use of that label.

Marilyn Deaven is N. Lebanon's Star Farmer

BY SHEILA MILLER
FREDERICKSBURG — Marilyn Deaven is this year's Northern Lebanon Future Farmers of America Chapter's Star Farmer. This is the first time the honor has been awarded to a young woman in the Chapter's history.

Deaven, a senior at Northern Lebanon High School, is the FFA Chapter's secretary. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

Mark Deaven, R1 Fredericksburg.

Living on her parents' dairy farm has given Deaven the first-hand experience and opportunity to start her own dairy herd. Unlike her parents who milk 45 Holstein cows, Northern Lebanon's star farmer owns 16 Jerseys, eight of which are in the milking herd.

Deaven fell into the Jersey breed through her FFA affiliation. She received the FFA chain calf when she was a freshman, and that calf happened to be a Jersey.

This past January, Deaven was awarded her Keystone Farmer Degree. Other honors she has achieved include her first place finish in the Soil Conservation Speaking Contest.

Although FFA takes up most of her time, Deaven says she enjoys showing dairy cattle. She exhibited her Jersey cattle at this year's Farm Show where she had the Reserve Champion

LITITZ — As farmers prepare for Spring planting, Penn State Pesticide Specialist Win Hock reminds that restricted use pesticides can be applied only by certified applicators.

Both the state Agriculture Department and the U.S. EPA have classified a number of materials as "restricted use". A list of those materials restricted in Pennsylvania appears below.

Under the authority of both the amended Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act and the Pennsylvania Pesticide Control Act of 1973, applicators who use restricted-use pesticides must be either certified or work under the direct supervision of a certified applicator.

Furthermore, only certified and licensed applicators can purchase restricted-use pesticides from dealers.

The pesticide dealer is required by law to record the name, address and certification number of the purchaser as well as the identity of the product, amount sold, and date of purchase.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has classified all pesticides which bear a Poison-Danger statement and a skull and crossbones symbol on the product label as restricted-use pesticides, except antimicrobial agents such as disinfectants, sanitizers, preservatives, and human and veterinary health products

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has also classified certain pesticide products as restricted-use materials. Since most of these products have a skull & crossbones symbol and a Poison-Danger statement of the label, they already appear on the Pennsylvania list.

However, any federally restricted-use product that is not already included on the Pennsylvania list must, by law, be added to the official list of restricted-use pesticides for Pennsylvania.

Certain formulations of the following pesticides are restricted in Pennsylvania (be sure to check the product label to determine the exact classification status of each pesticide):

YOU'VE HEARD THE TALK.

There's a better way to dry grain. It's called CHILLCURING™ because it means CURING without heat. Here's what the talk is all about.

THE GRAIN

Every kernel of grain is alive when it comes out of the field. It is a seed able to grow because it has the ability to take on moisture. Likewise, it can be kept in a state of preservation by removing the moisture already in it.

But by heating the grain to dry it, the seed life is destroyed.

By removing heat and moisture from the grain, it becomes dormant and stays alive. Then it can ripen to full weight, losing only water while keeping valuable protein, starches and sugar.

THE SYSTEM

It's simple. Grain goes from the field right to the bin. With the unique AIRFRAME™ and AIRFLOOR™ the grain rests on a solid bed that allows maximum ventilation.

Clean dry air is the best curing medium for the grain. GRAINLAMPS™ provide electric sunshine, cleaning and drying the air beneath the floor, before it passes through the grain.

Fans force air under the floor. Rising through the grain, this dry outside air carries away moisture and heat.

At the peak of the bin a jumbo 40" turbine, the WHIRLCOOLER™, puts nature to work for you. Wind and rising air keeps it turning, venting the system naturally.

A special HARVESTAT™ Control System monitors the curing process. A simple setting controls the GRAINLAMPS™ to make use of free, natural air.

THE FACTS

1. You can't beat Nature. HARVESTALL GRAIN CHILLCURING™ uses the same elements that ripen and preserve grain if left to itself: free flowing air and infra red rays (sunshine).
2. CHILLCURING™ has been tried and proven in 17 states on over 3000 farms. The research is in CHILLCURING™ WORKS!
3. The CHILLCURING™ system uses only the electricity to power fans and lights, using about 1½ KW hrs. per bushel. Compare that cost to other systems that use increasingly expensive fuels to get disappointing results.
4. The grain goes from the field to the bin and stays there till you need it. Save time and money at harvest with the one step HARVESTALL CHILLCURING™ and storage system.
5. If you're in the market for grain storage, you owe it to yourself to look further into HARVESTALL GRAIN CHILLCURING™.

Farm Credit banks report growth despite interest costs

BALTIMORE, Md. — The Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore experienced healthy growth in 1979 despite the rising cost of funds, bank president Gene L. Swackhamer announced recently.

Net earnings for the calendar year were $7.1 million for the Federal Land Bank, $4.2 million for the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, and $2 million for the Bank for Cooperatives. The three institutions which comprise the Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore provide agricultural financing in Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Puerto Rico.

Total volume outstanding as of December 31 equaled $1.4 billion for the Federal Land Bank and $550 million for the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank. The year's new loans for these two banks totaled $431 million and $378 million, respectively.

Cash advances by the Bank for Cooperatives in 1979 were at $350 million; year-end net volume outstanding was at $62 million. Many of the Bank for Cooperatives loans are made on a seasonal basis, and are thus repaid prior to year-end.

Although net earnings for the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore were down somewhat from the $9.1 million earned in 1978, Swackhamer reported that earnings were still adequate to maintain efficient operations and required reserves.

Earnings for both the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank and the Bank for Cooperatives advanced over the 1978 figures.

The Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore constitute one district of the nation's largest agricultural lender. Originally established by the federal government, the national Farm Credit System is now privately owned and operated as a financial cooperative.

Lending funds are obtained primarily through the sale of Farm Credit System-wide Bonds.

Small farmer workshop to run April 15

MIDDLETOWN, Del. — Because of the popularity of the recent workshop for New Castle county's small farmers, the program is being repeated Tuesday, April 15, at 7:30 p.m. at the Middletown High School. Its purpose is to acquaint New Castle county residents who live on small farms with some of the ways, they can make their few acres more productive.

As at the first meeting, the main part of the program will be devoted to small discussion groups on the following topics: soil conservation and soil improvement, income from your forest, growing

Christmas trees, growing small fruits and vegetables, livestock management on a few acres, and beekeeping.

Each of these sessions will be led by a qualified person who will discuss in general terms how a small farmer might be able to improve his or her income in terms of that particular topic.

The idea is not to give detailed information, but to stimulate interest in some of the enterprises which may be more productive for the small farmer than growing corn or soybeans.

The program will be arranged so that individuals who attend have a chance to participate in a total of two different discussion groups during the course of the evening.

The workshop is being sponsored jointly by the Soil Conservation Service, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, State Forest Service, Farmers Home Administration and the Delaware Extension Service.

It is free and open to all interested individuals.

Ask the VMD

Leon Riegel Tim Trayer Edgar Sheaffer

My cow's got the winter blues!

A reader asks:

We were recently advised in our breeder's association newsletter to keep an eye out for winter dysentery in our cattle. That task is difficult to do when you don't know what the symptoms are. Could you please discuss this disease, its symptoms, causes, and cure?

Dr. Riegel comments:

Winter dysentery is a disease of cattle that gets its name because it is seen during the colder months of the year, October through April.

The disease is characterized by a brown, watery diarrhea which may contain flecks of blood. The cattle appear normal in all other respects, including appetite, except for more active intestinal sounds and a drop in milk production.

During an outbreak of the disease, it is not uncommon to find 20 percent of a herd affected overnight, with as high as 80 percent involved within the next few days.

The disease usually affects older cattle more severely. You will be noticing rough hair coats, sunken eyes, and other signs of dehydration in these animals.

For many years the cause of the disease was thought to be an organism known as Vibrio jejuni. But due to its rapid spread, a virus is now thought to be the causative agent.

The disease will generally run its course in three to four days. In many cases, no treatment is needed. But in more severe cases, boluses to stop diarrhea and fluids to help combat dehydration are necessary.

Winter dysentery can be confused with another disease — coccidiosis. Your veterinarian can differentiate between the two by examining a manure sample under the microscope.

If you have a question you would like answered by the team from Valley Animal Hospital, send it to Ask the VMD, Box 366, Lititz, PA 17543. Questions will be kept anonymous on request.

Top herds in three counties cited for DHIA production

READING — A trio of top-producing dairy herds were honored recently for top production in their counties.

Each herd had the top Dairy Herd Improvement Association average in its county. And each herd is in a tie-stall barn, meaning the dairyman can give close attention to individual cows.

Lancaster County's top DHIA herd, owned by the Naaman Stoltzfus family had the top average in the Red Rose County.

Their milkers are primarily on a haylage program with corn silage

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Janos, R 1 Mohrsville, manage the top herd in Berks County. Their 31 cow herd averaged 20,706 pounds milk and 753 pounds fat.

The Janos herd sees mixed hay, silage and wet brewers' grains.

Janos feeds grain at one pound for every three pounds milk, although the heifers may see a bit extra grain because Janos realizes they still have a bit of growing to do.

The David P. Longacre farm near Hereford, Montgomery, had the top DHIA program in Montgomery County.

With 86 cows milking, the Longacre operation averaged 19,170 pounds milk and 637 pounds fat.

All three herds were honored by F. M. Brown's Sons, Inc., a feed and supplement retailer which supplies each of the herds.

The dairymen and their wives were honored at a lunch at which time they were presented plaques for their accomplishment.

Morris Brown noted that no single program was assurance of top production. He said it was more important for each farmer to have the right cows and the right management Stephen Janos, Berks County; Naaman Stoltzfus, Lancaster County; and David Longacre, Montgomery County, were cited for having the top DHIA herd in their respective counties.

How to ease tax bite

UNIVERSITY PARK — Some rather specific and complex laws can reduce total tax liability for the forest landowner, says James C. Finley, an area forest resources agent of the Penn State Extension Service.

Forest resources often are not fully used or they are under managed, Finley says. Many owners misunderstand their tax liability, perhaps paying more than is necessary.

Finley offers several sources of assistance on the subject of forest landowners and the Internal Revenue Service.

The IRS maintains a nation-wide toll-free telephone network through which you can receive aid from IRS agents. Ask your telephone operator for the WATS number serving your district.

Forestry consultants usually are quite familiar with the tax codes relating to timber sales and can be quite helpful. Their fees are deductible from the gross income from a sale. In addition, the county extension office in your county can help you find local sources of expertise.

Finally, the U.S. Forest Service has published a booklet, with the assistance of IRS, entitled "The Timber Owner and His Federal Income Tax, Agricultural Handbook 274." It is available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Processor closings may hurt Delmarva vegetable growers

DOVER, Del. — Recent closings or cutbacks of several food processing plants on the Delmarva peninsula will affect planting plans for a number of area farmers this spring, reports University of Delaware extension vegetable specialist Mike Orzolek.

Between 2000 and 3000 acres could be affected.

Loss of these commercial contracts means vegetable growers must decide soon what they're going to do instead. Some of this acreage will certainly go into fresh market production.

But before any crops are planted, it's important for farmers to make sure they have somewhere to sell them. Right now's the time to line up a buyer or plan sales strategy.

The decline in the local vegetable processing industry isn't a new phenomenon, says Orzolek. It's been going on for some time now. Ten years ago there were some 90 processors on the peninsula. Today there are only about 30.

The number could dwindle even further over the next decade unless there's a drastic improvement in the market outlook for processed vegetables.

Rising costs of production coupled with consumer reluctance to pay more than they already are for canned or frozen vegetables are the main reasons for the decline in this industry. There's also a large carry-over nationwide of most major processed vegetables—bad news at the start of a new cropping season.

As a result, wholesale prices are down for many crops, including sweet corn, lima beans and snap beans. This means even processors still in business may not be contracting for as much acreage for some of these commodities as they did last year.

There are two types of vegetable processor on the Shore—freezers and canners. Most produce three grades: fancy, extra-standard and standard—with the bulk in the top two grades.

As a group, says Orzolek, their products can compete in quality anywhere in the U.S. Many of these companies distribute their products as far west as Michigan and south into the Carolinas, as well as up into the large metropolitan centers of the Northeast.

Everywhere, the problem is the same—consumer insistence on cheap processed food which the industry can no longer afford to produce.

Besides several major food companies, Delmarva has many small independent processors. For the smaller firms, the going is particularly rough right now.

The specialist estimates that there are about 75,000 acres of processing crops in the peninsula—about 25,000 to 30,000 of them in Delaware. Production is very diversified, ranging from asparagus, snap beans and limas to carrots, peppers of all sorts, squash, tomato products, sweet corn, spinach, succotash, cauliflower, cabbage (for sauerkraut), sweet potatoes, peas, and pickles.

For the farmer who grows them, most of these crops bring in a much better return than he can hope to realize from corn or soybeans. In fact, a lot of Delaware farmers count on an early crop of peas for the operating capital to grow their second field crop, he says. This way, they can expect to pocket much of the return on that second crop.

Traditionally about 60 to 70 percent of the vegetables grown on the peninsula have gone for processing. With the drop in acreage this year due to plant closings or cutbacks, a lot of growers are going to be looking for other markets.

What kind of fresh outlets are available to them?

Many of the large food chains have buyers who will purchase locally grown produce for sale in area branch supermarkets.

Another alternative would be some form of direct marketing. A recent study by University of Delaware extension crops marketing specialist Carl German looked into one of these options—local farmers markets.

Orzolek suggests vegetable producers affected by processing plant cutbacks or closings obtain a copy of the "Delmarva Vegetable Marketing Guide," a recent publication prepared by the Peninsula Horticultural Society.

This covers both wholesale and retail marketing opportunities for fresh produce. Copies are available through county extension offices in Newark, 302-738-2506; Dover 302-678-4675; or Georgetown 302-856-5250.

FREY FREE STALL

LIFETIME FREE STALL HOUSING

Cut bedding costs 75 per cent, reduce labor for barn cleaning and cow washing, reduce teat and udder injury to the minimum — house your milking herd in free stall housing. Each cow provided a stall for loafing. She won't be stepped on, the rear curb forces manure out into alley for mechanical cleaning or washing. A few minutes twice a day cleans the stalls and curbs. Bedding lasts almost forever if your stalls fit the cows. Popular sizes are 6'6", 7' and 7'6". Size 'em by breed.

Our free stall partition may be mounted on wooden head boards or we make a steel divider. Set the legs in 8 to 10 concrete curbs to hold and retain bedding. Stall floor can be soil, sand or gravel. Bedding — straw, sawdust, peanut hulls, ground corn cobs, etc. Should be installed with paved alley surface 8 feet wide for mechanical cleaning or washing.

- 8 Models all steel welded farm & feedlot gates
- 2 Models all steel welded head catch gate

AND IT IS A STIHL®

IT STARTS EASIER
Because of a hotter spark, better carburetion and a flood free design.

IT'S MORE RELIABLE
Because it has longer wearing moving parts that won't break down.

IT'S MORE POWERFUL
Because it has the biggest power to weight ratio of any popular saw.

IT'S QUIETER
Because its large baffled muffler is more than just a tin box.

IT COSTS LESS
Because a saw that'll last about twice as long will only cost about half as much.

IT COMES WITH A BONUS
Over $30 worth of free accessories including a spare cutting chain really make the Farm Boss a Stihl.

STIHL
The world's largest selling chain saw.

21'8" AND 25' HYDRAULIC WING PULVIMULCHERS from Brillion offer the extra beef and width to handle the tough jobs — to match big tractor power. The machine is raised and lowered, tooth depth is controlled and wings can be lowered, raised and folded hydraulically from the tractor seat. In field use the wings float up and down to follow land contour. Both models fold to 13'10" transport width with road clearance of 12 inches. Crowfoot and notched roller wheels. Approximate weight of machine is five tons.

GALVANIZED EXPANDABLE METAL FLOORING

Nursery, Fattening, Gestation, Breeding, Calves, Sheep, Lambs, Dog runs, Greenhouse Tables.

Swinex "A" 3/4" - #8 - 4'x8' & 4'x10' Swinex "B" 3/4" - #9 - 4'x8' & 4'x10'
Swinex "C" - #11 - 4'x8'

EXPANDED METAL HAS MANY ADVANTAGES OVER OTHER FLOORING SYSTEMS. FOR EXAMPLE:

- Foot problems are reduced compared with solid concrete or concrete slab flooring
- Expanded metal "self-cleans" and stays dry better than any other flooring we've evaluated. As a result, bacteria buildup is minimized which improves conception rates and overall herd health
- Boars and sows have better footing during breeding compared with breeding on grooved concrete floors

Profit-sharing land rental fights inflation

NEWARK, Del — With the rising cost of production, farmers can't always make enough on a crop to afford to lease land these days. A few Delaware growers and their landlords have started to use a system that takes this into account in basing the rental fee, in part, on the net return per acre from the crop grown on leased land.

This system allows the owner and the renter to profit more equitably from its use, reports University of Delaware extension farm management specialist Don Tilmon. And it puts less pressure on the farmer during lean years. He thinks the idea shows a lot of promise.

Under this system, the owner and renter enter into a profit-sharing rental agreement. This agreement calls for a base rent, plus payment of an additional fee, depending on net profit per acre realized on the crop grown. This fee is based on a sliding scale which only goes into effect after the farmer-renter has realized a certain minimum return on his investment.

As an example, base rent is $45 per acre and the crop is corn. (Some Delaware farmland can rent for as much as $60-$90 an acre these days.) After the crop is made, the net profit per acre will be calculated on the average market price for corn at harvest, less the total cost of production (including rent and other fixed and variable costs).

As long as the net is less than the base rent, no profit sharing is called for. But if net return exceeds this, then the farmer and landowner start to share it.

They may have decided, for example, to split the first $50 profit above the $45 per acre base in $10 increments. Twenty-five percent of the first $10 may go to the landlord and 75 percent to the renter; 30 percent of the next $10 may go to the owner and 70 percent to the farmer, and so on up to a 50-50 split on any net return over $95.

This sliding scale takes into account the fact that the farmer is the one who experiences the risk of making and selling the crop. At the same time, it permits the landlord to share in the profits when yields or corn prices are good, without setting his annual rent so high that it places an unrealistic financial burden on the farmer.

Profit-sharing rental agreements developed in other parts of the country have received some attention in farm magazines, but so far only a couple of Delaware farmers are using the system. However, says Tilmon, it's something others may want to consider as they go about making plans for the coming crop year. "I think it's a good idea in that it allows for a higher rent payment to the landlord, without putting undue stress on the renter in a poor year."

The 4-wheel driver.

Our versatile Kubota B7100 is excellent for grass cutting, gravel work, and general work around private homes. Yet its four wheel drive makes it strong enough for such commercial applications as park maintenance, nursery work, and landscape contracting.

Standard equipment includes a standard 3-speed rear PTO, independent rear brakes, differential lock, and a category 1 hydraulic 3-point hitch.

And the B7100's 16 hp diesel engine will use less fuel than a larger tractor. This Kubota cuts costs as well as it does grass.

We're looking for work.

Farm Credit's Land Bank raises interest, adds fee

LANCASTER — The Farm Credit Bank of Baltimore has announced its intentions of increasing interest on outstanding loans.

In addition, the Bank will charge a six percent closing fee on all new money loaned, effective with applications taken after April 1, 1980.

"In accordance with the terms of the variable rate loan contract executed," Farm Credit President Gene L. Swackhamer said, "the interest rate charged on such loans will increase to 12 percent effective May 1, 1980."

Several reasons were listed for the increased charge.

Swackhamer pointed out that interest rates are rising dramatically in all financial markets.

Credit restraints and a tightening monetary policy are intended to increase interest rates, discourage borrowing, and contribute to the slowing of inflation, he said.

The impact on the Federal 1 and Bank of Baltimore is to increase sharply the cost of funds, he said.

The Bank must maintain its reserves and net worth position to carry on the business of providing credit to members, he continued.

"In keeping with this objective, we find it necessary to increase the interest rate on variable loans," he said.

Swackhamer said it is the desire of the Bank to establish an interest rate for existing borrowers adequate to cover refinancing costs of maturing bonds and to assure that all new loans reflect the current cost of funds.

To accomplish the latter, the Bank is charging its six percent loan closing fee on all new money loaned, effective with applications taken on or after April 1.

Swackhamer said operating costs will be shared proportionately by all borrowers.

He also said the Bank can not assure borrowers there will be more favorable trends. But, he added, Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore intend to maintain the business in a financially sound manner so the Bank can adjust downward borrowers' variable interest rate when conditions improve.

Poultry fund raises already above goal

LANCASTER — Two tickets weeks before the big April 10 event, the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation had surpassed its goal of 1600

The Banquet represents 70 percent of the Federation's budget.

By the end of March, the Federation had moved 1605 tickets. This year's increase represents a continuous increase in ticket sales every year since 1973.

But, PPF pointed out, this is the first year since the banquet began that sales had to be made during a period when the entire industry including broilers, eggs, and turkeys, is suffering serious financial difficulty.

"It's the greatest vote of confidence our organization has ever received and represents a growing awareness for the need for associations in this complex business and political climate," said PPF Executive Director John Hoffman.

There has been a change in the entertainment for the annual fund raising banquet, Hoffman reported.

Scheduled comedian Jim Teter has accepted an engagement with singer John Davidson in Las Vegas during the week of the banquet and will be replaced by comic Charley Dornan.

Dornan is a stand-up comic with songs and mimicry and an audience-participation closing.

Also appearing will be Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass.

The Federation also announced its 1980 Poultry Conference and Annual Banquet is scheduled for June 26 at the Host Corral in Lancaster.

The all-day conference, featuring separate broiler, egg, and turkey conferences, will convene at 9:30 a.m.

New Holland Baby Beef Club plays guessing game

NEW HOLLAND — The New Holland 4-H Baby Beef Club met recently at New Holland Division.

Each member gave a report on their steer's progress.

Guest speaker for the evening was Robert Gregory from Pennfield. He had a guessing game of the ingredients in feed.

Next meeting is April 25 at Terre Hill Silo Company. Reported by Stephanie Yost.

The Milk Check

TOM JURCHAK
County Agent

Big Deal

One of the biggest deals ever attempted, to put under a single control the assembly and processing of milk, was undertaken early in March with the announcement that H.P. Hood, Agway and Yankee Milk were considering a joint venture that could involve our four billion pounds of milk a year or about 80 per cent of the supply in the New England market.

Nothing has happened yet, but a study was made and an agreement signed that allowed for a 90 day period for all the interested parties to put it all together.

It would require the purchase by Agway, Yankee Milk, the present 800 H.P. Hood shippers and perhaps two or three other co-ops to buy up sixty per cent of Hood's outstanding common stock at $43 a share.

The Boards of Directors of Agway and Hood have approved the agreement in principle. It would mean that Hood would purchase milk from a new cooperative made up of Yankee members, present Hood shippers and members of other cooperatives in New England.

Agway would not be involved directly in the handling of milk but their role is described as a catalyst limited to financial investment in H.P. Hood and overall leadership similar to the Pro Fac/Curtice-Burns model.

The new cooperative would purchase the fixed assets of Hood and the other cooperatives and lease them back to Hood.

It is expected that through lowered assembly costs, increased plant efficiencies and general market systems improvement that nearly five million dollars could be saved for profit sharing among the participants.

There's a lot of work to do in 90 days, including a 94 cent per hundred capital investment by all the farmers who want to participate. They have to sign up enough farmers to get at least three billion pounds and that alone may take 90 days.

There are many pieces to fit together in a short time but just the idea that it is being tried is a little staggering.

Off and Running

The draft of a bill called the "Milk Producers" and Cooperative Security Fund Act" has been made by the Senate Agriculture Committee in the Pennsylvania Legislature.

From the title you can guess that it provides separate funds for proprietary handlers and cooperatives.

must participate in the fund unless "opted out" by their board of directors or their voting delegates at the annual meeting.

Handlers will contribute one cent a hundred, and claims by producers will cover 75 percent of the amount owed by the handler for a period of up to 60 days. This percentage could be increased after a public hearing if the fund has "sufficient assets."

Under the Cooperative Security Fund the co-op would have to go bankrupt before the members would receive "an amount not to exceed 90 percent of the unpaid milk money of the member."

Of course, this is just the beginning of what may be included in a bill that may get passed. But it's further along than such an effort has ever been before so at least you're off and running.

Central York Dairy 4-H builds show boxes

The Central York 4-H Dairy Club held their March meeting at the home of Roy Thompson.

The club started work on their spring project, the making of a show box to keep equipment in at the barn.

The next meeting will be held April 14 at the Thompson farm to complete the projects.

MF 640 Row Crop Planter

Massey-Ferguson's new 640 row crop planter uses air pressure to gently single out each seed

Seed selection discs provide extremely accurate plant populations in all kinds of soils, even with minimum tillage. A seed drop of only 9" (229 mm) adds to planting accuracy by reducing bounce for uniform spacing in the row

Optional depth gauge wheels put every seed at the same depth for a uniform stand from one end of the field to the other. Double disc openers help stop plugging to keep you on-the-move

Seed hoppers are 1 1/4 bushels translucent fiberglass for less refills and easy visibility of seed levels from the tractor seat

speeds so you get more seed in the ground per hour

Other features include a standard seed monitor, high-strength hydraulic markers and rugged roller chain drives

Farm couple wins big cheese

NEW ENTERPRISE — Lehigh's Chairman of the Board, Alpheus Ruth, presented a 40 pound block of cheddar cheese to Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Lee Hershberger, New Enterprise.

The Hershbergers, members of the Inter-State Co-op, won the cheese by registering at the Lehigh booth during the Farm Machinery Exposition held at the Farm Show Building in Harrisburg, Pa. on February 28, 29 and March 1st. Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell made the drawing from more than 1000 registrants.

Lehigh manufactures over 40 million pounds of cheese annually at the Allentown facility. The cheese plant is the largest in Pennsylvania of its kind, and one of the largest in the East.

The presentation was made to Mr. and Mrs. Hershberger at the District meeting held on March 18, 1980 at the Northern Bedford High School, Loysburg. Earl T. Reighard is the area District Director of Lehigh.

Do you houseclean your medicine chest?

NORRISTOWN — In the winter cold and flu season is here, and many families are adding prescription and non-prescription drugs to their medicine cabinets.

Before you crowd in new medicines, take a few minutes to clean out your cabinet, suggests Nancy Stevens, home economist.

Throw out all unlabeled bottles of medicines and boxes of pills. Also discard any medicines that show signs of deterioration or that have been in the cabinet for a long time. Many medicines will have changes in strength or composition to make them either harmful or useless.

Tablet preparations are usually good until the tablets show signs of crumbling or deterioration. Solutions should be safe as long as they don't change color and stay free and clear of residue. Medicines in suspension are long-lived but tend to settle, so shake them well before using.

Many medicines have open dates stamped or printed on the container. These preparations should be discarded once the date is passed.

The best and safest way to discard medicines is to pour them down the drain or flush them away. Carefully rinse the bottles. Never assume that wastebaskets are free from the curious eyes and hands of young children.

LESS BIRD STRESS

The system has been designed for bird comfort! Each bird has her place at the feed trough. Each has easy access to water. Obstruction to light and the flow of air have been greatly reduced, providing more uniform ventilation and lighting for every bird. Combined with ChoreTime's automatically controlled air inletting system you get a layer house environment designed for bird comfort and the resulting better production.

Not only the physical shape of the feed trough, but the operation of the feeder has been engineered to reduce feed waste. The trough shape cuts down on feed loss from "raking" and "billing," while the feeder has been specifically designed for ChoreTime's programmed and performance feeding concept.

The Air System With A Mind Of Its Own

Until now, most ventilation systems had one drawback. Air inlets had to be opened and closed by hand.

This was time consuming — and pretty much a matter of guesswork.

Now, Chore-Time has eliminated this problem.

The Chore-Time system has a mind of its own and adjusts inlets — in conjunction with fan operation — to maintain air pressure at a constant, preset level.

This provides a degree of air and moisture accuracy never before possible in poultry and livestock buildings.

The new inlet control (pictured) is just one of many exclusive features that make Chore-Time air systems number one in performance and reliability.

CONTROL

Four basic components go into the makeup of this ventilation system: the fan, the inlet, the air inlet power pack, and the controls. Coordinated, these four basic components can provide you with better conversion and performance by removing stresses due to lack of oxygen, excess humidity, noxious gases and temperature extremes.

Reliability through simplicity, Chore-Time's advanced air system provides automatic control of incoming fresh air, moisture and heat for productive environmental control in agricultural buildings.

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

Agricultural Editor University of Delaware

The latest edition of the Yearbook of Agriculture is about as far from farming as you can get and still call it agriculture. The title, "What's To Eat? And Other Questions Kids Ask About Food" tips you to the content of this 144 page, 8 1/2 x 11-inch paperback.

It's no doubt going to be very popular with a lot of people, but it won't do for the agricultural bookshelf what some of its predecessors did.

According to a Department of Agriculture news release, the '79 Yearbook of Agriculture was designed and written for 9 to 12 year olds and was produced by USDA as one of its commitments honoring the International Year of the Child.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says the book tells the story of food in two ways. "It tells the story of those who produce our food and it tells us how our health, well being and pleasure are affected by food."

Obviously, the new yearbook is a radical departure from its predecessors in content, format, and audience appeal.

Already a number of Congressmen who get copies for free distribution are up in arms about the book's approach. Some say they aren't even going to mail it out. And some USDA critics say the yearbook only adds to the mounting evidence that the Department has forgotten why it exists and who it should be serving.

Included in the book's eight sections are: A look at the history of food and eating, with some rather strange etiquette of early days; a farm tour conducted by a 12-year-old farm boy; a trip to the supermarket and other places to buy food; the latest on nutrition; and what it does for the body, farm and dinner table visits to some faraway places; a look ahead 50 years at what we'll be eating; both outdoor and indoor easy-to-do vegetable gardens; and funny sayings and crafts that can be performed with foods.

The '79 ag yearbook could be very popular with urban folks, especially since the price is only $4.50 per copy. As usual, Congressmen have some copies for free distribution to constituents, so I suggest if you're interested you contact one of them. Or, you can order a copy by writing to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Department 39-G, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Ask for the Yearbook of Agriculture, "What's To Eat? And Other Questions Kids Ask About Food."

While we're recommending reading material, allow me to suggest a Delaware Extension Service publication, "Land Use For The Public Good Should Delaware Farmland Be Preserved?"

This extension bulletin gives excellent background on Delaware's farmland preservation situation and will help both farm and city folk understand the dimensions of the problem.

Whether you're arguing for or against farmland preservation you need some facts, and that's what Gerald Vaughn, coordinator of community and resource development with the extension service, has attempted to do in this little booklet.

If you want a copy of this publication, write to the Mail Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19711. Ask for Extension Bulletin 117, "Land Use For The Public Good Should Delaware Farmland Be Preserved?"

USDA seeks to change fruit grade standards

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture Friday proposed a new grading procedure for canned fruits that will offer packers better control over the finished product's quality.

USDA also proposed an official grade standard for canned fruit mix, a product similar to fruit cocktail.

The proposal would change the grading procedure for sweet cherries, fruit cocktail, pears, apricots and grapes. The new grading procedure, called attributes sampling, would replace variable sampling, a system which has been used in the processed fruit and vegetable grade standards since 1928, according to Assistant Secretary of Agriculture which uses four defect categories: minor, major, severe and critical. For each grade, limits are set on the number of permissible defects in each category.

This system offers packers better control over the finished product's quality by enabling official graders to give reports on the quality of a lot at various stages of production, without having to wait until the end of a shift to determine whether a lot meets a specified grade.

Under the older system, the finished product is numerically scored on a number of quality factors. The grade is an average of these scores.

Attributes sampling is already in use as the official grading method for canned clingstone peaches. It was adopted in 1978, after a USDA study of the method in 10 California packing plants

Foreman said USDA is also proposing a new grade standard for canned fruit mix, a recent addition to the consumer market commonly found under generic labels in the supermarket.

Under the proposed standards, both U.S. Grades A and B fruit mix would have a reasonably bright appearance, and be practically free from seeds and pits. Other quality factors such as defective pieces would be graded under the new attributes sampling system.

The canned fruit mix usually costs less than fruit cocktail because the expensive, artificially colored fruit ingredients are omitted, and various forms of fruit ingredients, such as slices, dices and quarters, are included in the product. Canned fruit mix offers consumers a savings while maintaining the same nutritional value as the more expensive fruit cocktail.

The proposed changes were published in the March 21 Federal Register. Copies are also available from the Fruit and Vegetable Quality Division, Food Safety and Quality Service, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Comments on the proposal will be accepted until December 12, and should be sent in duplicate to Executive Secretariat, Attn: Annie Johnson, room 3807-S, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service established grade standards and provides official grading for many food products, under authority of the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946. Use of the standards and grading service is voluntary and paid for by the user.

Easter Joy

"Why are you troubled, and why do questionings rise in your hearts? See my hands and feet, that it is I myself; handle me and see, for a spirit has not flesh and bones as you see that I have." Luke 24:38-39 "Because I live, you shall live also." John 14:19

"For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ, our Lord." Romans 6:23 "That IF thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and believe in thine heart that God hath raised Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." Romans 10:9

May the joy of the first Easter morning, and the peace of God abide in your heart this Easter season.

The Sperry New Holland Dealers in your area wish you a happy Easter holiday!

Special ag sales session added

HERSHEY — "The Changing International Markets of the 1980's" will be the theme of the Fifth Annual Pennsylvania International Trade Conference, Charles A. Fagan, III and Robert G. Walton, Conference Co-Chairmen, announced Monday. This year's conference will be held in Hershey, from May 4 to 6.

The purpose of PITC is to expand the Pennsylvania businessman's awareness of the challenges and opportunities in international trade and investment, and to prepare him to take advantage of those opportunities.

Special sessions on international agricultural sales have been added to this year's program. Some of the discussion topics to be covered are: new markets for agricultural exports; methods for reaching foreign buyers; and the world demand for food and agricultural products.

Participants will attend panel sessions on current business issues, and gain practical advice on doing business abroad. The panels are comprised of prominent businessmen and professionals who will relate real-life experiences and success stories — both for the new-to-export and the experienced international company.

A highlight of the 1980 conference will be the presentation of the first "Governor's Export Award" by Pennsylvania Governor Dick Thornburgh at the Keystone Dinner which is slated to open this year's PITC on May 4.

In addition to Governor Thornburgh, the conference's impressive array of keynote speakers include Charles W. Parry, Executive Vice President, Aluminum Company of America, and John L. Moore, Jr., President and Chairman of the Export-Import Bank of the U.S.

This year a unique opportunity for an individual marketing consultation is also available to PITC participants. By special arrangement with the U.S. Department of Commerce, attendees will be able to meet with a Department of Commerce international trade specialist at the conference to discuss marketing of their product in specific foreign markets.

Working to promote export trade, the PITC is an independent, nonprofit organization sponsored by a number of leading Pennsylvania business firms and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

French equestrienne rides for U. of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Americans know Chantilly for its delicate lace and the perfume in the lacy pink box.

But to the French, Chantilly is "Horse City," nestled in the woods 20 minutes north of Paris with its race tracks, race horses, hunting horses, jumping horses...more horses, in fact, than people.

Eighteen-year-old Isabelle Gagnaire, now an animal science major at the University of Delaware, grew up watching the horses of Chantilly each day on her way to school. Like most of the children in town, she started riding at a young age, even though her parents weren't serious riders and owned no horses of their own.

At the age of 12 she started studying dressage ("ballroom dancing on a horse"), cross-country and jumping. She even took a volunteer job exercising race horses every morning before school.

At 15 she developed a taste for the pageantry of riding to the hunt, chasing after deer with swift horses, barking dogs, and blaring bugles. At the same time she joined a jumping team and spent weekends competing in horse shows.

Despite all the local interest in riding, France had no college level equestrian school until the Centre Zootechnique de Rambouillet admitted its first 12 riding students just this year.

Hoping to improve her English while honing her

Isabelle Gagnaire, University of Delaware animal science student from France, shows proper French form in jumping over hurdles.

horsemanship skills, Isabelle came to the University of Delaware to study horsemanship and equine management with Dr. C. Melvin Reitnour.

The college freshman says she has already learned how to tackle most of the little problems that trouble a horse, from parasites to minor injuries that don't require a veterinarian's attention. Perhaps some day she'll be a veterinarian herself, she says.

Isabelle had to adjust to a whole new style of horse show here in the U.S. In French horse shows, riders are paired with their own familiar mounts. They must jump over 10 to 15 hurdles which increase in height according to the riders' level of proficiency.

In Intercollegiate Horse Show competition in the United States, everyone begins by randomly drawing the name of a horse. There are fewer hurdles, uniformly low, and riders are judged not on height, but on their adherence to perfect form in the execution of each jump.

There are pros and cons to each system, Isabelle concedes. The Intercollegiate shows test how well a rider can work with an unfamiliar horse. The French are more interested in testing the limits of a well-established partnership of horse and rider.

Except in dressage, where every movement counts, the French pay less attention than the Americans to proper placement of the rider's knees and elbows. The way the French judges see it, if you can clear the hurdles without knocking them down or falling off, you must be doing something right.

Though the unfamiliar riding style took some getting used to, Isabelle took a fast liking to some other aspects of the American way of life—notably, friendly, smiling people, donuts, roller skating, and ice cream that comes in a choice of 36 flavors.

She was pleased to note she could still enjoy some of the familiar pleasures from home as well, such as skiing, ice skating, and the ocean.

And, of course, there are horses. For the pleasure of riding she is helping out a local women by exercising her hunting horses and teaching the two-year-olds how to jump. There is no money involved. What, then, is the attraction?

"A horse isn't like a bike or car," Isabelle explains. "It's living. You have to make it understand you. You establish a relationship. My horse is more of a friend than a riding tool."

"EASY DOES IT" FEEDING PROGRAM FOR DRY COWS AND GROWING HEIFERS

COST -
per cow per day

NEW FRESHSTART D&H CHOW BLOCK

- ★ 1 Block for every 4 cows
- ★ All you feed is roughage
- ★ Let your dry cows and growing heifers feed themselves

Purina Research Tests Prove Superiority of D & H Chow Blocks

Many dairymen find it inconvenient to hand feed growing heifers and dry cows, especially on out-of-the-way pastures. As a result, many heifers and dry cows fail to receive nutrition required for most efficient and economical growth and development.

To help solve this problem, Purina Dairy Research scientists conducted extensive tests on various methods of self-feeding heifers and dry cows including liquid feeding and free-choice salt meal mixes. Final research data on feeding tests proved the superiority of D&H Chow Blocks both in feeding performance and cost to feed.

Heifers on D&H Chow Block tests consumed an average of 2 to 3 pounds per day and averaged 1.8 pounds gain per day considered an ideal growth rate for proper muscle and bone development.

NOTE D&H blocks are not to be used when high calcium legume hay is fed to dry cows

Check these reasons why you should feed D&H Chow Blocks

- Convenient to feed . . . easy to handle, store and haul.
- Saves labor . . . no daily hand feeding. When distributed properly, block lasts for days.
- Economical . . . eliminates investment in storage tanks or self-feeders.
- Contains intake regulators . . . a combination of appetite regulators limits intake to 2-3 pounds per head per day, which meet the animal's daily requirements.
- Contains proper mineral balance . . . mineral balance is at levels specifically required by dairy animals.
- Meets vitamin requirements . . . 2 pounds of the Block per head per day meets the total Vitamin A and D requirements for growing heifers and dry cows.
- Supplements roughages . . . adds the nutrition that growing heifers and dry cows need to balance good roughages.
